FIRMS NEARING AGREEMENT ON OIL IMPORT CUT

100,000-BARREL LIMIT PER DAY IS FORESEEN

Proration Law Tightening in Domestic Fields Expected to Follow.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Oil Conservation Board, in its efforts to assist the hard-pressed oil industry, has encountered a problem of overproduction heretofore unknown in the history of the petroleum business.

Figures gathered by the board show approximately 3,000,000 barrels of oil are produced daily in the United States and approximately 300,000 barrels are being imported from foreign fields, controlled directly or indirectly by American companies.

The board has found that such production is far in excess of needs in this country and that storage facilities have been strained to the breaking point for more than a year.

Government Aid Asked.

The result is that the Government has been called upon to help distressed independent producers in the so-called "stripper" fields, and larger companies are faced with handling oil at prices so low there is no margin for profit.

Into the welter of unwanted and unwelcome petroleum, the oil board has plunged in an effort to obtain an agreement limiting imports to 100,000 barrels daily. If this is reached the oil-producing States are expected to tighten the proration laws now in effect.

All of the importing companies except one have indicated their willingness to enter into such an agreement. The remaining company is faced with unfavorable action by a foreign government in the event it agrees, and negotiations are in progress to remove limitations imposed when it secured its concessions.

Advice Often Rejected.

The Oil Conservation Board has no authority to do anything but advise. Many times in the past, members of the board said yesterday, advice has been given only to be rejected by the oil industry.

The present chaos, however, has brought about a tendency on the part of the producers, independent and otherwise, to listen gladly when the board speaks.

Secretary Lamont has had a chief part in bringing about the import limitation agreement. He is holding conferences almost daily with producers and importers, and is expected to announce the agreement of all the large importers some time this week.

Threat Seen in New Fields.

Kettleman Hills, in California, where the oil came from the well as 90 per cent gasoline, is now operating as a unit and overproduction from that source is not a threat.

The Government has title to approximately 40 per cent of the Kettleman Hills oil land.

Two new fields, each said by the board to be able to produce enough oil daily to supply the entire needs of the United States, are in process of development.

They are in Oklahoma City and near the Texas-Louisiana border. Oil

Francis X. Bushman Hunts Wealthy Wife

Will Wed Anyone Who Can Support Him in Luxury.

Chicago, March 11 (U.P.).—Francis X. Bushman, movie adonis, offered himself in marriage tonight to any woman who can support him in the style to which he has been accustomed.

"I think I'm the first movie actor in history to admit that he's failed," Bushman said, "and to admit that I'm in search of a wealthy wife."

Bushman a few years ago was one of America's most popular movie stars, with a Hollywood mansion, a country estate and strings of race horses. He said he had earned between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000 during his long film career.

He's still a matinee idol, but at the little Kedzie Stock Theater on Chicago's West Side. If it weren't for his current salary he'd be broke.

The situation has come to such a pass that the curly-haired, square-jawed Bushman said he is about ready to put an advertisement in the newspapers, something like this:

"For Sale—One ex-millionaire, athletic. Age, 47; height, 5 feet 11 inches; weight, 193 pounds; health perfect, wind sound; appearance intact; tastes expensive. Widely traveled; sportsman by preference, actor by necessity. Ladies with ample incomes may address Francis X. Bushman, Kedzie Theater, Chicago."

"I suppose I might be called a prospective gigolo or something," said Bushman, smiling and at ease in his modest bachelor apartment. "But after all a gigolo gives value for the money he receives.

"If he is paid $10 to take an ugly woman to dinner, and to encourage

TELEPHONE STOCK OPINION IS SECRET

Belief Expressed Bride Will Recommend Prosecution of Utilities Firm.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday completed his opinion on the validity of the issuance of $2,000,000 worth of stock last year by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and at the same time received a copy of the company's opinion, which had been delivered to the Public Utilities Commission.

While Mr. Bride declined to reveal the contents of either of the briefs, it is believed he will recommend prosecution of the telephone company both for violation of the public utilities act and the La Follette anti-merger law.

The matter, in all probability, will go into court, as the telephone company plans to resist any penalty that the commission attempts to exact.

Although the specific inquiry of the corporation counsel's office was directed into the stock issuance that was not revealed until the 1930 report was made by the company, the chief contest will be waged over whether or not the La Follette act has been violated.

The utilities act requires that any utility operated in the District shall get a certificate of permission before issuing any stock and that this shall be recorded before the issuance. The penalty is the invalidating of the stock and the imposition of a fine of from $1,000 to $10,000, which must be collected by suit.

Telephone company officials contend that the stock in question does not come under the jurisdiction of the District commission because it was authorized in a New York charter before the local utilities body came into existence.

Man, 22, Is Sentenced For Stealing of Safe

Beckley, W. Va., March 11 (A.P.). At another time and place Ben Maiden, 22, might have got a medal and lots of commendation for his feat, but this time the circumstances were not proper, and so he got instead a ten-year sentence in the penitentiary.

PRICE-FIXING PLAN STIRS SHARP ROW

(Associated Press.)

A sharp conflict of opinion among men who were at the Nation's helm during the World War developed yesterday before the war policies commission over plans to eliminate profiteering in the conduct of future hostilities.

Newton D. Baker, who, as Secretary of War, was in charge of America's military establishment during the World War, opposed the Baruch plan for freezing all prices by presidential proclamation at the outset of another conflict. This plan was proposed by Bernard M. Baruch, who, as chairman of the war industries board, mobilized American industry.

Mr. Baker said Mr. Baruch's plan would be "unwise" and recommended instead a system of "price control through leadership," under which prices would be gradually fixed after conferences with industrial leaders, as was done in 1918.

The remainder of Mr. Baruch's plan, for controlling war profits by price-fixing rather than by drafting capital and labor, was indorsed by Mr. Baker and also by Leonard P. Ayres, statistician; Brig. Gen. Palmer Pierce, retired, and Commander John M. Hancock, of the Navy, all of whom were closely connected with the problem during the World War.

Both Mr. Baker and Mr. Ayres minimized the amount of profiteering by American manufacturers, saying most of the profits were made before this country entered the conflict.

Mr. Baker testified the draft of wealth, through a capital levy, would "be so drastic a burden it would produce almost a revolutionary disturbance." He pronounced the draft of labor for "industrial occupations" as unsound.

The former War Secretary said he had no legislation to recommend, adding there can only be a "limited amount" of preparatory legislation because modern warfare is "essentially a process of improvisation" with constant changes.

"The mobilization of American industrial forces in the World War," Mr. Baker said, "was the outstanding in-

BUILDING RACE IS AVERTED BY NEW SEA PACT

Terms of Franco-Italian Accord Announced by Powers.

2 CRUISERS OF 23,333 TONS EACH ALLOWED

Treaty Permits Supremacy of French Submarines Over 4 Countries.

London, March 11 (U.P.).—Terms of the Franco-Italian naval accord, designed to remove the threat of a disastrous race in sea armaments, were made public today.

The accord permits both France and Italy to construct two "super-cruisers" of 26,333 tons each. It also permits France to build up to 81,989 tons of submarines, a supremacy not only over Italy but the three signatories of the London naval treaty signed last year—Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

It was understood that the British, who urgently arranged the accord, agreed only temporarily to the submarine clause, and that they intend to attempt as soon as possible to persuade France to lower its submarine requirements.

The memorandum which preceded the annex giving the terms of the treaty, it was indicated, will now be redrafted in legal terms and prepared for signature by all the powers represented at London last year—Britain, the United States, Japan, France and Italy.

Contrary to London Pact.

However, it was not decided whether this would mean a special signature ceremony in London, or whether copies of the proposed treaty will be forwarded to the various governments for formal approval.

The Franco-Italian accord does not agree with the terms of the London treaty, which limits the United States, Great Britain and Japan to 52,700 tons of submarines, and enforces on them a building holiday until 1936 on capital ships. It limits France and Italy, however, to a definite figure for the next five years. Previously, these nations had no limit on their auxiliary sea armaments, having failed to sign the London pact. It was Britain's fear of a building race apparently imminent that caused this government's spectacular mediation which ended in the Paris accord recently.

Under the present agreement, France and Italy agree to build no more than 143 surface ships before 1936, including two battle cruisers apiece, of 26,333 tons each. In addition, they will build 37,000 tons of submarines—roughly about 60 new submarines. Much of this tonnage will be in replacements.

Major Points in Treaty.

The major points of significance in the pact, it was indicated, include:

1. It prevents an imminent naval race.

2. It effects a Franco-Italian reconciliation, possibly leading to settlement of dangerous postwar colonial and other political difficulties.

3. It gives hope for full coopera-

DENISON DENIES OWNING LIQUOR AS TRIAL OPENS

CONFLICTING LABELS COMPLICATE STORY

Express Employe Tells of Finding Rum by Leak From Baggage.

A story of mislabeled bottles of supposed whisky and gin offered by the Government in evidence, and a complicated defense story which did not explain how a trunk of liquor got in the office of former Representative Edward E. Denison (Republican), of Illinois, was patrially told at the trial of Mr. Denison which began yesterday before Justice Peyton Gordon in the District Supreme Court.

Mr. Denison is charged with illegal possession of liquor, under an indictment handed down in November, 1929, since which time he has fought through the courts to have the indictment dismissed and failed, and has been defeated for reelection in a campaign in which the liquor indictment played a part.

The defense made no effort to deny that a trunk containing eighteen bottles of whisky and six bottles of gin was delivered to room 411 in the House Office Building, then occupied by Mr. Denison and was discovered and opened there in Mr. Denison's presence by prohibition agents.

Sanders Disowns Trunk.

Everett Sanders, former secertary of President Coolidge, in an opening statement to the jury, said the trunk did not belong to Mr. Denison; that Mr. Denison had a passion for buying china in Panama, where it was much cheaper than in this country, and had brought many sets of china back to this country on his frequent trips there as a member of the House interstate and foreign commerce committee. Mr. Denison had had addressed to his office a trunk containing a set of dishes for his secretary, Mr. Sanders said.

Charles Lane, a nephew who had accompanied Mr. Denison on his last trip to Panama, had left him in New York, asking him to bring to Washington his suit case. Mr. Denison had brought three trunks to Washington, but had left the suit case and other trunk to be shipped by express. His nephew, leaving the ship later, had found both on the dock and had taken them with him, intending to bring them to Washington, but carried them directly to his home in St. Louis in his hurry to meet his mother to depart on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Through "some inadvertance," Mr. Sanders told the jury, another suit case and trunk had been shipped to Mr. Denison's office, and it was this trunk, which did not belong to him, although addressed the same as that said to have been taken to St. Louis by his nephew, which contained the liquor. The suit case, incidentally, never got to the House Office Building.

Leak Reveals Liquor.

Patrick J. Lynch, employe of the Railway Express Office at Second and H streets northeast, discovered it was

Poison Death of Man Laid to Young Widow

Mrs. Daisy Dycus, Wounded Monday Allegedly by Aged Suitor, Indicted in Hopkinsville; Probe of Photographer's Slaying to Continue.

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 11 (A.P.). Blame for the mysterious death here January 27 of County Patrolman Edwin Dycus, 26, was laid today by the grand jury to his young widow, who was seriously wounded Monday coincident with the death of an aged suitor.

Mrs. Daisy Dycus, pretty 24-year-old brunette, who ran, screaming and wounded, Monday from the studio of Jim McClure, 59-year-old photographer, afterward found shot to death, was formally indicted as the slayer by poison of her husband. He became ill shortly after returning from a trip and died in a short time.

The young woman, held in jail since the tragedy of Monday, was said tonight to be seriously ill from head wounds she claimed were inflicted by two shots that glanced from McClure's pistol and by blows from its butt. She is to be arraigned later before Circuit Judge Ira D. Smith.

Grand jury inquiry into the McClure death, attributde by the coroner to suicide, was expected to continue tomorrow, and County Attorney Shouthall said he would seek to determine through chemical tests whether the pool of blood found in McClure's room was his or that of Mrs. Dycus.

McClure left letters saying he had given to Mrs. Dycus the poison that ended her husband's life, and also that he was going to kill her and himself because they could not be happy together.

Senator Couzens Taken to Hospital

Cause of Illness Is Sought; Attaches Say Condition Not Serious.

Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, is resting comfortably at Garfield Memorial Hospital, where he was taken Tuesday for observation, according to hospital attaches.

Senator Couzens was allowed to sit up part of the time yesterday, it was said. Officials at the hospital stressed the view that the senator's condition gave little cause for alarm.

Mrs. Couzens said last night that the senator was under observation and is receiving treatments for bladder ailment that troubled him while in Detroit several months ago.

Small Light Bulb Throws Piercing Rays Five Miles

Cleveland Projection Demonstration Reveals New Device Cuts Path Through Smoke and Haze; Viewed as Valuable Invention for Aviation.

Cleveland, March 11 (A.P.).—Projection of light from a bulb only about five or six times larger than the ordinary tungsten lamp used in the home, so that a person five miles away is able to read a newspaper by its rays, was demonstrated here tonight.

The demonstration was conducted by W. A. Pennow, airport and airway lighting engineer with the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., here during a meeting of the Electrical League of Cleveland.

The light was projected from a searchlight throwing a narrow beam over Lake Erie. The beam spread only slightly over its course, Pennow explaining that the spread was only twelve feet a mile. Thrown on the clouds the searchlight produced a round spot that looked about as big as a washtub.

Five miles out in the lake the "crib" where Cleveland obtains its water supply was made distinctly visible.

"The searchlight is designed principally to aid aviators in determining the height of cloud banks," Pennow said. "The narrow beam makes the determination more accurate than previous methods, the error being only 12 feet a mile.

"Four of these searchlights have been installed on top of the 555-foot American Insurance Union Tower at Columbus and are visible above Toledo and Cincinnati, approximately 125 miles away.

"Arising to an altitude between 5,000 and 6,000 feet and flying outside the city's mantle of haze, an aviator at Toledo, on a clear night, can follow the north searchlight on the tower all the way into Columbus.

"The searchlight, containing a 420-

WATSON'S QUESTIONS IGNORED BY SPEAKER

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, ace orator for Herbert Hoover in campaign of 1928, yesterday struck out at the administration's farm relief program, and thus widened the gulf that has developed between him and the President.

The Idaho senator spoke at the progressive conference in the Carlton Hotel and was vociferously applauded when he concluded.

Borah charged that the Farm Board had failed, again advocated the debenture, or export bounty, plan which the President opposed, and declared that there were some farm regions that the agriculture council recently created by the Republican national committee "will not dare to visit"—that is, if the council intends to tell the farmers what has been done to place them on an equality with others."

"Special Plea for Rich."

The council, according to the national committee, was created to disseminate information "regarding the various constructive steps which the administration has taken to aid the farmers and save them from bankruptcy."

Without mentioning the name, Senator Borah also took a slap at Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, who, he said, had recently made "a special plea for the rich and for the capitalists." It was a "coterie of capitalists," he said, "who inaugurated the most sicious era of speculation and inflation of which the world gives any record."

A telegram from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, was read to the conference, and such was its tone that many regarded it as a bid for progressive support in 1932. Roosevelt expressed "real interest" in the conference, and called attention to his own record on power and agriculture.

Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, who opened the conference charged that the "power trust" is seeking to control both political parties, and then took a slap at Senator Watson (Republican), of Indiana.

Challenge Thrust Aside.

Thrusting aside Watson's challenge that the conference make known its position on prohibition and thirteen other questions, Norris said that the Indiana voters had "perpetrated a gigantic joke upon the country when they elected little Jimmie Watson to the United States Senate." Once, he said, Watson was a lobbyist.

In New York, the G. O. P. leader of the Senate charged that Norris was "afraid to answer the questions and "so resorted to the tricks of a pettifogger." The only time he served as a lobbyist, Watson said, was when he represented the Manufacturers' Association in an effort to have Congress create a tariff commission.

Once Senator Norris had opened the conference, Senator-elect Costigan (Democrat), of Colorado, took charge of a round table comference on the tariff question. He advocated prompt downward revision of tariff schedules, and suggested that a people's counsel be appointed to appear before the Tariff Commission.

Changes in Tariff.

Later Costigan's recommendation with regard to a people's counsel was adopted by a special tariff committee that was appointed in the morning session. The committee also agreed to recommend removal of protection from price-fixing monopolies, and to take from the President and give to Congress the right to make effective

CERMAK CITES HUGE PROFITS FROM RUM

Mayor Thompson's Foe Says $1,300 Investment Will Return $1,000,000.

Springfield, Ill., March 11 (A.P.).—A $1,300 bootleg investment will bring a return of a million dollars over a short term, Anton J. Cermak, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Chicago, told a State legislative committee today.

In a letter read before the body which is considering a State prohibition repeal bill, Mr. Cermak said the amount would purchase a carload of commercial alcohol.

"A carload of commercial alcohol will make 120,000 quarts of bourbon, or 80,000 quarts of gin and this can be sold at $10 a quart. The revenue would either be $800,000 or $1,200,000, according to the product the illicit handler of 'bum booze' makes, and if you will follow the trail of that revenue you will find the reason why thousands upon thousands of police officers, public officials, revenue agents, and others have winked at the 'rumrunner.'

"We have come to a turn in the road. It takes quite some time to arouse the American public. They are aroused. They know they have been fooled. They know that they are paying in taxes for the revenues that were taken from the Government, the States and the counties and cities, and for what?

"To make men of wealth and affluence out of hoodlums—to try to enforce a law that even the Federal officials who are charged with its enforcement admit can not be enforced."

STATEMENTS DIFFER ON GAS DEAL REPORT

Chicago Company's Counsel Denies Acquisition as Claimed by Peirce.

A confused situation arose yesterday as the general counsel of the Central Public Service Corporation, of Chicago, denied the announcement of the corporation's president that the concern had concluded a deal described as "a management acquisition" of gas companies in this area.

The corporation's president, Albert E. Peirce, however, made no change in his statement of the previous day in Chicago that the corporation had obtained management control of the Washington Gas Light Co., the Alexandria Gas Co., and the Washington Suburban Gas Co.

An Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, in disclosing the transaction, had quoted Mr. Peirce in saying that these three companies and also the New York-Richmond Co., serving a portion of Greater New York, and also involved, would be operated hereafter as integral parts of the Central's large system.

Denial of the declaration of Mr. Peirce was made by Donald McPherson, general counsel of the corporation, in a statement telephoned to Wilton J. Lambert, attorney and member of the board of directors of the Washington Gas Light Co. Both Mr. Lambert and George A. G. Wood, president of the companies affected in the Washington area, had expressed themselves as ignorant of any pending negotiations.

The statement by Mr. McPherson,

Parents, Jobless, Make Long Trip on Foot With 17-Month-Old Daughter; Reach West Virginia City to Find Girl Dead.

Steubenville, Ohio, March 11 (U.P.). The frail body of little Doris Janet Gibbons was prepared tonight for a pauper's burial while the story of the tragic, hopeless trek of the child's parents across 37 miles of blizzard-swept country was told on the streets and in the homes of Steubenville. The story is of a tragedy that might have occurred on the steppes of Russia, rather than in the lowlands of Ohio.

Clem Gibbons, the child's father, lived in North Alexandria, Ohio, and was employed as a laborer until a few months ago, when he lost his job. He looked for other work but could find none, and a week ago he was evicted. He was told that he could get temporary work in Steubenville, so he brought his wife and baby daughter, 17 months old, here.

A few days later Doris Janet fell ill of pneumonia. Penniless, heartweary and friendless, Clem Gibbons and his wife decided to take Doris Janet to Wheeling, W. Va., where they used to live and where they knew a doctor.

They wrapped a ragged blanket about the sick child's body and set out, on foot. A snowstorm made their journey difficult, and Doris Janet's cough grew worse, mile after mile. Finally, less than 15 miles from Wheeling, the baby's body grew cold. She died in her mother's arms.

They struggled on across the country, carrying their dead baby, and upon reaching Wheeling, exhausted and bewildered, they went to a hospital. At the hospital a collection was taken up and enough money given Gibbons for the railroad fare back to Steubenville. Still carrying their child's body in their arms, they rode back to their home.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

We are besought by Europeans to define our attitude toward any blockade by the League of Nations against one of its recalcitrant members. As our rights of trade are already substantially defined by the usages of international law, the request is virtually that we signify that foreign powers be given the privilege to abrogate and violate our rights. It is difficult to see why such authority should be granted even if our Government had the power.

Insofar as a blockade is an act of war, we could only participate in it through a declaration of the Congress. To observe a blockade amounts to about the same thing and undoubtedly would be considered unfriendly if not hostile. We remember that whenever we have placed an embargo on arms, the country affected has usually been able to purchase a supply in Europe.

It would be more practical to await the event. Our position can then be ascertained. It will be on the side of peace and fair dealing. We already restrict the sale of arms. Having made the treaty outlawing war, we would not look with complacency on another nation proposing to violate it.

the recommendations of the Tariff Commission.

The committee declined to adopt a proposal that its tariff program call for independence of the Philippines. No recommendations were made with regard to revision of specific items.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, denounced the Hawley-Smoot bill, and, in so doing, called President Hoover the "great engineer of disaster."

Maryland Man Present.

Representative-elect David J. Lewis (Democrat), of Maryland, who succeeds Fred Zihlman, suggested a program for tariff reform. He, like Costigan, was once a member of the Tariff Commission.

Fred Brenckman, of the National Grange, said that a large part of the farmers' troubles might be traced to the tariff.

Camilo Osias and P. Guevara, resident commissioners from the Philippines, said that the islands would be glad to give up the privilege of exporting sugar to this country free of duty if they were only given independence.

Others who joined in the tariff discussion were Fred Cummings, of Colorado, who said he was glad to admit that he was one of the "Sons of the Wild Jackass," and W. T. Raleigh, of Freeport, Ill.

Devoted to Agriculture.

The afternoon session was devoted to agriculture, and was presided over by Senator Borah.

The Idaho senator, whose speech was broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, recalled that in 1928 the Republican party pledged itself to enactment of measures which would place agriculture on an equality with industry.

"Two years have passed," he said. "I do not think it unfair—I believe it is in accordance with fact—that in that two years no permanent step has been taken to place the agricultural industry on an equality with other industries. In saying that, I do not forget the Farm Board and the efforts the Farm Board has put forth to solve the problem; but, in my humble judgment, the Farm Board has failed."

Advocates Debenture Plan.

He added that it had to fail because there was no permanent policy.

In advocating the debenture plan which was killed in the last Congress, Senator Borah declared that Alexander Hamilton, "one of the two greatest secretaries of the Treasury we ever had; I might have been referring to Albert Gallatin"—had recognized the fact that an American farmer selling in a foreign market was under a disadvantage, and had proposed to remedy the burden through what is now known as the "bounty" or "debenture."

At this point, Senator Norris read Gov. Roosevelt's program, and there was applause.

Legge Is Censured.

Milo Reno, who, despite his Hollywood name, is a dirt farmer from Des Moines, Iowa, declared that President Hoover should have demanded Alexander Legge's resignation as chairman of the Farm Board. He was followed in the discussion by John A. Simpson, of Oklahoma, who once had a violent row with Legge; by William Hirth, of Missouri; Joseph L. Bristow, of Fairfax, Va., and by Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa.

Last night's session was devoted to a discussion of "return to representative government," and the discussion was led by Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, who, born in New England, left Harvard to seek health in the Southwest, and since has been a Democrat, a Bull Moose, and a Progressive Republican. He denounced slush funds, the encroachment on the rights of Congress, and called for the abolition of the electoral college.

Prof. Charles A. Beard, the historian, suggested plans to save the time of Congress. One was to entrust petty bills to executive departments or special agencies, as does the British Parliament. These measures would not go into effect until they had been submitted to Congress and reposed on the desks of the members for 30 days without encountering adverse actions.

Prof. Beard Speaks.

Prof. Beard also suggested that Cabinet officers take the floor in the Senate and House and explain important measures. Then he suggested that a "grand joint committee" be created to scrutinize Federal establishments engaged in lawmaking.

A letter from Representative La-Guardia (Republican), of New York, who is sick, was received by the conference. In it, the New Yorker recommended a program for the Progressives in the next Congress, but omitted any suggestion that action be taken on prohibition.

"Central Public Service Corporation desires to correct an inaccurate statement which today appeared in various newspapers concerning the relationship existing between that company and the Washington Gas Light Co., Alexandria Gas Co. and Washington Suburban Gas Co., which distributes gas in the District of Columbia and in neighboring communities in the States of Maryland and Virginia, and the relationship existing between Central Public Service Corporation and New York & Richmond Gas Co., which distributes gas in a portion of the City of Greater New York.

"Central Public Service Corporation has no management contract with any of the companies referred to and has at no time in the past and does not now either directly or indirectly own stock in any of these companies."

Mr. Peirce, in his statement carried in The Post yesterday morning, as quoted by the Associated Press, had pointed out that the corporation will not directly or indirectly acquire any stock in any of the companies named, but will only manage them, the ownership of the group in the Washington area to be vested in the Washington & Suburban Companies.

On receipt of the McPherson denial, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, immediately turned it over to Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride with the instruction to "get the facts."

Mr. Bride, the previous day, had been instructed to "get the facts" concerning an announced change in the name of the Seaboard Investment Trust Co., owner of the Washington group, to the Washington & Suburban Companies, and a $6,500,000 bond issue advertised by the Washington & Suburban Companies, which described itself as "a Massachusetts common law trust."

J. P. COTTON RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Burial to Take Place Near New York; Stimson and Tellez to Attend.

Undersecretary of State Joseph P. Cotton will be buried after funeral services to be conducted this afternoon at Bedford Hills, New York, with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez, of Mexico, attending.

In memory of the widely known diplomat, whose death occurred Tuesday afternoon in a Baltimore hospital after two major operations within the last six weeks, Secretary Stimson ordered the State Department closed for a half-day, beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The body was sent yesterday morning to Bedford Hills, close to New York City, accompanied by members of the family, including his wife, his daughter, Isabel, and his New York law partner, George S. Franklin, who were at the bedside when death occurred.

The respects of the Diplomatic Corps will be paid by Ambassador Tellez, dean of the corps, following a decision of its members made at a meeting at the Mexican Embassy yesterday, attended by approximately 40 of the 53 mission heads. He will lay a wreath on the grave.

The Diplomatic Corps also officially notified Ambassador Nobile Giacomo de Martino, of Italy, and Minister Charles A. Davila, of Roumania, both sojourning in New York, who also may attend the services.

Kirkland Verdict Appeal Is Planned

Jury Finding in Murder of Arlene Draves Held Contrary to Evidence.

Valparaiso, Ind., March 11 (A.P.).—Confidence that Virgil Kirkland, convicted last night of murdering Arlene Draves, will ultimately be acquitted, was expressed tonight by Defense Attorney Barratt O'Hara as he set about preparation of an appeal.

O'Hara described the jury finding, which held the girl came to her death by a blow from Kirkland's fist, as a "defense victory upon which we will base the appeal and ask acquittal."

"There was no evidence presented," O'Hara said, "showing Kirkland struck Arlene with his fist. It is our contention a new trial must be had on that count alone."

O'Hara also said his office had been informed a witness could be found who would testify that Arlene was struck over the head with a milk bottle by a girl who was jealous of Kirkland's attention to Miss Draves.

Peruvian Cabinet Sworn Into Office

Government FormedUnder Provisional Presidency of Samanez Ocampo.

Lima, Peru, March 11 (A.P.).—A new governmnet was sworn in here today under the provisional presidency of David Samanez Ocampo, 68-year-old soldier, rancher and one-time political exile. He pledged himself to restore order among the revolutionary forces of Peru.

Lieut. Col. Samanez Ocampo, who headed the recent "southern junta," despite his ill health, succeeds Lieut. Col. Gustavo Jimenez, whose coup d'etat forced the Elias faction out of power.

The composition of the new cabinet sworn in today is: Minister of foreign affairs—Rafael Larco Herrera; war, Lieut. Col. Gustavo Jimenez; navy and aviation, Commander Frederico Diaz Duifanto; justice and education, Jose Galvez; finance, Manuel Vinelli; police, Francisco Tamayo; public works, Ulises Reategui Morey.

River Steamer Is Burned.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 11 (A.P.).—The four-dck steamer Greater Pittsburgh, formerly the Homer Smith, and one of the largest excursion boats on the Ohio River, was destroyed by fire here tonight. The boat was tied up for the winter and was not in use. The only person on the steamer was a watchman and he could not be located after the fire. Whether he perished or escaped was being investigated.

Gandhi Bars Followers' Use of Tobacco, Sweets

When they asked him what their conduct should be he replied:

"Don't tell lies.

"Don't use abusive language.

"Don't smoke.

"Don't eat sweets."

A youth asked plaintively: "How about tea?" and Gandhi replied with a broad smile, "you may drink tea. Drink it from the River Sabarmati." The Sabarmati is the holy river of Gujerat.

leaking in the express office and smelled liquor and called prohibition headquarters. Daniel A. Connors, another express company employe, told the court that he had delivered the trunk to Mr. Denison's office and had got a receipt which the Government exhibited. William E. Leahy, chief of defense counsel, sought to have the expressman say that the Denison signature on the receipt had been traced over.

Succeeding prosecution witnesses then told of going to Representative Denison's office, telling him they suspected the trunk there contained liquor, agreeing to come back later, leaving the trunk unguarded until 8 o'clock that night, opening it in the presence of Mr. Denison, finding liquor in it, taking it to prohibition headquarters and putting it in a safe where it lay with no effort to mark it for identification for months, in the course of which most of the liquor had been poured out without any questions asked of the court.

Basil N. Quinn, prohibition agent then in Washington but now in New York, was the first of the raiders called to the stand. He accompanied John J. Quinn, then acting chief of prohibition in the District, to the Denison office.

Denison Seemed Surprised.

"Mr. Denison seemed quite surprised and said if there was liquor in it it was news to him," the witness said. "He said it belonged to him. I lifted one end and said it was heavy and Mr. Denison said it must be dishes and a moving picture camera. He said the key to the trunk was at his home. Mr. Denison said he had to go to the House and asked us to come back later."

The two Quinn's returned at 8 o'clock, accompanied by Agent Fleming, and Mr. Denison gave them a key which wouldn't open the trunk. Asked if he minded if it were broken open, the witness said Mr. Denison replied:

"Why no, it is not my trunk. If there's whisky in it take it out."

John J. Quinn remained talking with Mr. Denison about 25 minutes while he and Agent Fleming waited in an automobile downstairs with the trunk of liquor, he said. Subsequently the liquor was taken to prohibition headquarters and put in John J. Quinn's safe, the witness said. His superior told him, he said, that he would make out a report himself.

One Bottle Tested.

They took a bottle of the liquor out of the safe three weeks later, Basil Quinn said, and John J. Quinn opened it and they both rubbed some on their hands and smelled it, but did not taste it, he continued.

The highlight of his testimony, from the defense viewpoint, was his refusal to identify the bottles offered by the Government as evidence. He said he had refused to identify the bottles in November, 1929, when asked to do so.

John J. Quinn followed Basil Quinn on the stand. He said that when he returned to the Denison office at 8 o'clock at night Mr. Denison pointed out the name "B. B. Dawson" on the end of the trunk. The name had not been there earlier in the day.

Bottles Are Identified.

The former administrator positively identified the bottles offered by the Government as those which came out of the trunk. He said he had opened one bottle and knew it was whisky by the smell, but he had never tasted liquor in his life.

"Then," interjected Mr. Leahy, "this man is not competent to identify whisky."

"You never tasted whisky?" queried Justice Gordon, and Mr. Quinn said he had not.

On cross-examination, Mr. Leahy attacked the manner in which the seized liquor had been handled.

William R. Blandford, acting prohibition administrator of the Fourth District, which includes Washington, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North and South Carolina, was the next witness. He took office in 1929, succeeding John J. Quinn.

Labels Found at Variance.

The defense had been shooting at the identification of the bottles of liquor offered as evidence by the Government throughout the day, and after Mr. Blandford had identified two bottles of whisky and one bottle of gin, Mr. Leahy read the identifying labels on the bottles.

The label on one bottle declared that it had been seized from an "unknown violator" in the Senate Office Building "sometime in the year 1926." The trunk was not found in Mr. Denison's office until January 19, 1929. One label said the bottle had been seized on January 18. On another bottle the label said it had been seized on January 19. That probably was a typographical error, Mr. Blandford said. Some girls in his office had been asked to write identification labels from their memory, he explained.

Mr. Ayres testified that if prices had been frozen when America entered the war its cost would have been reduced from $22,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000.

Nevertheless, he said he would oppose a sweeping plan for price fixing, advocating instead that the Government, on the outbreak of the war, fix the prices of those commodities which would be needed most, such as iron, steel, copper and textiles.

Mr. Pierce recommended regulation of labor, capital and industry. An attempt to draft wealth and industry, he said, "would probably prove disastrous because of the confusion and delay."

Mr. Hancock testified the Baruch plan would "involve too much machinery" and said the President now has ample power to fix prices. He estimated it would take six weeks after the outbreak of war to fix wholesale prices.

Texas Newspaperman Is Jailed for Contempt

Dallas, Tex., March 11 (A.P.).—A county grand jury investigation into the alleged flogging and kidnaping of two admitted Communists tonight had placed Edmund Barr, a newspaper reporter, in jail for contempt of court.

Barr was fined $100 and sent to the county jail by Judge Grover C. Adams after he refused to divulge where he obtained information contained in a story of the affair printed in the Dallas Dispatch.

C. J. Coder and Lewis Hurst, the Communist organizers, have not been seen since their reported kidnaping immediately after their release from jail.

National Oil Conference May Be Held in Capital

Oklahoma City, March 11 (A.P.).—Cicero Murray, chairman of a contract group representing seven oil States, announced today a national conference will be held within two weeks probably in Washington.

Murray, cousin of Gov. W. H. Murray and the governor's personal representative at the oil relief conference Monday at Texarkana, set March 23 as a tentative date for the meeting.

Governors or their representatives of California, Texas, Kansas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Wyoming and New Mexico will be asked to attend.

Abduction of Girl Laid to 7 Youths

Kentucky Lass, Under 18, Tells Story of Attack and Imprisonment.

Paintsville, Ky., March 11 (A.P.).—Seven youths were under $1,000 bonds here today charged with an offense against a girl under 18 years of age who told police she was abducted, taken to an abandoned mine, attacked and finally kept prisoner in a country church for two days.

May Stewart, 17, daughter of Samuel Stewart, of Van Lear, entered complaint against the youths, all of whom will be given a hearing before Squire Irvin Rice next Monday. They are Elmer Rice, Pearl Lee Webb, Sam Hyden, Lee De Long, Galen Hall, Howard Hobson and Jim Hyden. All are between the ages of 17 and 21.

The girl told her parents Elmer Rice met her on the street at Paintsville and asked her to go for a walk. She said they went to an abandoned mine near Auxier, Ky., and there met two or three other youths. Under threat of death she was forced to drink some liquor, the girl said, and soon lost consciousness. When she regained her senses she saw fifteen or sixteen boys around her, she said. She told officers she remembered being attacked only by the Rice youth.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

CLASS DAY IS HELD AT HARRISONBURG

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, W. Va., March 11.—The class of 1933 of Harrisonburg State Teachers College celebrated their annual class day today. They celebrated their class day as aviatrices and the aero idea was carried throughout the stunts and program. The flag pole of Harrison Hall flew the green and white flag of this class and various lobbies through the campus were decorated in the same color scheme. Chapel exercises for the day were in charge of the officers of this class.

An election was held to determine the outstanding members of the class from the standpoint of popularity among the classmates, and Miss Sarah Dutrow, of Roanoke, Va., was voted as the best all-around, most talented and cutest. Miss Dorothy Harley, of Round Hill, Va., was voted the most attractive; Miss Virginia Zehmer, McKenney, Va., most generally liked; Miss Dorothy Martin, of Norfolk, Va., president of the sophomore class, was elected brainiest; Miss Virginia Hallett, Cheriton, Va., most stylish, and Miss Martha Ellison, Roanoke, Va., most capable.

The class numbers more than 150 students.

DEATH RATE IS CUT BY VIRGINIA BOARDS

Full-Time Health Units Are Now Located in 17 of State's Counties.

Richmond, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—The new rural public health survey just completed by the public health committee of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce discusses how full time and fully organized health units in seventeen counties in Virginia have cut the death rate and improved rural sanitation conditions during the decade that they have been in operation.

The survey shows Virginia to be seventeenth among the States in the Union in percentage of rural population served by full time health units. It shows how in seven counties the deaths per year from typhoid fever were reduced from 77 in 1914 to 4 in 1929, and how for an average cost of approximately $10,000 a year a remarkable improvement in rural health conditions could be made which figures proved would result in a large saving of life. Virginia now is spending 29 cents per capita for the conservation of health and for sanitation.

Before service was installed there were 30 deaths from typhoid, an average of ten a year, in seven counties, during the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive. Typhoid deaths after service had begun, 1927 through 1929, however, totaled 11, or 3.6 per year.

Expenditures for public health work by the counties themselves were analyzed by the report and showed that several counties were spending nothing and that the highest was Norfolk County, spending 37 cents per capita. Only 36 counties spend more than $1,000, while 36 others spend 1 cent per capita or less on public health work. Several counties spent only 2 cents per capita and many less than 4.

Murder Hearing Nears Finish in Indianapolis

Indianapolis, March 11 (A.P.).—The case of Harold Herbert Schroeder, Mobile, Ala., garage man, charged with the murder and burning of an unknown man near here last May, probably will reach the jury tomorrow afternoon.

Ira M. Holmes, defense counsel, completed his plea this afternoon. The closing argument of the State will be given tomorrow morning by Floyd Mattice, deputy prosecutor.

Antisaloon nGroup Ends Convention

Rededication to Cause of Prohibition Urged at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—Pleas that opponents of strong drink throughout the country rededicate themselves to the cause of prohibition marked the closing session of the antisaloon league of America's Southern convention here today.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the organization, urged supporters of prohibition to gird themselves for a determined fight against liquor forces and any attempt that may be made to bring about repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Bishop Edwin Hughes, of the Methodist Episcopal Church North, of Chicago, declared "we finally have got prohibition by regular constitutional process; now let the saloon cohorta try to get it out the same way. But we are not going to let go. We are in God's business and we are going to keep prohibition and make it an absolute success."

Dr. McBride announced the league's regular annual national convention would be held in Washington next January 16.

Cleric Will Hang In Child's Slaying

Montreal, March 11 (U.P.).—Brother Dothisee, under his lay name of Albert Nogaret, today stood convicted of "the most atrocious crime of years," in the words of the crown prosecutor, and will be hanged for the murder of a 7-year-old child, whose body was found in the cellar of the Roussin Academy six months ago. Justice Charles A. Wilson delivered the setnence.

Evidence in the case showed that little Simone Carron set out one day in July with a friend to buy some candy at a store nea rthe Christian Brothers Academy. She was never again seen alive. Her playmates told of seeing her "treated to apples" by one of the brothers.

Brother Dothisee had charge of the kitchen and cellars of the institution. Two of his colleagues, making an inspection of the cellar in September, discovered a sack. In it was the body of the little girl. She had been stabbed twice—with a knife similar to those used by Brother Dothisee in his work around the kitchen—and had been criminally assaulted.

University Women To Debate Job Issue

Special to The Washington Post.

Lewisburg, Pa., March 11.—The Women's Debate Team of Bucknell University will meet the University of Maryland here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in a discussion on "Unemployment Insurance."

Bucknell will uphold the affirmative argument in the discussion. The speakers are Guinaeth Johnson, Ann Graybill and Mary Bolger. The Maryland speakers are not announced. It is the first debate for Bucknell on the affirmative side of the subject. The negative team met Cornell and Keuka last week. No decision was given in either contest.

ECKENER ARRIVES; GRAF VISIT HINTED

Dirigible Expert Confers With Navy on Use of Lakehurst Station.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, arriving here yesterday morning for a two-da ystay, intimated that the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin may come to the United States again, possibly this summer.

He conferred with Navy Department officials regarding the use of facilities of the Lakehurst Naval Air Station. The veteran lighter-than-air expert pointed out that while plans were incomplete, if the trip was made it would be within the next few months, as Navy officials advised him that with the early completion of the ZRS-4, new Navy dirigible in construction at Akron, all remaining facilities at the air station will be utilized.

Dr. Eckener told Navy officials that he planned to make several trips to South America this summer. The purpose of the flights would be to survey the ground, estimate operating costs and gain experience prior to the establishment of the proposed European-South American dirigible line.

Original Operating Plan.

Original plans for the transoceanic dirigible services caled for German operation of a South American service; an American line, cooperating with the German company, to run from New York to Paris or Berlin, and American operation of a line from San Francisco to Tokio.

Failure of Congress to pass a bill extending airmail subsidies to the American interests has postponed work on the lines. It is understood that Dr. Eckener and his German backers intend to proceed with their South American experiment, and possibly extend theiroperations to the United States, by an exclusively-owned German line.

Luncheon at Embassy.

A luncheon engagement followed at the German Embassy as the guest of the Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz. The remainder of the day was spent largely in his hotel suite. Today Dr. Eckener will see Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, among several others.

The appearance of Dr. Eckener revived interest in the proposed transoceanic dirigible service, many details of which were revealed when Dr. Eckener was in this city in early April last year by J. C. Hunsaker, former Navy dirigible expert, now vice president of the International Transport Co., affiliated with the Goodyear Zeppelin Corpoation.

Dr. Eckener at that time made surveys throughout this section in seeking a base for dirigibles in the planned service. He and his party viewed sites at Laurel and Baltimore, Md.; the Hybla Valley region, south of Alexandria, and also Langley Field, Newport News, Petersburg and Richmond, Va.

Virginia Site Liked.

At that time Dr. Eckener expressed himself as pleased with the facilities offered in Virginia, but made no definite predictions regarding ultimate selection.

At hearings of the House interstate and foreign commerce committee several months ago Mr. Hunsaker testified that the American terminal would be chosen from one of three tentatively selected sites, including one close to Washington, one close to Richmond and one near Baltimore.

Dr. Eckener came here from Akron, Ohio, where he conferred with officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation regarding the proposed service, and in New York will discuss the matter further with bankers before sailing for Germany.

Florence Arrests Couples Who 'Neck'

Florence, Italy, March 11 (A.P.).—Since the Middle Ages Florence has been noted for its stern moral code. Now it has taken a new turn. Florentine police are raiding tea rooms and soda parlors, arresting young couples who display signs of affection for each other.

Pledge More Solemn Than Oath Is Sought

Dublin, March 11 (A.P.).—On the ground that the oath has been so debased by perjurers that it has lost all meaning, Chief Justice Kennedy has proposed that court witnesses should no longer be sworn.

He advocates instead some sort of solemn declaration of intention to tell the truth, such as the "Affirmation" permitted witnesses in America who object to the oath on religious grounds.

LAWYERS TO UNVEIL PORTRAIT OF JUDGE

Fredericksburg, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—Tribute will be paid to the late Judge R. H. L. Chichester tomorrow when Stafford County attorneys unveil his portrait at Stafford County Courthouse.

Judge Chichester served with distinction as judge of the Fifteenth judicial circuit, and later on the supreme court of appeals bench. The portrait is the gift to Stafford circuit court by lawyers who practiced at the Stafford bar before Judge Chichester.

Members of the State Supreme Court of Appeals and many prominent attorneys were expected from all parts of the State to attend the ceremonies.

William W. Butzner, of Fredericksburg, at the request of the Chichester family, will present the portrait. It will be accepted by Judge Frederick V. Coleman, who was named as Judge Chichester's successor on the circuit bench when the latter was appointed to the supreme court bench.

Judge Chichester died February 3, 1930, after a long period of ill health. He was a native and life-long resident of Stafford County, and held every judicial position in the Virginia system of jurisprudence.

Gen. Irwin's Body Reaches Brooklyn

Troops Line Pier as Ship Arrives From Panama With Remains.

The body of Maj. Gen. George Le Roy Irwin, who was to have taken command of the First Division in New York, March 7, arrived with that of Lieut. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, retired chief of Army Engineers, aboard the transport St. Mihiel in Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday.

Gen. Irwin died February 19 aboard the Italian liner Virgilio at Port of Spain, Trinidad, while returning from Europe to Panama. Troops lined the pier and a military band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," as the transport yesterday steamed into the Army base from Panama.

Three companies from the Eighteenth Infantry from Fort Hamilton, where Gen. Irwin last Saturday was to have taken command, were among those at the dock. Accompanied by his aid de camp, Capt. Charles A. Easterbrook, Gen. Irwin's body will be sent to West Point tomorrow for interment.

Views to Be Asked On Dry Law Work

Bureau to Seek Public's Opinion of Efforts on Enforcement.

(Associated Press.)

An effort to ascertain the public's view of work being done by the Federal dry forces has been initiatd by the Prohibition Bureau. Director Woodcock said yesterday deputy administrators in the twelve prohibition districts had been requested to send to Washington news clippings concerning enforcement activities.

In the past Mr. Woodcock said, printed news of some raids and other activities had been sent to headquarters here in addition to official reports, but no regular clipping service had been established.

A short time ago the Prohibition Bureau sent a questionnaire to newspapers throughout the country to ascertain their stand upon enforcement questions. This was recalled by official order, however, and the questions left unanswered.

Oklahoma Vigilante Kills Robber of Bank

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 11 (A.P.).—A vigilante today killed and unidentified bank robber as he emerged with pockets stuffed with currency from the First National Bank of Harrah, twenty miles east of here. The robber's companion, carrying $250 in silver, escaped.

The men aroused suspicions of Walker Folwell, the vigilante, when they entered the bank. Seizing a shotgun at his filling station across the street from the bank, he hid at the corner of the building and waited for them.

Bishop Fears Influence Of Radios on Religion

Durham, England, March 11 (A.P.). The Bishop of Durham, Dr. Hensley Henson, has his doubts as to the value of radio in aiding religion. "The practice of listening in may, in the case of very large numbers of half-hearted Christians, take the place of attendance at public worship," he said.

"I suspect that the mingle-mangle of unrelated and sometimes contradictory teachings which the wireless pours in the public mind, is creating a temperament of universal skepticism, which can not but be highly unfavorable to the reception of the Christian message."

MONTGMERY CIVIC BODY TO RECONVENE

Five Reports Will Be Filed as County Federation Resumes Session.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4206.

Five important reports will be presented to the Montgomery County Civic Federation at the continuation of its meeting tonight in the Bethesda School at 8 o'clock. The meeting was recessed Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock until tonight because of the large amount of unfinished business remaining after the heated debate on the admission of the two trade bodies in Kensington.

The reports will be presented by the committee on public finance and budget, which is headed by Frederic P. Lee, and will deal with county legislation affecting public finance.

Three reports have been made public heretofore. They deal with recommendations that the federation approve the legislation now pending in the General Assembly, the first of which provides for the appointment of a permanent board of assessors instead of assessors for each district, as at present, and for reassessment of one of each assessment area every five years, spreading the reassessment work through that time instead of making the reassessment each five years for all of the county and publication of assessment lists so that each man may see his neighbor's assessment.

The second report approves the issuance of bonds for school and road building and refinancing of existing indebtedness. The third approves the plan to provide a disbursing committee for the county.

In the fourth report made public yesterday by Mr. Lee, the committee indorses the policy of granting county taxpayers the alternative of payment of taxes in annual or semiannual installments. The semiannual payments would be made as follows: "In semiannual installments due July 1 and January 1, which if not paid by the following September 1 and March 1, respectively, shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum until paid and at any time after January 1 and July 1, respectively, next following, payment may be enforced by sale in the same manner as provided by existing law."

The fifth report deals with the legislation now before the General Assembly to amend the organic law of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The beneficial effect of park land on property value is cited by the committee, which points to the development of Essex County, New Jersey, where property adjoining public parks increased six times in value in ten years.

The committee recommends that the federation approve the legislation with an amendment eliminating authority to establish a sinking fund and requiring the issuance of the bonds in serial form only and reaffirming its previous stand that the State should contribute two-ninths of the cost of the park project.

The social welfare and school committees also have important reports and recommendations requiring action and these will be presented at tonight's meeting. President Stephen James has requested that every delegate and alternate be present.

Judge Robert B. Peter in Circuit Court at Rockville yesterday dismissed the suit for absolute divorce of Patrick A. Sugrue, a Washington bondsman, alleging desertion, and awarded alimony of $35 a week and custody of the minor daughter to the wife, Mrs. Helen R. Sugrue, of Washington.

Judge Peter ruled that where a party who previously had been in desertion offered to return and the other party refused to accept them that the second party was guilty of desertion. The wife is represented by F. Barnard Welsh, of Rockville.

A final decree of absolute divorce from David B. Ingram, of New York, N. Y., was awarded to Mrs. Carleane Ingram, of Montgomery County, yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter in Circuit Court at Rockville. The bill of particulars detailed desertion as the reason. The couple was married September 5, 1926, at Washington, and have no children. The wife was represented by Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Petworth.

Albert B. Watkins, of Bethesda, was awarded an absolute divorce from Mrs. Edna B. Watkins, of Bethesda, on the grounds of infidelity. The husband was awarded custody of the two children. The couple were married March 5, 1924. The husband was represented by Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville.

Three Negroes, two of whom were women, were arrested yesterday on charges of possession of whisky with intent to sell by Corporal Roy Snyder and Policeman Charles Barnes, of the Silver Spring Substation, Montgomery County police, following a short chase on the Colesville pike.

The driver gave his name as Melvin Edward Tate, Church street, near Fourteenth street northwest, and the women gave their names as Verdellor Henderson, 18, and Edith Faidley, 21, both of Baltimore, Md. Tate was charged yith failing to keep to the right of the center of the road in addition to the liquor charge. Police say there weer 96 quarts of alleged liquor in the car.

The Philathea Sunday School Class of Grace M. E. Church South, Gaithersburg, will present "The Wedding of Uncle Bim Gump and Mrs. Zander" and Funny Paper Review tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Gaithersburg High School. Fifty characters will take part in the production.

The Woman's Guild of Grace Church of Woodside will meet this morning at 11 o'clock in the Parish House.

Lazy boys are barred from the Henry County, Ala., 4-H Club, only youths who will do their work promptly and keep accurate records being members.

LABOR WORKER DIES AFTER AN OPERATION

George W. Lewis Succumbs in Capital; To Be Buried in Illinois.

George W. Lewis, who for more than ten years served as legislative representative here for the United Mine Workers of America, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital from complications following an appendicitis operation.

Stricken two weeks ago at his home at the Hamilton Hotel, he was operated on immediately. Since Sunday, when he took a serious turn for the worse, it was known that he could not live.

Mr. Lewis is survived by his wife, his mother, Mrs. Thomas H. Lewis, of Springfield, Ill.; two sisters, Miss Hattie Lewis, of Springfield, and Miss Edith Lewis, of Alburqueque, N. Mex.; and five brothers, all closely identified with the labor movement.

John L. Lewis, the oldest brother, who is president of the United Mine Workers, was in Washington during his illness. Other surviving brothers are Dennis Lewis, of the United States Employment Service; Howard Lewis, a mine superintendent of Buckner, Ill.; Thomas Lewis, also a mine superintendent, of Springfield, Ill., and Raymond Lewis, of Fort Wayne, Ill.

A native of Illinois, Mr. Lewis was educated in the public schools of that State, and for some time was associated with his brother John before he came here as legislative representative for the mine workers, an office formerly held by John L. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis was nursed through his illness here by his sister, Miss Hattie Lewis, who is a trained nurse. The body was to be sent today to Springfield, Ill., where funeral service will be conducted at the family home.

House Member Asks Public Utilities Inquiry

(Associated Press.)

A congressional investigation of "the whole field of public utilities" was demanded yesterday by Representative Rayburn, of Texas, ranking Democrat of the House interstate commerce committee. The Texan said a majority of the committee advocate an inquiry similar to that held in the past Congress on railroad-holding companies.

"Valuable and as surprising as some of the developments with reference to holding companies in the railroad field have been," Mr. Rayburn said, "the public mind is prepared to believe that more surprising and sensational developments would occur under an investigation of public utilities."

Less Than One-Fourth Of Drought Fund Issued

(Associated Press.)

The seed loan office of the Agricultural Department has approved 69,363 loans totaling $10,720,810 to farmers in the drought area. The loans are from the emergency $45,000,000 fund voted by Congress. This was an increase of more than $2,000,000 over last week, when loans totaled $8,439,781.

In the figures made public yesterday the Memphis regional office again led the other four offices with a total of 42,899 loans amounting to $6,629,349. The loans at the other offices were: St. Louis, 16,173, loans, $2,004,720; Washington, 7,669, loans, $1,313,166; Grand Forks, 1,789, loans, $644,410; Porth Worth, 853, loans, $129,165.

Steel Institute Survey Finds Trade Improving

(Associated Press.)

Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, told President Hoover yesterday he had "found business definitely on the up grade" on an extended trip just finished. He made a survey for the institute which took him from coast to coast.

"We found a confidence in the administration and the popularity of the President himself, that is improving every day," he said. Abbott also told the President he had been very much impressed by the lack of social upheavals which generally accompany an economic depression.

her in the pleasant delusion that she is living in a gay, glamorous world, he has earned it well.

"The gigolo is a professional man and if he supplies a need for happiness on the part of lonely women he should not be condemned for it.

"Take my own case. Right now I'm for sale to the woman who will pay the most to marry me. The only stipulation I make is that she have enough money to support me in the style to which I have been accustomed.

"She must agree to travel two-thirds of the year. I've toured the world, so I could act as guide. I haven't any moth-eaten titles, and I don't wear a red ribbon across my evening shirt, but my ancestors have been Virginians for the last 200 years."

Bushman was very much in earnest. When the interviewer smiled, he said:

"Don't laugh. I've never been more serious in my life. My intentions are honorable and decent. My life has been one glorious adventure and now that I've lost my fortune I can't see why it isn't perfectly legitimate for me to make some lonely and wealthy woman happy."

"Light haze will absorb about 10 per cent a thousand feet. In heavy haze the light can be seen a mile.

"Used in fighting fires, the searchlight can penetrate most every kind of smoke but the blackest pall."

The searchlight Pennow demonstrated is about 16 inches in diameter, or about as big around as a small dishpan. The lamp is in front of a concave ground glass mirror, about 15 inches in diameter, specially curved in three sets to parabolas, to focus every point on the glowing Tungsten filament.

So carefully is the mirror made, Pennow said, that its designing alone required three days of calculation, with the aid of calculating machines.

SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF GIRL IS SPURRED

Clew Involving Blond Hair Followed by Police in San Diego.

San Diego, Calif., March 11 (A.P.).—Every available agency of science and criminology was enlisted by authorities tonight in an effort to track down the fiendish slayer of 10-year-old Virginia Brooks, San Diego school girl, whose mutilated body was found on a lonely mesa near here yesterday.

Clarence Morrill, superintendent of the State bureau of identification in Sacramento, telephone Chief of Police Athur Hill that Gov. James Rolph, jr., had tendered every possible State aid in the search and that two trained investigators of the bureau were en route to San Diego to assist the sheriff and police.

Two persons taken into custody for questioning had not been connected with the crime and one was released. Harry M. Wahlstrom, 28, a poultry salesman, detained because some leaf mould was found in the burlap bag which contained the Brooks girl's body and neighbors had seen Wahlstrom working in some leaf mould on his ranch last Sunday, was released.

The other person detained was a feeble-minded boy living near Lemon Grove, a suburb. Officers said no clew was obtained from him, although he was questioned closely.

One promising clew being followed was a study of a blond hair found in the dead girl's hand. Under a high power microscope the hair was found to differ markedly from the hairs on the girl's head. Authorities thought it may have been torn from the head of her assailant in a desperate struggle she must have made trying to save her life.

A study of the girl's body, from which the head had been severed, also was being made in an effort to determine how the child was killed. She had been missing since February 11.

President Names June for Ohio Trip

(Associated Press.)

June 16 has been tentatively set as the date on which President Hoover will dedicate the Harding Memorial at Marion, Ohio. Former President Coolidge, who succeeded to the Presidency on the death of President Harding, also has been asked to participate in the ceremonies.

In an effort to arrange a date, the White House communicated with the Harding Memorial Association to ascertain if June 16 would be convenient. An official reply had not been received yesterday but the association announced at Marion that date would be satisfactory.

There is a possibility President Hoover may make other speeches on the trip.

Boy Is Sentenced For Setting Fires

Blaze in Barns of Father Caused Damage of About $10,000.

Melvin Wheeler, 14 years old, son of Harry K. Wheeler of Colesville, yesterday was ordered sent to the Maryland Training School for an indeterminate term by Judge Robert B. Peter in Juvenile Court at Rockville. The youth had confessed to setting fire to his father's barns and silo, causing damage of approximately $10,000.

The boy also confessed to setting fire to two other buildings near his home in the past two years. At first he told police of the Silver Spring substation that he had been slashed across the abdomen by a Negro who he caught firing the barns.

When Sergt. Guy L. Jones pointed out to him that a knife slash with enough impetus to cut his clothing in the manner his clothes were cut would inflict more than a scratch on his skin the youth confessed he started the fire "to see the engines run."

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ALEXANDRIA ASKED FOR CHARITIES FUND

Appeal for $1,400 Is Issued in Order to Continue Work Nine Weeks.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria United Charities has issued an appeal for contributions to continue the work of the organization for the next nine weeks, stating that $1,400 is needed and unless this amount is subscribed soon the charities board will be forced to discontinue its work of aiding the poor.

Elliott F. Hoffman offered a resolution that a special committee be appointed, with former Mayor William Albert Smoot as chairman, to write letters to some of the leading citizens of Alexandria asking donations. It was adopted.

Mrs. Effie L. Baggett stated the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church sent the recommendation to the society to adopt a plan of having baskets placed in stores for the reception of donations of food. Upon motion of John D. Normoyle this suggestion was adopted. Such baskets have already been placed by a number of King street merchants. Thomas Chauncey, treasurer, reported total receipts of $1,455.84, and expenditures of $1,248.87.

The Rev. Percy Foster Hall presided over the meeting in the absence of Chairman William Albert Smoot. Other members present were Mrs. Effie L. Baggett, Miss Virginia Burke, Mrs. T. Clifton Howard, Mrs. Otis H. Hullings, Miss Ellen McFarland, Miss Corinne T. Reardon, Mrs. Nettie Garner Thompson, Thomas Chauncey, Michael T. Dwyer, Elliott F. Hoffman and John D. Normoyle.

Mrs. Robert C. Howard, of Washington, who conducts a current events class for the American Association of University Women, will be principal speaker at the annual public relations dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club, at 7 o'clock this evening at George Mason Hotel. Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president, will preside and will be assisted by Mrs. Harry B. Caton, public relations chairman; Miss Catherine Johnson, general chairman, and Miss Corinne T. Reardon, program chairman. City officials and heads of various civic organizations will be the guests.

At the business meeting of the club Tuesday night Irving C. Root, engineer, for the local zoning commission, spoke on the map prepared for the zoning of the city, and the plans for the safeguarding of the city by building regulations.

Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president, and Miss Eleanor H. Watkins, vice president, who attended the meeting of the State executive board in Lynchburg last Saturday, gave reports on the preparations for the entertainment by Virginia of the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in Richmond, July 5-11. Different clubs of the State federation have been assigned as hostess to visiting State delegations, and Alexandria will be hostess to Nevada, New Jersey and Washington. Mrs. Troth, State research chairman, will have the charge of looking after the national research chairman, Dr. Lilliam Gilbreth; Miss Margaret Germond, of the local club, State vice president, will be hostess to Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, past national president, and now president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Virginia now has 23 clubs with a membership of 858.

The April meeting of the local club will mark the tenth anniversary of its organization, and Mrs. Geline Bowman, of Richmond, first State president, who organized the Alexandria club, will be honor guest and address the club on the forthcoming convention. Election of officers will also be held at that meeting, and Mrs. Fletcher Dyson, Miss Alice Gronau and Miss Mary Monroe were named a nominating committee.

A radio program was given under auspices of the club yesterday, with a talk on the federation by Mrs. Harry B. Caton, violin selections by Miss Grace Powell and vocal selections by Mrs. Albert M. Briggs, accompanied by Mrs. D. C. Book. In connection with the educational program for National Business Women's Week a talk will be given tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock at George Mason High School by Grace Humphries.

Announcement has been made of the Boy Scouts who passed the inspection test, ten in the first class and eleven in the second, this week.

Those who made the first-class test are William Cunningham, Stuart Abraham, Edward H. Roberts, jr., Clyde Bogda, Stanley Fedder, Richard Stultz, of Troop No. 126 of the Second Presbyterian Church; Joseph Berkow, of Troop 134 of Christ Church; Harry Travers Linden Swan, of Troop 146 of the Del Ray Baptist Church, and Vio Marks, of Troop No. 169 of Grace Church.

Second class—Stuart Sutherland, Walter Cornell, Troop No. 126, Second Presbyterian Church; Chester Clark, Richard Padgett, Elwood Markell, Troop No. 134, Christ Church; Norman Burch, Given Tuthill, Troop No. 141, Methodist Episcopal Church South; Roberts Gills, Troop 146, Del Ray Baptist Church; James Dove, William Bettis, Troop No. 169, Grace Church; Mitchell Burroughs, Troop No. 143, St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The annual inspection of the scouts will be held tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Co. Building.

Dr. W. E. Martin, of the Arlington Hall School, will address the meeting of the Kiwanis Club today at 12:30 o'clock at the luncheon meeting in the George Mason Hotel. Norman L. Williamson, program chairman, will present the speaker.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 11.—Approximately 3,000,000 young red cedar trees have been cut down and burned in Frederick County since the cedar-cutting campaign was inaugurated recently, it was announced today by William Beverley, chairman of the committee of the Frederick County Fruit Growers' Association, in charge of the work.

Most of the cutting of trees was confined this year to the southwestern section, and near Cedar Creek. The work was completed today by large numbers of men wielding axes under the direction of team captains, who kept an account of the number of trees destroyed.

None of the trees were of sufficient size to use for lumber, and virtually all were burned. Mr. Beverley said little or no objection was made by landowners, and that the campaign just concluded was the most successful since cedar-cutting to protect apple orchards from cedar rust infection was legalized by State law some years ago.

Pleasant Grove Forms 4-H Club

Franklin Perrin Is Elected President of Organization to Raise Poultry.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 11.—A 4-H poultry club was formed at Pleasant Grove, this county, with Franklin Perrin as president. The other officers are John Clark, vice president; George Grant, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Perry Wilson, local leader. Other members are Harry Northcraft, Ralph O'Neal, Perry Wilson, jr., Ralph Michaels, Walter Norris and Wallace McGill.

The first county meeting of boys owning dairy calves was held, with eighteen participating. These officers were chosen: Sherwood Ringler, Flintstone, president; Granville Shumaker, Rawlings, vice president; Byron H. Kiser, jr., Pinto, secretary. There was discussion of plans for the training of a 4-H dairy cattle judging team, to represent Allegany County in a State judging contest, to be conducted at the Farmers Federation picnic, and the fitting and showing contest, held during fair week at Cumberland.

The next county meeting is scheduled for July and will be in the form of a tour and field meeting.

Girl Throws Soap Dish As Burglar Takes Loot

Baltimore, March 11 (A.P.).—Miss Loretta Wallein was resentful when a Negro burglar ran from her third-floor apartment early today with her pocketbook. She sprang to the window and, as the man ran from the street entrance, she hurled a soap dish. It struck him on the head, but threw him off his stride only momentarily.

The girl's screams brought several men from a church across the street, and they gave chase, but the intruder escaped. Miss Wallein, who is 21, and five young brothers and sisters were alone when the man entered. The parents were at church.

PARK BONDS FOUGHT IN PRINCE GEORGES

Citizens' Delegation Opposes Passage of Issue Bill at Annapolis.

Arguments for and against the $800,000 bond issue bill for the purchase of park lands in Prince Georges County were heard when a delegation from the Mount Rainier Citizens' Association went to Annapolis to protest against passage of the bill.

T. Howard Duckett, a member of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, defended the bill, declaring that the objection of increased taxation could not apply "to this great gift from the Federal Government." He was alluding to the fact that the bonds would not have to be issued for eight years, as the sum could be borrowed from the Federal Government, which would also contribute $400,000 outright.

Bird H. Dolby was chief speaker of the delegation against the bill. He asked that if the measure is passed, that a referendum clause be added, giving the people of the county a chance to register their approval or disapproval of the bond issue.

Mr. Dolby said that the tax rate which would be necessary to pay off the bonds would be 22 cents per $100 on the present valuation of $35,163,481 in the metropolitan area. Mr. Duckett replied that the rate would be only 5 cents per $100 on the estimated valuation in 1940 of $80,000,000.

Mr. Dolby said that a levy of 7 cents per $100 would be necessary for the upkeep of the proposed park system, but Mr. Duckett said that while no estimate of the upkeep cost had been made, Montgomery County had done very well on a levy of 4½ cents.

Among others who spoke on the bill was Delegate Oliver Metzerott, who said that no appropriation for the Federal aid had been passed and therefore no money was available. Irvin Owings, chairman of the Park and Planning Commission, said that the legality of a referendum on the bill was doubtful. "Misinformation" about the bill has caused much of the opposition to it, according to both Owings and Duckett.

Others of the delegation were B. E. Sager, who also spoke; Leonard Green, J. W. O'Hara, Rexford Worley, W. E. Lineberry and C. E. Emery.

A fire, thought to have been incendiary, caused damage of about $5,000 early yesterday to the broom factory at the House of Reformation at Cheltenham, Md. The blaze apparently started on three floors at once, according to J. F. Ripple.

The building, of brick and steel construction, was not greatly damaged, but the stock of brooms was almost destroyed. No investigation will be made, according to A. S. Ripple, owner of the factory, unless by the insurance company. The plant was fully insured. Fire engines from Washington, La Plata, Marlboro, Capitol Heights and Greater Capitol Heights fought the flames.

The $750,000 estimated cost of the proposed Lanham-Severn road might be as low as $480,000, according to an argument presented by John E. Nichols to the House ways and means committee of the Maryland legislature at a public hearing on the measure. A bill authorizing a bond issue for the construction is now pending before the legislature.

Both Nichols and Thomas P. Littlepage appeared before the committee as spokesmen for the Lanham-Severn Road Association. Mr. Littlepage said that the road would benefit about 5,000 persons directly and would open up an undeveloped section of the State.

Following a compromise between members of the county delegation to the Legislature and representatives of the County Volunteer Firemen's Association, the bill increasing the county fire aid from $5,000 to $15,000 was reported ready for introduction. The compromise resulted in a reduction of the proposed fund from $17,500 to $15,000.

The compromise bill does not provide the basis on which the money will be divided among the nineteen fire companies in the association. A division on the basis of equipment owned by the companies, rather than on the present pro rata basis, is likely, however.

Pleading that she was the support of a family, the $200 fine placed against Mrs. Olga Kisser, of Springfield, was reduced to $100 yesterday in Prince Georges County police court. The woman had been convicted on a charge of possession of a still, whisky and mash.

Mrs. Kisser paid the fine and was released. The raid was made by Officers Claude Reese and R. E. Brown.

A second woman, Mrs. Anna Booth, of Riverdale, was fined $150 for possession of whisky, mash and beer. Reese made this raid. Miss Inez Hockman, the third woman tried, was fined $50 for possession, though charges of keeping a disorderly house were dismissed. The house raided was in Edmonston.

A speed, said to have been more than 60 miles an hour, caused a fine of $100 against Francis X. Morley, of Penn street near West Virginia avenue northeast, Washington. Constable Howard Slater said he chased the man at 67 miles an hour and was unable to catch him until he slowed down to turn off the Baltimore boulevard at the University of Maryland.

Samuel P. Boyden, of H street northwest near Twenty-second street, Washington, was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 or spend six months in jail for possession. He was also fined $5 for having no permit.

Earl A. Horsley, of Southern avenue near Thirty-sixth street southeast, Washington, was fined $1 for having dead tags and $1 for no registration card. Charges of reckless driving and using a car without proper authority were dismissed. Horsley was charged with having driven his car away from a Maryland garage after it had been attached.

Convicted of transportation and possession of liquor, Sidney Sonnebaum, of Baltimore, was fined $200. An additional fine of $5 was placed against him when Constable Slater and Officer Reese said that he was speeding.

George E. McGrath, of U street southeast near Sixteenth street, Washington, forfeited $110 on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving. Fred H. Miller forfeited the same amount on the same charges.

Horace Taylor, keeper of the Marlboro Jail until last December, has been nominated by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie for the vacant post of justice of the peace in Marlboro. This completes the nominations for these posts throughout the county.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Edwin William Guilford, who died at his home in Hyattsville on Monday at the age of 65. He was buried in Fort Lincoln Cemetery after ceremonies by Mount Hermon Masonic Lodge, No. 179, of which he had been a member for ten years.

His widow, Mrs. Alberta Guilford, was unable to attend the funeral, being in Garfield Hospital with a broken hip received several days ago. Mr. Guilford had been for many years in the Postoffice Department in Washington.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons, Edwin, jr., of Washington, and Elmer, who lives in Hyattsville. There are also two daughters, Mrs. Richard Pierce, of Vienna, Va., and Miss Ann Guilford, who lives in Hyattsville.

PLAN TO BEAUTIFY COUNTY APPROVED

Fairfax Chamber Indorses Program Sponsored by Bicentennial Body.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon, 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce at its regular meeting in the auditorium of the Anandale School, indorsed the movement to beautify northern Virginia prior to the George Washington bicentennial celebration next year. A committee, including Capt. Thurlow White as chairman, Edward C. Gibbs, Martin T. Webb, Miss Ludema Sayre and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, with Miss Sarah E. Thomas, county home demonstration agent, and H. B. Derr, county farm agent, as ex-officio members, was appointed to cooperate with a central committee organized by the Real Estate Board of Arlington and Fairfax Countries and Alexandria City.

Each member of the chamber was asked personally to participate in the yard and garden contest in Fairfax County, under the direction of Mr. Deer, the better garden campaign sponsored by Miss Thomas and the county home demonstration agent's advisory council, and the better homes movement, under the direction of Mrs. D. J. Garber.

Protest Fishing Ruling.

A committee composed of John W. Rust, Dr. P. W. Huddleson and Mrs. Vosbury was appointed to represent the chamber at the ceremony which will mark the ground breaking for the new 200 foot Lee boulevard this month at Fort Buffalo, near Falls Church.

On motion of Herbert O. Blunt, the chamber adopted a resolution addressed to the Virginia Commission on Game and Inland Fisheries, protesting against its ruling prohibiting commercial fishing on inland waters. This ruling deprives almost 100 citizens of Fairfax County, who fish in the Potomac River below Alexandria, and have thousands of dollars invested in fishing equipment, of their livelihood, it was stated. A committee consisting of President Edmund H. Allen, Herbert O. Blunt, John P. Haislip, John W. Brookfield and Alton Lynn, was also appointed to represent the chamber at a meeting of the commission in Alexandria on Monday, to make a verbal protest against the ruling.

Congartulations Extended.

The chamber instructed Secretary C. C. Carr to write Dr. S. M. Johnson, congratulating him on the success of the Lee Boulevard Association in getting the 200-foot right-of-way for the boulevard, which is to be built this summer. Martin T. Webb, C. H. Powell and W. S. Hoge, jr., were appointed a committee to interview the State Highway Commission, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and other authorities, in an effort to secure a new road connecting Columbia pike with the southeast corner of the Arlington National Cemetery.

Capt. White, chairman of the special committee in charge of the chamber's banquet in aFirfax next Wednesday, stated that more than 100 persons had already signified their intentions of being present.

The next meeting of the chamber will be held on the second Tuesday in April, in the Community Hall at Merrifield on the Lee highway.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will hold a special meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in the county courthouse. The tentative budget for the fiscal year of 1931-32 on which the public hearing was held last week, will be passed upon. The budget as finally adopted will be the basis of tax rates for the six magisterial districts of the county. The tax rates will be set at the regular meeting of the board in April.

For the month of February 833 cows were tested in the Fairfax Dairy Herd Improvement Association, No. 2. Of this number there were 87 dry cows, 62 cows producing 40 or more pounds of butter fat, 29 cows on the honor roll, and 22 cows sold to the butcher. The average of this association was 626.6 pounds of milk and 26.24 pounds of butter fat.

Sunset Hills Farm was credited with the largest number of honor roll cows, and also with the highest individual cow record. This cow produced 2,128 pounds of milk and 65.9 pounds of butter fat. The highest individual herd record was again made by the herd of guernsey cows owned by A. M. Schuerman. This is the second time this herd has lead the association this year. Another feature cited in connection with this herd was the cost of production of $1.66 per 100 pounds of milk and $0.352 per pound of butter fat, and a good return for each dollar expended for feed at the rate of $2.61 per 100 pounds produced.

Herds producing 30 or more pounds of butter fat during the month of February were owned by the following: Mrs. S. Ulfelder, O. K. Miller, Jenkins & Wilson, C. T. Rice and J. S. Barbour. The honor roll list was announced as follows: Sunset Hills, 9; J. S. Barbour and Jenkins & Wilson, 4 each; O. K. Miller and A. M. Schuerman, 3 each; Mrs. S. Ulfelder, 2; T. B. Mason, R. R. Farr, C. T. Rice and Kidwell Bros., 1 each.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Crossman Methodist Church at Falls Church will hold its meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. C. Shorey.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Falls Church Episcopal Church will meet this morning at the home of Mrs. R. A. Castleman. Miss Nancy Lee Taskett, of Alexandria, will address the meeting.

Special Strike Police Ordered to Disband

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 11.—Judge Turner Clement, of the Pittsvivania Circuit Court, has ordered the special unit of county police recruited during the recent textile strike, disbanded.

Twenty of the 30 men were released two weeks ago, and now the remaining ten have been ordered to turn in their badges. The unit was under the direction of Lindsey Lee Moore.

Four Years Given In Abduction Case

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 11.—After deliberating for five hours, a Patrick County Circuit jury here today found Junius Scoggin guilty of abduction and attempted attack upon Miss Mary Norman, Martinsville school teacher, and sentenced him to serve four years in the penitentiary.

Motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Turner Clement, but sentence was suspended for 60 days to permit application for a writ of error.

The defense plea was that the prosecutrix had willingly accompanied the defendant on a night motor trip from Martinsville to Patrick County and that there was no compulsion. The State contended that the girl was given a "doped" drink in a Martinsville drug store and was carried away against her wishes.

VETERANS' HOSPITAL IN MARYLAND ASKED

General Assembly Seeking 300-Bed Structure; Need Is Cited.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 11.—Seeking to have the Federal Government construct a general medical and surgical hospital for veterans in Maryland, the General Assembly today adopted a joint resolution directed to the United States administrator of veterans affairs, who has discretionary authority as to the location of such questions under the act of Congress appropriating funds for the purpose.

The resolution sets forth that Maryland is without a hospital of the type to care for disabled veterans, and asks that a hospital of not less than 300 beds capacity be provided.

The ways and means committee returned an unfavorable report on the proposed soldiers' bonus bill, of which Delegate Shemanski, of Baltimore County, is sponsor.

Another fight was precipitated in the House when the same committee submitted an adverse report on a joint resolution calling for a State expenditure of $500,000 for reshelling water of Chesapeake Bay as part of an oyster culture program.

Other actions of Statewide interest include the Senate's approval of the declarations of intentions repealer bill in connection with elections, with an amendment that it shall become operative immediately after enactment; bills by Senator Beck, of Kent County, calling on the governor to appoint a uniform legislation commission of three nonsalaried men to study unification of statutes, and revision of the extradition laws. Two bills proposing local legislation for Prince Georges County were introduced in the House today by the county delegation.

One of the measures provides, subject to a referendum to the citizens, for the incorporation of the subdivisions of Cheverley and South Cheverly formerly known as Colony, and places the government of the community in a mayor and town council of four members, who would serve without pay and have powers similar to those vested in other municipal bodies.

Other bill authorizes an appropriation of $15,000 for the benefit of the volunteer firemen's association of the county.

Former Judge, 71, Gets Dry Law Fine

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 11.—Lee J. Graves, 71-year-old King George County farmer, one-time justice of peace, judge and former commonwealth attorney of Spottsylvania County and active church worker, pleaded guilty in King George County Court today to violation of the prohibition laws. Graves was fined $75 and costs with a 30-day suspended jail sentence on each of four indictments. He also was placed under $500 bond.

Judge E. Hugh Smith, of Heathsville, sitting without a jury, imposed the sentence, in part disregarding the recommendation of Commonwealth Attorney Billingsley for a minimum fine of $50 with suspended jail sentence in each case.

Graves was indicted on the evidence of two Negroes who testified they had become intoxicated on cider purchased from Graves. The jail sentences were suspended because of Graves' ill health.

Girl, 11, Killed; Cousin Is Accused

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., March 11.—Augusta County authorities tonight were in a quandary as to steps to take against Medford F. Gregory, 10, who late this afternoon allegedly fired a shotgun at his cousin, Marjorie Gregory, 11, and killed her instantly. The shooting occurred at the home of Medford's father, Frank Gregory, near Craigsville, 22 miles southwest of Staunton. Magistrate I. M. Smith, of Craigsville, conducted preliminary investigation, stating no adults were present at the shooting.

Four or five children were in the house when Marjorie is said to have stumbled over a chair and receiving slight injuries, said she wished she were dead. The story goes that Medford went to an adjoining room, loaded the shotgun with buckshot shell, returned and fired at the girl. The load struck her in her head.

Magistrate Smith stated Medford asserted he did not intend to kill his cousin, but merely wanted to scare her. Powder burns about the wound indicated the shot was fired at close range.

S. S. Fisher Rites Held.

Cumberland, Md., March 21 (Special).—Funeral services for Sanford S. Fisher, 79, one of Cumberland's oldest business men, who came from Revolutionary ancestry, was held this afternoon. The Rev. Harry Evaul, pastor of Center Street Methodist Episcopal Church, officiated. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

200 ARE BANQUETED IN ARLINGTON LODGE

County Commissioner Will Assist Residents With Tax Returns.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 506. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., held its tenth annual banquet last night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon with more than 200 persons attending.

The invocation was given by the Rev. William F. Wolf of the Arlington Presbyterian Church. Wilfred E. Lawson, past grand master of Odd Fellows in the District of Columbia, was toastmaster. The address of welcome was delivered by the noble grand, S. H. Leary.

Among the speakers were former Governor of South Carolina, P. A. Cooper; F. L. Flynn, of Alexandria, deputy grand master of Virginia; Mrs. Ida C. Wolfe, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Virginia; Mrs. Lillian Cunningham, vice president of the Rebekah Assembly of Virginia; H. L. Anderson, secretary of the grand lodge of the District of Columbia.

The program included a reading by Miss Flora Heins, of Arlington, and songs by Allen White and Troxall Simonton. Music was furnished by the Reformed Church Sunday School orchestra.

The banquet was prepared and served by the ladies of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge, No. 28.

Cooperating in the movement sponsored by the Arlington County Civic Federation for the formation of a joint committee for the bicentennial, the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce appointed the following committee: Louis C. Carl, Wallace Lancaster, F. S. Loos, Frank G. Campbell and Clarence R. Ahalt.

President Louis C. Carl announced the appointment of the following committee to formulate plans for the community chest in 1932: Monroe H. Stockett, State Senator Frank L. Ball, S. Groome Eareckson and David R. Collins.

The committee is to make a complete survey of the question of the establishment of a community chest for Arlington County next year.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier is announced as the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Arlington County Monarch Club, to be held today at noon at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green announces that his office will be open tonight, tomorrow night and Monday night to assist taxpayers in the preparation of income tax returns. Filing of returns does not come under the commissioner's office, but as a courtesy he states that he wil gladly assist any one. Returns must be made on or before Mach 16.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Paul Harris, of Washington, will be the principal speaker.

With the work on the Mount Vernon boulevard in progress Alexandria leaders declared yesterday that officials of Arlington County should make some effort to have at least one adequate approach to the boulevard from the county.

It is pointed out that motorists from Arlington County will have no access to the boulevard except at the approach at the Highway Bridge and in Alexandria.

It was learned yesterday that the Government contemplates the purchase of land in the vicinity of Four Mile Run to establish a park along the boulevard.

Further support was given to the movement being sponsored by the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association to have the county take over Washington street from the intersection of Wilson boulevard and Court street as an adequate approach to the new Arlington Memorial Bridge by the East Falls Church Citizens Association at its meeting last night by the appointment of the following committee to work on the project. The committee is composed of Philip Talbott, Dr. J. W. Brown, Philip Nourse and Mrs. Harry E. Moran.

L. C. McNemar, chairman of the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association announced last night that plans are now under way for a joint meeting of all associations in favor of the project to be held early next week.

While all associations have appointed committees and all are ready and anxious to get to work, the movement is still to be held up until the map can be obtained from the county engineer.

Chairman McNemar states that the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Cloth, who is chairman of the right of way committee, are tied until he can obtain the map.

The Virginia State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Rosslyn Business Men's Association, a nonstock corporation with its principal officers at Rosslyn.

B. W. Spille is the president of the corporation.

The charter provides that the purpose of the association is for the advancement of the commercial, industrial and general interests of Arlington County.

CLEVER COOKS USE SUGAR TO SEASON FOOD

Improves the Taste-appeal and Increases Nourishment of the Dish

There is no need to deny yourself flavor when you eat essential foods. According to leading nutritional authorities and dietitians, the use of sugar to season vegetables, meat dishes and fruits is entirely proper.

Sugar adds zest to essential foods which carry vitamins, mineral salts and roughage. It heightens the "taste" of peas, beans, spinach and other vegetables. It improves the flavor of meat stews and makes them more palatable. In the case of fresh fruits, sugar modifies harsh acids.

In vegetable and meat cookery, a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a popular rule of clever cooks. The great value of seasoning and flavoring foods with sugar is that it makes them more enjoyable. Too often essential foods are rejected, especially by children, because they are not pleasing to the taste. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

NORRIS SIDESTEPS.

It is too early to determine whether the so-called Progressive conference is to be merely a wastebasket to receive warmed-over speeches by senators whose "damned iteration" long ago tired out the Senate, or whether the delegates shall be really progressive and take up the subjects that interest the public. Apparently if Senator Norris has his way the delegates will find themselves restricted to the simple duty of drinking in and approving what he and his senatorial colleagues propose. He evidently intends to sidestep outstanding controversial questions, such as prohibition, although his attention has been specifically called to this issue by Senator Watson, who asks the Progressives to discuss it and take a position upon it.

Prohibition is called a "false issue" by Senator Norris. Perhaps it is a false issue to him, since he has posed as a dry and at the same time supported and voted for Al Smith in 1928. Of course, no issue is embarrassing to a man who can straddle it. Senator Norris can answer criticism from the drys by proclaiming his long devotion to the dry cause before 1928. He can turn around and pacify the wets by pointing to his support of Al Smith. He is both wet and dry, and neither one. So he may be telling the truth when he says he regards prohibition as a "false issue."

Of course, Senator Watson threw the prohibition question into the Progressive conference merely to stir up dissension. What Senator Norris desires is to keep public attention fastened upon the "power trust." Therefore he refuses to consider the questions propounded by Senator Watson, and disposes of the matter by calling Mr. Watson a lobbyist. That is his method of sidestepping the question, How do the Progressives stand on prohibition?

The Progressive delegates had the pleasure of listening to the "power" speech by Senator Norris—the speech that he has so often delivered in the Senate with such devastating effect upon the attendance of senators. All his points were assembled; the starvation of the masses of Americans within sight of mountains of gold piled up by their brutal taskmaster, the power trust; the imbecility, cowardice and corruption of every one except Senator Norris himself in the face of this appalling specter, and the hopelessness of any plan of rescue, except the Norris plan.

The majority of Americans might innocently inquire why the "power trust" is not throttled by the United States Government, if it is so monstrous. Senator Norris shows that this question is foolish. Regulation of the power trust is impossible because the trust would corrupt or overpower the regulators. The Government of the United States, in plain words, is feeble and corruptible. It is incompetent to regulate the power trust. Its officers can be purchased, and many of them are already corrupted by the trust. Mr. Norris has plainly suggested that the President of the United States is in sympathy with the power trust. Therefore no help is to be expected from him.

There is only one remedy. The Government must become a power trust itself. It must drive out monopoly by becoming a greater monopoly. Since it is corruptible and likely to be purchased, its only recourse is to abandon the business of government and go into the power business. With its resources, based upon taxation taken from the people, it can set itself up as a power trust and drive the private trust out of the field.

This is the plan laid before the Progressives by Senator Norris. They can take it or leave it. If they take it, they are true Progressives, and well on the glorious path to sovietism. If they reject it, they are Republicans, corruptionists, and betrayers of the starving millions who are writhing under the heel of the power trust.

REPUBLICAN DISCORDS.

Just as Senator Fess was ready to "go into high gear" in preparation for the next Republican campaign, James Francis Burke threw the machine into reverse, and there was a sudden stripping of gears. The chairman of the national committee would make politics lively all summer. The committee's general counsel declares a political holiday on the theory that "the American people are already suffering from an overproduction of politics."

Who speaks for the Republican party? Can Senator Fess demand a mobilization of Republicans to sound the drums of conquest throughout the land at a time when congressmen are seeking out their own constituencies to find which way the wind is blowing? Can Mr. Burke sit on that volcano called politics and prevent its eruption while citizens gather the flowers of prosperity in nearby fields? Apparently these two oracles of Republicanism are running on self-generated energy which allows them to exaggerate their own importance in the battle of wits scheduled for 1932.

Chairman Fess would probably resent the inference that his suggestion was inspired by Mr. Raskob's attempt to formulate the Democratic issues a year and a half in advance. Yet his preparations for going into battle make any other conclusion difficult. No campaign can be launched until the issues have been drawn. Does Senator Fess intend to furnish the Republican party with a brand-new platform?

It is apparent that neither of these spokesmen invokes any authority but his own. Certainly neither spoke for President Hoover, the head of the party. When the President is ready to make his position clear no doubt he will do so himself. His vetoes of the bonus and Muscle Shoals bills give him a reputation for clear and forceful expression. Mr. Hoover needs no spokesman to set forth his position.

A constant ebullition of politics will continue in spite of business, and in spite of national chairmen and general counsels. From every corner of the land the Republican electorate will speak. It behooves the spokesmen for the national committee to give heed to these still small voices before "going into gear," either forward or reverse.

AMERICAN OCEAN LINERS.

Construction of the two superliners planned by the United States Lines, Inc., has been indefinitely postponed. An announcement from the Shipping Board indicates that the building of these vessels is contingent upon a change in rates allowed for carrying mail which will require action by Congress. The outlook for launching two American vessels of superior speed and luxury in the North Atlantic trade, therefore, takes on a very gloomy aspect.

The contract under which the Shipping Board sold the Leviathan and other large passenger vessels to the Chapman interests calls for construction of two superliners, costing not less than $22,000,000 each, by 1933. It is certain that that part of the contract can not be fulfilled, since it requires more than three years to complete vessels of that magnitude even after construction has begun. No steps for financing the project will be taken, according to reports from the Shipping Board, until an adjustment of fast overseas mail rates has been made.

Failure to construct these proposed superliners would be a blow to the American merchant marine. They were designed to capture for American interests much of the tourist trade in the North Atlantic. The United States is engaged in a race with Great Britain and Germany for this passenger business. Germany has put the Europa and Bremen in operation and British interests are preparing to enter new liners in this service. Unless the United States Lines meets this competition the cream of the tourist trade, which is mostly American, will go into foreign pockets.

Plans of the Chapman interests have been changed since they acquired the United States Lines. Instead of building two $22,000,000 vessels capable of 30 knots per hour they now aim to build two 50,000-ton vessels capable of 33 knots at a cost of $32,000,000 each. If this program were carried out it would give the United States leadership in the North Atlantic trade, but its consummation is hopeless without adjustment of mail rates in recognition of the faster service offered.

This question will undoubtedly come before Congress early in the next session. The development of the merchant marine concerns the entire Nation, as it is not only the agency of foreign commerce, but a most important adjunct to the Navy for national defense. Such vessels as the United States Lines proposes to build are really cruisers fitted for peace-time service. They would become an integral part of the American naval force in event of war. Plans for their construction can not be abandoned without serious detriment to American interests.

NEW YORK CORRUPTION.

Every day brings forth new evidence of official corruption in New York. Investigations furnish evidence that calls for new investigations. The courts, the police, prosecuting officials, even Mayor Walker himself, are involved in charges of failure to enforce the law. It begins to look as if corruption would be revealed wherever the skin of the Tammany tiger is punctured.

A few days ago Mayor Walker declared he was "more or less shocked" at the revelations of vice and murder. New York's Society for Prevention of Crime seems to think that the mayor meant "less" rather than "more." The organization has filed charges of negligence against him and asked for an investigation of the whole city administration.

In another quarter a committee of 1,000 citizens is being organized to further investigations of public corruption and to mobilize public opinion. A religious movement in protest against existing conditions is also taking shape. One group of churches has petitioned Gov. Roosevelt to take immediate steps to correct this "appalling" situation and to restore the confidence of the people in the city government. Apparently New York is awakening from its lethargy to a realization of the fact that organized crime has its grip on its municipal administration.

The district attorney, whose business it is to prosecute criminals that prey upon the public, is under investigation. One of the special investigators into the corruption of magistrates' courts is under indictment in connection with the failure of the United States Bank. A witness scheduled to testify against police officers who are charged with "framing" innocent victims was murdered, and a series of tragedies followed in the wake of that crime. The police have no solution for this and many other gang murders. It is not surprising that the people are losing confidence in the agencies set up for the public protection and the administration of justice.

The situation is complicated by a crossing of political currents. Gov. Roosevelt stands between Tammany Hall, which is trying to keep the lid on this seething caldron of corruption, and the people, who demand a housecleaning. By appointing a special commissioner to investigate the attorney general's office Gov. Roosevelt has indicated that he prefers to stand with the people. But it remains to be seen whether he can bring about a complete exposure of New York's official rackets.

THE PROPOSED MOTORISTS' TAX.

Kansas has been taken as the leading example of the fight of the small oil well owners to secure an embargo on the importation of foreign oil, largely because Senator Capper led the unsuccessful fight to force the embargo measure through the last session of Congress. But seven States are interested in this legislation to make profitable the wells that yield a few barrels a day. They are Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Kansas, California, Arkansas and Wyoming.

A meeting has just been held at Texarkana, Tex., at which representatives from all these States gathered to prepare a program of agitation to be continued until Congress convenes, when strenuous efforts will be made to secure the passage of a bill to subsidize the small wells.

The purpose of the Texas gathering was frankly stated: Curtailment of the production of the larger companies and limitation of the importation of cheap foreign oil, for the purpose of raising the domestic price of oil, so that the little wells can be made profitable.

An embargo on foreign oil would result in an increase in the price of all oil in the United States of virtually 100 per cent; in other words, about $1 a barrel.

Experts estimate that for every 11 to 12 cents increase in cost of oil per barrel the price of gasoline must be increased 1 cent per gallon. The increased charge of 8 cents a gallon for gasoline, applied to the 12,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline used in this country every year, would be an extra tax of $1,000,000,000 annually. This is the price which the small oil producers demand of the American public for the sake of making unprofitable oil wells profitable.

A smoke screen thrown up by the oil embargo pleaders is that it is the big American companies that are trying to prevent the oil embargo. This may be true of one American company, the Standard of Indiana, which has large production in Venezuela, but what of the other large companies, like the Standard of New Jersey; the Gulf and the Sinclair? Recent official figures show that these and a few others have in storage in this country over 660,000,000 barrels of oil. The embargo, if put into effect, would increase the value of this oil $1 a barrel. Who would pay that bill? Not one word of opposition to the embargo bill has come from the companies with big storage reserves.

The propaganda of the so-called independent oil producers is, in effect, a proposal to tax automobilists $1,000,000,000 a year extra, most of which would go into the coffers of the big oil concerns.

THE SENATE HOLDUP

From the Wall Street Journal.

The Constitution of the United States imposes a duty on one man—the President—either to approve or to veto legislation enacted by a majority vote in both houses of Congress. The "liberal" rules of the most exclusive club on earth—the United States Senate—permit one man, to the extent of his physical strength and mental facility, to block, in effect veto, any pending legislation.

A flagrant case disgraced the closing session of the Senate last week. Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, shortly before midnight on Tuesday, obtained the floor to move adoption of a resolution for a study of the oil industry. The motion being held by the presiding officer to be debatable, there was no way to get Senator Thomas off the floor except by unanimous agreement to set a time for a vote.

At 1:10 a. m. Wednesday, the exhausted Senate obtained a few hours rest only by unanimous agreement that Senator Thomas should retain the floor after a recess until 9 o'clock. At that hour he resumed his aimless remarks and continued them until the Vice President at noon declared the Seventy-first Congress at an end. Senator Thomas accomplished nothing for his constituents and succeeded only in preventing any Senate action on several important measures, including the international copyright and immigration restriction bills. The Senate could not even make its traditional gesture of sending a committee to notify the President that it was about to adjourn.

The ancient Kingdom of Poland had a diet which could act only by unanimous vote. As a result its members spent their time in futile discussion, while the kingdom slowly declined to its partition among neighboring powers. The Senate has with its absurd rules similarly robbed itself of parliamentary virility. Perhaps the humiliating last hours of its recent session will move it to reform next winter. Until it abandons its obsolete procedure it will remain inferior to the House in legislative power and popular respect.

POST HASTE.

Chairman Fess says the Republican committee has been running along easily. Isn't this, then, a good time to sit down and rest and give the country a rest?

Late reports from Peru say the mountain Incas threaten to frustrate plans to establish a stable government. But a stable government requires horse sense.

Not very good team work between Chairman Fess and Councilor Burke. We remain neutral for two days, before deciding in favor of the latter's diagnosis of too much politics already.

It's pleasant to write for an audience of sophisticates in a national capital. It also presents some difficulties. If you mention the earthquake that occurred in Timbuctu in 1888, next morning appears a gent to say: "You're wrong; it was in 1887; I know, because I was there."

The largest majority in a recent magazine poll of members of Congress on the question of modification of the dry laws was shown in the discrepancy between what they thought and the way they would vote.

Isn't there some way whereby Borah's export bounty and Capper's import embargo could be made to neutralize each other?

Our idea of good alibying by a contract authority is the advice that "in some situations a bluff bid is not out of place or unethical, nor is the effect on a partner likely to be disadvantageous under certain conditions."

Paul Claudel is quoted as saying that it is fortunate that most statesmen have long noses; a lucky circumstance, since most of them cannot see further than the length of them. Then there is the other story, Mr. Ambassador, that a man wears a monocle so that he will not see more at one time than he can understand.

Secretary Stimson has been visiting in New York, to give the little Russian trial balloon time to light.

As some of the astute political dopesters put it, the South won't mind a wet Democratic candidate if he doesn't spill anything on the platform. P. H.

THE SIDEWALKS OF LIFE.

Up and down the sidewalks romp the children at their play
While in and out among them walk the weary folks and gray,
And in and out among them walk the seekers after fame,
But I think the while I watch them, they are very much the same.

The little girls are wheeling waxen dollies up and down,
The little boys are soldiers on their way to sack a town,
But the older women trundle real babies in the sun
And are doing for a purpose what the children do for fun.

The little men and women have their cares and sorrows, too,
They suffer disappointments, as the weary grown-ups do,
There are bickerings and quarrels on the sidewalks every day
Which sound very like the wranglings of the wrinkled brows and gray.

Up and down the sidewalks romp the children at their play
While in and out among them grown-ups hurry on their way;
And I think the while I watch them, when life's story's fully told,

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

WHEN the West was young wild horses descended from Spanish strays were to be had for the catching.

Feeding them to improve their condition was a more complicated business, however, for they had been raised on grass and uncut hay and looked upon corn as a poor substitute for feed.

However dear it might be to plow horses, corn meant nothing to them because they hadn't developed a taste for it.

What is true of wild horses is equally true of men.

The thing that is bread to one man isn't bread to another.

To the illiterate peasant in a land of famine life means bread and nothing more. He thinks only in terms of food. When food is plentiful he is content. When food is scarce he broods over the wrongs he suffers and finds courage to steal.

What do you say of his theft? Very probably you say it is justified—that the law should consider his desperate need and temper justice with mercy.

Then what shall you say of the man who steals to provide himself with silk underclothes, a dress suit and delicate foods served to music?

These things are bread to him, for they were part of his normal environment before disaster stripped him of wealth and made him a common laborer.

He loathes the rough garments and greasy foods he can afford, and his soul sickens in the ugly atmosphere of poverty.

The bread of life, in his case, means cake. He hungers for luxury as the other man hungers for bread.

If you can justify one man you must, in fairness, justify the other.

You can't measure all men by the same standard.

You call one man wise because he invests his savings in real estate and another foolish because he spends all that he has for an etching, but they are equally wise or equally foolish.

Each invests in the thing that will bring him the largest measure of satisfaction. Each buys the thing that to him is bread.

If you prefer staying at home with a pipe and a book while another man takes his lady to a dance, don't claim to be wiser or better than he. You may need to dance as much as he needs to read. In any case, each is feeding his appetite and doing the thing he enjoys most.

You don't measure a man's strength by the thing he indulges in, but by the degree of his self-indulgence.

"Political Relief."

New York Times.

It is a "great thought," as Carlyle said to his young caller, that Mr. James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican national committee, has given to a waiting world. Whether it be taken as a bit of legal advice, or merely as an epigram, what he now proposes to add to the long list is "political relief." This he declares to be the great need today, almost a national desire. Next year, when we are to elect a President, will be stuffed full of politics. Till then, urges Mr. Burke, let us keep the dangerous thing out of our system.

Can he order it and get it? One must doubt his ability to apply a Maxim silencer to Senator Boarh, for instance, or George Moses or Chairman Fess. All of these Republicans and many others, in fact, are already voluble, saying indiscreet things, making foolish prophecies, indulging in idle threats, and promise to do so to the end of the chapter. They are losing no time in talking politics, at least among themselves. Senator Moses is quoted as saying that the Republican party is "rotten with revolution," and that somehow a platform must be drafted broad enough, or vague enough, to reconcile three or four contradictory and quarreling factions. Call this "political relief?"

Inherent Antagonism.

Senator Boarh's recent argument and pleading in the Senate for the recognition of the Russian Soviet government emphasized again his lack of qualification for the position he has as chairman of the committee on foreign relations. His ideas are not shared by other persons in responsible position in the Government and his sentiments are not indorsed by the opinion of the country. Russian practices and principles are obnoxious to American practices and principles.

The American Republic was founded to escape and avoid dictatorship, the Russian Soviet government to impose it; the American to conserve the individual, the Russian to suppress him; the American to give validity to private property and sanction to private enterprise, the Russian to confiscate the one and destroy the other. When the United States in its foreign relations makes a treaty, that is the supreme law of the land. When the Soviet government makes an agreement, it is an expedient without a pledge of faith behind it. Two countries so opposite in their ideas of morals, politics, and economics can have no offical dealings with each other. The antagonism in inherent.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Why Does Senator Wagner Favor Entry of Job-Seeking Aliens if He Wants to Cut Down Unemployment?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I suggest that President Hoover did the right thing in vetoing the last Wagner alleged "unemployment" bill? It would have discontinued all present employment work now being done by the U. S. Department of Labor, since it repealed existing law. There could not have been any employment work done by the U. S. Department of Labor months, if not years, owing to the defects in the Wagner bill and the time it would have taken to get his proposal to functioning.

Senators Wagner and Copeland suggest the President has done more to increase the number of workers "pounding the streets and looking for jobs;" but no employment service, however perfect, could create any new jobs. It would merely bring the jobless man and the maimless job together.

If any one in public life more than another has been increasing unemployment and causing additional mouths to go empty in this country it is those who have helped prevent additional restrictive legislation. Certainly President Hoover and Secretaries Stimson and Doak, in enforcing existing law and cutting down foreign immigration and in urging upon Congress additional restriction, in line with the policy of every civilized country in keeping out all alien workers, have done something or tried to do something worth while to relieve unemployment. It seems to be the theory of Senator Wagner and his colleague, Dr. Copeland, that more alien workers should be imported in order to make necessary more internal relief measures such as his employment service proposals.

Last fiscal year over 446,000 aliens entered the United States. It makes no difference how many went out. That many came in, and we already had more men than we had jobs. Every new arrival seeking work must displace some worker here in these times or as a rule become dependent upon private or public charity. Until Senator Wagner and his colleague and Tammany congressmen stop opposing needed restriction, also urged by every labor organization in the United States, it ill becomes them to have anything to say about who is responsible for more men "pounding the streets" looking for a job.

Defense Preparedness Makes for Peace—Navy Should Be Built Up to Treaty Level.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Geneva is preparing for another session of the League of Nations—an "arms conference." Whatever is done or left undone by that body should not hinder this Nation from being ready, in every sensible way, for any emergency, whether brewed at home or abroad. Men who have been most active in war know and talk of the necessities of peace, with purpose and from experience of war's horrors.

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood gave his life in the interest of peace quite as truly as though he had fallen by an enemy bullet, and he called for the beginning of preparation long before the World War was upon us.

Gen. John J. Pershing is still calling for a proper recognition of the country's needs, while peace prevails, so that we may not be in a "jam" when a crisis arises, as we have always been, heretofore.

Lieut. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retired, is giving his remaining years to the promulgation of continued peace, by being prepared to assure it, in any circumstances.

The building of ships, authorized, should go forward at once, or we will be in another "jam" when the conference of '36 will convene, because we are not up to our treaty rights as they now stand. Aviation should be pushed so that our fliers may not be handicapped by the lack of material with which to meet anything that can fly. The Giant of the West holds the title now; he'll possibly lose it if he sleeps!

One Group of Unemployed Glad They Will Have No Jobs—The Volunteer Assistant Umpires.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The bad effects of general unemployment were not unlikely to last for a long time when labor and capital were more disorganized and less civilized than they are today. Under present conditions there are, I am glad to believe, indications that comparatively soon our period of unemployment will give way to the healthy hum of industry. Our idle and misplaced workers will return to the steady jobs with which they are familiar.

But there is a great group, who, insofar as the thing they would like to do is concerned, will remain unemployed, and yet will get much joy out of the situation. Their case is a peculiar one, inasmuch as in the summertime, when their unemployment is at its best, it becomes quite strenuous. Otherwise speaking, theirs is a salubrious and at the same time an obstreperous unemployment, and their busy season this year will start on the 14th of April. Of course, you have already guessed that the shining lights of whom I speak comprise the irrepressible league of baseball fandom's auxiliary umpires.

BOND IN LOVE MART GIVEN BY PANTAGES

Millionaire Posts $15,000 on Charge Involving Girl 16 Years Old.

San Diego, Calif., March 11 (U.P.).—Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire showman, surrendered today on complaints charging an offense against a minor girl for the second time in less than two years. Pale and with his coat collar drawn up for concealment, he entered the courtroom of Judge Arthur Munro, heard the complaint against him read, and made a well-planned disappearance after posting $15,000 bond.

He was accused of improper relations with Lydia Nitto, 16, also known as Alice Blake. At present, the State is attempting to obtain a review of an appellate court decision giving Pantages a new trial on conviction involving another girl—Eunice Pringle, 17.

The new charge here has brought Pantages into the prosecution of the alleged operations of William Jobelmann, his former publicity agent, and Mrs. Olive Clark Day. They are accused of encouraging the friendship of minor girls and of having introduced them to wealthy men as companions for pay.

Pantages' Request, Is Claim.

Miss Nitto and Helen Livingston, also 16, were brought here by Jobelmann and Mrs. Day for a party at the request of Pantages, it was charged.

Two other men named in the complaints were granted freedom on bond, pending preliminary hearing April 13.

John Mills, Los Angeles broker, posted $20,000 today. He was present at the party, it is charged. Already, he has posted $5,000 bond in Los Angeles, where he was charged with improper relations with Clarice Tauber, 16, allegedly met through Jobelmann and Mrs. Day.

Jesse Shreve, San Diego real estate man, accused of having improper relations with the Livingston girl at the party in the El Cortez Hotel here, surrendered yesterday and was freed under $25,000 bond.

Jobelmann Behind Bars.

Jobelmann, also named, is in jail in Los Angeles. Mrs. Day is at liberty under $25,000 bond on the Los Angeles charge involving Miss Tauber, and has not been brought here yet.

The three wealthy men involved—Pantages, Mills and Shreve—have been outspoken in their denials that the party ever occurred, or, at least, ever occurred with them present.

"It was at the hotel where this was said to have occurred only a few minutes," Pantages said. "I went there to see Mills about collecting an $85,000 judgment we hold against him. I know nothing about these girls. The whole thing is being done to discredit me in the Eunice Pringle case."

100 in Ohio Beg Relief; Red Cross Ban Claimed

Pomeroy, Ohio, March 11 (A.P.).—A demand that they be given relief was put before Common Pleas Judge Fred W. Crow today by upward of 100 persons who marched from Pity Me to the courthouse. The spokesman said Pity Me, a mining settlement 7 miles from here, is in a bad plight and that women and children are starving and need clothing. They said they had been cut off by the Red Cross.

They asked permission to beg, but Judge Crow told them it was not within his province to grant such permission. Red Cross officials here said they knew nothing of aid having been refused.

Shiloh Sunday School Teachers Get Holidays

In keeping with the half-holiday idea, instructors at the Shiloh Baptist Sunday School, 1500 Ninth street northwest, will receive Sunday as a holiday at regular intervals hereafter, it was announced yesterday, following action taken by officers of the colored school. Instructors will get the day off every two months.

"The teachers are free to use their Sunday mornings any way they prefer," says the announcement. "The growing list of substitute teachers will insure the continuation of classes and the bimonthly vacations of the regular instructors will reduce the unemployment of the substitutes."

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

Wide Range of Plant Life Adjoins Biological Station

Sudden Change in Altitude Provides Varied Specimens for Virginia Students of Botany, Zoology; 2,500-Foot Rise in Few Miles.

University, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—Animal and plant life normally scattered from the Southern United States to Central Canada can be found within 5 miles of the newly established Mountain Lake Biological Station of the University of Virginia in Giles County.

A difference in altitude of 2,500 feet within a few miles makes it possible for students in botany and zoology at this summer laboratory to obtain from the lower valleys nature forms indigenous to Virginia, while from the heights of Bald Knob, which tower 4,348 feet above sea level, they can gather specimens native to Manitoba and Ontario, university professors assert.

This University of Virginia biological station, the only inland teaching and research laboratory of its kind east of Colorado, is near the crest of the Eastern continental divided. Mountain Lake flows through New River outward to the Mississippi, while less than 5 miles away is the headwater of Johns Creek, which empties eastward to the James.

Bruce D. Reynolds, of the biology faculty of the University of Virginia, is director of the Mountain Lake Station which was opened last summer. The second session will begin June 29 and will continue to September 5. Advanced courses in botany and zoology will be offered during the summer terms.

With Prof. Reynolds on the faculty for 1931 will be Ivey F. Lewis, of the University of Virginia; Lorande L. Woodruff, of Yale University; Conway Zirkle, of the University of Pennsylvania; Paul A. Warren, of the College of William and Mary, and Herbert K. Jobb, educational director of the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries.

Scientists Find No Cure For Ginger Paralysis

Oklahoma City, March 11 (A.P.).—Three Oklahoma City scientists reported today that thirteen months of intensive study of paralysis caused from drinking impure extract of Jamaica ginger has resulted in discovery of no cure and only slight hope of beneficial treatment.

A report signed by Dr. L. A. Turley and Dr. H. A. Shoemaker, of the Oklahoma University School of Medicine, and Dr. D. T. Bowden, former director of the State laboratories, said tricresyl phosphate had been isolated as the drug which crippled hundreds in the South and Southwest last year. They said the chemical "destroys nuclei of nerve cells permanently."

Brazil's Embargo Is Termed Drastic

(Associated Press.)

The embargo placed by President Vargas of Brazil against imports of industrial machinery to that country for three years was described yesterday by Commerce Department officials as the most drastic by a South American country recently.

Exports of machinery from the United States to Brazil in the last few years have been valued at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 annually. The market was regarded as one of the most important outlets for such products.

Doubt was expressed that a diplomatic protest would be made by this country, since the State Department has previously accepted the right of a country to embargo products, so long as the action was not discriminatory.

Portrait of Coolidge Put in Vermont Capitol

Montpelier, Vt., March 11 (A.P.).—A portrait of Calvin Coolidge was unveiled at the Capitol today.

It was formally turned over to the State by Ercolie Cartotto, of New York, the artist, and was accepted by Gov. Stanley C. Wilson, with members of the House and Senate attending the unveiling. Representative Elbert S. Brigham also spoke.

FRANCE AND ITALY VARY IN PACT VIEWS

Paris Regards Naval Accord as Delay; Rome Sees Parity Achieved.

Paris, March 11 (A.P.).—France took the view today, after reading the summary of the tripartite naval accord, that problems of parity between the French and Italian navies had been carefully adjourned until 1932 and 1936.

Italian reaction to the accord, reflected in comment from Rome, was that Italy had achieved virtual parity in keeping with Premier Mussolini's policy of Italian prestige.

Mussolini himself said to the Associated Press, "I can affirm with a clear conscience that Italy, in this matter, has done her duty toward civilized nations." Paris, construing the accord as postponing to forthcoming disarmament conferences the questions of parity between the fleets of France and Italy and, in some types of warships, between the navies of France, Italy and Britain, realized that France would have much at stake in the disarmament conference of 1932.

There, with the United States probably collaborating, France and the other powers must be ready to fill in the blank spaces of a provisional treaty drawn up at Geneva, and to put down in black and white the actual size of the army, navy and air force which it is disposed to accept.

Unconfirmed reports are that Germany and Russia may seize the occasion of the conference to renew the economic treaty at Rapallo, negotiated at the time of the Genoa conference.

The naval and finance committees of the Chamber of Deputies hailed the accord as satisfactory tonight after its provisions had been interpreted by Foreign Minister Briand and Charles Dumont, minister of the navy.

Bill for Disarmament Is Passed in Denmark

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 11 (U.P.).—The so-called disarmament bill, disbanding Denmark's army and navy as these branches of the service are now constituted, was passed in the chamber of deputies today. The vote was 77 to 64.

The legislation provides that the frontier gendarmerie shall be substituted for the army, and a small marine service will take charge of the nation's coastal defense and fishery inspection.

German Cruiser Fund Voted.

Berlin, March 11 (A.P.).—The reichstag budget committee today approved the first instalment of 11,000,000 marks (about $2,550,000) for construction of the "vest pocket" cruiser B. Approval was voted over the opposition of the Communists, with the Social Democrats abstaining.

BUILDING RACE IS AVERTED BY NEW NAVAL AGREEMENT

tion of France and Italy in next year's world arms parley.

4. It paves the way for Aristide Briand's Pan-Europe Federation.

5. It may lengthen the life of fascism by relieving financial tension over armament budgets.

6. It may alter France and Italy's counterallliances with other European nations.

The annex of the memorandum stipulated that up to December 31, 1936, France and Italy agree to build no cruisers with guns above 6.1-inch caliber, with the exception of the 1931 programs of each country. The 1931 cruiser-building schedules will be permitted.

Part III Is Accepted.

France and Italy accept Part III of the London treaty as far as it applies to the British Empire, the United States and Japan. Part III of the London pact limits the auxiliary ships of the three powers—cruisers, destroyers and submarines. It also contains the famous "escalator" or safeguarding clause, providing that any of the three powers, if it deems its security menaced by building on the part of a nonsignatory, may increase its tonnage beyond the treaty limit, giving due notice to the other signatories.

Italy Praises Pact.

Rome, March 11 (A.P.).—Government and press alike in Italy view the Franco-British-Italian naval accord as a great political achievement, destined to exert a favorable influence upon disarmament, economic rehabilitation of the world, peace and prosperity.

The government is especially happy over the settlement because it feels that the Italian policy has been fully justified.

Renewal of Harmony Cited.

Paris, March 11 (A.P.).—Renewal of harmony among the five naval powers of the world is regarded in France as the most important achievement of the Franco-British-Italian naval accord.

A spokesman for the foreign office said today that the agreement among these three nations is the sole guarantee for the success of the 1932 disarmament conference, upon which the world has staked so much.

Aristide Briand's next move will be to submit to the French Parliament the London naval treaty of 1930, which, it is expected, now will be ratified almost unanimously.

(Associated Press).

The attitude of the American Government toward the British-French-Italian naval accord appeared last night to be that of passive approval, Secretary Stimson, while declining to make any formal statement in connection with publication in Europe of details of the settlement, reiterated that the accord was acceptable to the United States.

The position of the United States has been that whatever was acceptable to Great Britain, the directly interested nation, would be acceptable to this country.

Not Regarded Important.

The variation in tonnage which might be established by the accord was considered so small that it was not looked upon as important.

The American Government has been advised only of the basis of the settlement and has not been informed of the exact form.

Ambassador Doubuchi of Japan conferred yesterday with Assistant Secretary Castle.

The ambassador said his call concerned arrangements for the forthcoming visit to Washington of Prince and Princess Takamatsu, second younger brother of the emperor of Japan.

He added his discussions with the State Department on the naval settlement were only of a general nature.

Nine Cities Invite Disarming Session

Barcelona Latest in Group Offering Facilities for Meeting.

Geneva, March 11 (A.P.).—Barcelona, Spain, today joined eight other cities in bidding for the meeting of the world disarmament conference.

Juan Estelrich, president of the Barcelona branch of the Spanish League of Nations Union, laid before Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League of Nations, full details of his municipality's offer to serve as a meeting place. Sir Eric, who leaves Geneva tonight on a visit to London, promised to place the invitation before Arthur Henderson, acting chairman of the league council.

Other cities seeking the meeting include Vienna, Biarritz, Nice and Cannes. They promise to provide facilities should Geneva be unable to fulfill conditions required. Barcelona offers use of the buildings erected for its exhibition in 1929.

Britain's Naval Budget Put at $258,025,000

London, March 11 (A.P.).—Naval estimates totaling £51,805,000 (about $258,025,000), representing a decrease of about $1,711,000 from last year, were introduced in the House of Commons today by A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty.

In the course of his speech he reviewed details of the Franco-Italian naval settlement made public this morning, and asserted the accord has greatly improved the prospects for the general disarmament conference at Geneva next year.

SPANISH PROVINCE THREATENS REVOLT

Separate Autonomy Sought by Party Until Advent of Republican Rule.

Madrid, March 11 (A.P.).—Reports of a movement toward a republic in the Province of Catalonia were spread today, but tonight it appeared they were caused by the merger of two strong political parties which seek first administrative autonomy within the existing Spanish set-up.

These groups, the Accion Catalana and the Accion Republicana, formed the "new Catalonian Republican party" today. They favor the establishment of a Spanish republic eventually, but do not wish to separate from the remainder of Spain in the meantime, as advocated by some of the other republican factions. Hence their advocacy of administrative autonomy now.

Leaders of the new party announced a general party assembly for March 22, principally to establish a slate for the April 12 municipal elections and to work out a platform.

Paris dispatches from the Havas News Agency said an unsigned manifesto circulated along the French border proclaimed a republic of Catalonia. Havas reports from Barcelona also said a Catalonian group had issued a manifesto revealing plans for a definite movement toward a republic March 22.

Barcelona, March 11 (A.P.).—A general strike in transportation industries was declared today in Sabadell, but public utilities functioned without interference.

Archbishop Curley's Mother Ill in Ireland

Baltimore, March 11 (A.P.).—Archbishop Michael J. Curley said today he had received word of the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. Marie Ward Curley, at her home in Athlone, Ireland. He said, however that he had not been summoned to her bedside, as was stated in a dispatch from Dublin today.

The archbishop's mother is 90 years old. He visited her last summer, as has been his annual custom for many years.

Hints of Soviet Orders Cheer German Business

Berlin, March 11 (A.P.).—The possibility of an industrial revival in Germany under the impetus of big orders from Soviet Russia was a lively hope in political and financial circles today as a group of German industrialists returned from a trip to Russia.

Afternoon newspapers published reports that the Soviet Union was ready to place orders amounting to $75,000,000 in German steel and machinery industries, paying 20 per cent cash, if long term credits could be arranged for the balance.

Barrier Still Up, Woman Declares

Millennium Is Far Distant, Miss Mary Anderson Says Over Radio.

Although approximately 89,000 women were employed by the United States in 1930, the millennium for women in Government employ is still far off, according to Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, in a radio talk broadcast last night under sponsorship of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, as part of Business Women's Week.

"No more fitting time could be found," she said, "for turning the spotlight on women in Government service, to show how they get their jobs and how they earn their pay, than this week, symbolizing as it does the advance women have made and the progress they still need to achieve in their march to economic independence."

The millennium has not been reached, she said, because barriers are still standing for members of her sex, preventing them from appointment to many choice jobs. She declares that in many instances they were discriminated against in appointments despite definite proof of their ability to perform so many types of work as well as men do.

122 Pass in Tests At Naval Academy

Virginia Candidates Are Among Those Succeeding in Examination.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 11.—Naval Academy authorities today made public a list of 122 candidates for midshipmen who passed the regular February mental examinations and the substantiating tests in mathematics and English.

In addition, 29 qualified in the regular tests. The following appointees from Virginia were successful: M. Thatcher, G. H. Higginbotham, A. A. Spencer, B. D. Claggett, M. C. Laird, Jr., and W. T. Powell, Jr.

Most of the candidates designated this year will appear for the second regular tests, to be held under civil service regulations, at various points throughout the country in April.

First Blossoms Princess Named.

Winchester, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—Gov. I. C. Blackwood of South Carolina today appointed the first princess for the 1931 Shenandoah apple blossom festival when he notified Nelson P. Richards, festival director here, that Miss Louise Bryson, of Columbia, S. C., will be Miss South Carolina at the Virginia event.

Like Tea . . . the best Gasoline is Blended

EVEN the Japanese maiden who laboriously picks the tea leaves knows that before you sip the delicate beverage from your cup, leaves of another type of tea must be added, for the best teas invariably are blended.

When the tea merchant takes a quantity of Japanese tea, a bit of China tea, and a touch of Ceylonese, then blends them according to the dictates of his expert knowledge, he parallels the making of CONOCO Gasoline. For this is a blended gasoline. It is blended because this is the only method which brings together in one fuel the desirable properties of several types of gasoline. No one type of gasoline can contain them all.

CONOCO refiners use: Natural Gasoline, for quick starting; Straight-run Gasoline, for power and long mileage; Cracked Gasoline, for its anti-knock properties.

There is no secret formula covering the elements which compose this triple-test gasoline. The secret is in the knowledge behind the blending. Knowing how makes one tea blend better than all others... and knowing how places one gasoline in a distinct quality class. Experience the performance advantages of CONOCO Balanced-Blend Gasoline. You'll find it wherever the CONOCO Red Triangle is displayed.

French Tennis Players to Be Much Feted

Thenault Is Anticipating Tournaments With Pleasure.

QUITE in his element is Maj. Georges Thenault, air attache of the French Embassy, whose flair for tennis is no "deep secret" from the wide world. For there are to come to the United States interesting heralds of the spring sport at its best—the trio of crack French tennis players who will arrive in Washington the first week in April and will probably be guests at the French Embassy.

Docking in New York on Tuesday on the Paris of the French Line, Jean Borotra, star of the French courts, and Christian Boussus and Pierre Landry were greeted by a group of sportsmen who are arringing their appearance in the national indoor championship tournament which will start Saturday at the Seventh Regiment Armory in New York.

Preparations already are under way for the entertainment of the foreign players during their stay in Washington, with Maj. Thenault, no doulbt, topping the line of official "glad handers." For the gifted French diplomat is himself a tennis player of no mean ability, a fan who spends practically his entire waking hours on the courts during midsummer when duties lighten.

No less interested in the game is Mme. Thenault, who not only plays very well, but generally accompanies Maj. Thenault to tournaments, various and sundry, during the season. They were among those going up to Baltimore not long ago to the recent exhibition game between "Bill" Tilden and the Czechoslovakian champion.

Another interested member of the French colony here will be Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, whose game rates pretty well at the top of the young women players in the Capital. Whether the embassy will be represented during the play at the armory has not been determined, although Maj. and Mrs. Thenault may attend, inasmuch as they both know M. Borotra and M. Boussus.

The players will appear under the auspices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which, in fact, moved up a bit the date of the national indoor championship games to suit the convenience of M. Borotra, who could make the trip in March. In a discussion of the Davis Cup situation yesterday in New York, M. Borotra admitted the French stars were reconciled to that fact that sooner or later, and "probably sooner," their nation must lose the cup to the United States.

Baron Serge Korff, son of Baroness Alletta Van Reypen Korff, who is a student at Princeton University, has won the national research fellowship for physics and with his wife, Baroness Sylvia Korff, the former Sylvia Scott, of Philadelphia, will leave by motor for the West Coast the first week in June.

Baroness Alletta Korff will join her son and daughter in-law there, going to California by way of the Panama Canal and returning by way of the Grand Canyon.

Capt. John R. Holt, of the Army base at Brooklyn, N. Y., is a guest at the Powhatan.

Mr. and Mrs. Letts To Return by April 1.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Letts, who have been at the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena, Calif., during most of the winter, will return home about April 1. Recently they were among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cudahy, of Chicago, who entertained at the hotel for the annual costume ball.

Mme. de Hellebranth and her daughter, Mlle. Elena de Hellebranth, of Budapest, who spent last winter in Washington, are passing the season at Miami Beach, Fla. M. de Hellebranth and Mlle. Berthe de Hellebrandth remained at their house in Ventnor, N. J., which the family has occupied since their return from abroad last summer.

Miss Helen Contee Plummer, who recently returned from study at the Royal Academy in London, has left for a motor trip to Florida, where she will be with friends for a few weeks, going on to Havana before her return home. Miss Plummer is the daughter of Mr. atnd Mrs. W. H. Plummer.

Bachrach.

MISS ELIZABETH BAUMGARDNER will become the bride in June of Lieut. Alexander Sledge, U. S. N., son of Mrs. Alexander Sledge, of Greensboro, Ala. Miss Baumgardner is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Baumgardner, of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and with her mother is spending the winter in Washington.

Kendricks Give Dinner Before Journey Home

Senator to Leave Capital in About Two Weeks for Wyoming.

Senator and Mrs. John B. Kendrick gave a farewell dinner to their friends last evening before departing for their home in Wyoming. Senator Kendrick will leave the Capital in about two weeks and Mrs. Kendrick will join him later. Their son-in-law, Maj. Hubert R. Harmon, U. S. A., who is now on duty at West Point, has spent several days with his parents and will leave tonight for New York. He was present at the dinner last evening.

The other guests were Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Senator and Mrs. Henry W. Keyes, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Mason M. Patrick, Representative and Mrs. Vincent Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Draper, Mrs. Neillie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Emmett C. Gudger and Mr. William C. Demming.

Mrs. Somerville Pinckney Tuck, of Brussels, and Mrs. Frederick Eldridge, of Ardsley-on-Hudson, are the guests of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock. Mrs. Eldridge has come to Washington to attend the memorial exhibition of water colors by her first husband, the late Henry Bacon, which will be held at the National Gallery. This will open on Saturday with a private view, after which Mrs. Fahnestock will entertain at tea for her guests.

Mrs. Tuck will be the guest next week of Representative and Mrs. James M. Beck. Her son, Mr. S. Pinckney Tuck, jr., is married to Representative and Mrs. Beck's daughter, the former Beatrice Beck. The junior Tucks are now visiting Representative and Mrs. Beck, who will entertain at tea in their honor today. They will be here until the end of the month, returning them to Budapest, where Mr. Tuck is attached to the United States Legation as first secretary.

Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson is spending a few days in New York, at the Sulgrave. She will return to Washington the last of this week.

The Comptroller General of the United States and Mrs. J. R. McCarl will entertain at dinner at the Shoreham Hotel this evening.

Florida Fishing Much Enjoyed By Rineharts

Dr. and Mrs. Rinehart will conclude their Florida visit the last of this month, when they will return to Washington to spend the spring season at their home on Massachusetts avenue.

It was Mrs. Rinehart's idea to visit the places in Florida, where she would be free from the public eye. So, with Dr. Rinehart, she first visited Pirates' Cove and only recently left there for the West Coast, where she occupies a small cottage. The island is thinly populated and the Rineharts, following the precedence set by other cottagers, take their meals in a central dining room. None of the visitors on the island goes in for housekeeping.

Dr. and Mrs. Rinehart have hired a small boat and spend most of the time cruising and fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Gans have returned from a week-end trip to Old Point and Jamestown. At Jamestown Mr. Gans gave an address to the students of the Raymond Riordon School on the George Washington Bicentennial celebration.

Mrs. J. Wentz Returns After Resigning Post

Will Be Honorary Head of New York State Republican Club.

Mrs. James Griswold Wentz returned to her home at 2841 McGill Terrace last night from New York, where she has been since Monday. She went there for the meeting of the New York State Woman's Republican Club, which was held at the Plaza Hotel on Tuesday and terminated her service as president of the organization.

Mrs. Wentz has been president of the club for 28 years, having founded the organization 31 years ago. It is, incidentally, one of the oldest women's political organizations in the country.

Mrs. Wentz announced her resignation at the meeting, as a result of her recent change of residence to Washington, having moved here from New York over a year ago, and become permanently established in the Capital. Since her residence here she has dispensed frequent hospitality to members of Washington's official group.

Retaining her association with the Republican Club, Mrs. Wentz will act as honorary president. It is expected that Mrs. Charles H. Tuttle, vice president of the club, will be elected to succeed Mrs. Wentz next month.

In a farewell speech to about 50 members of the club, the retiring president declared that the influence of women was needed in politics today more than ever before.

Several dinners will precede the opening of the fifth subscription offering of the Professional Players, Philip Merivale, in "Dr. Harmer," Monday night at the Belasco Theater.

Among those who will entertain, taking their guests to the play afterward are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall O. Exnicios, Mr. and Mrs. James Y. Pennebaker, Mrs. Charles Bateson and Mrs. Eugene Smith.

Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson and the Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison will attend the performance.

Col. R. Whitney, member of the Officers Reserve Corps, has come from his home in Worcester, Mass., for a stay of six months in Washington, where he has been assigned to the office of the Assistant Secretary of War. Mrs. Whitney will remain in Massachusetts until spring. Meantime, Col. Whitney is making his home at the Martinique.

Mrs. Hoover has taken a box for the concert of the Hampton Institute Choir at Constitution Hall on March 21. The Vice President also is among the box holders, as are the Ambassador of Great Britain, Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mrs. Hennen Jennings.

WHILE television has been repeatedly demonstrated on a laboratory basis it is the conviction of the Radio Corporation of America that further research and development must precede the manufacture and sale of television sets on a commercial basis.

It seems to be conceded that a woman announcer has no place on the air and a check-up of the women doing regular broadcast turns before the mike shows them to be very much in the minority.

The broadcasts in which women succeed best are beauty chats and fortune telling. These types are declared to be the bane of the radio systems, but the successes which some of these women have, makes the radio stations hesitate to cancel them.

The radio chiefs also offer as another excuse "the extreme temperament of the women as compared to men." Women not only are declared to be without that voice lure on the air but "are difficult to handle."

The present trend is to keep women talkers off the chains as much as possible. One food company employs a man in preference to a woman. This man explains the recipes his wife uses.

Red-haired Zelma O'Neal, originator of "The Varsity Drag," will be guest star with Rudy Vallee tonight (WRC, 8 p. m.).

Musician, painter, poetess and wife of the Paramount executive, Mrs. Jesse Lasky will read her verse this afternoon (WMAL, 5 p. m.).

THERE was no need for Nelson Bell to feel that he was running counter to us in speaking his mind regarding Maurice Chevalier's radio appearances.

It is the unanimous opinion of those in the radio department that Mr. Chevalier is far from being the success on the air that he is in the pictures.

The Vestal copyright bill, which was blocked in the closing hours of the Senate, will be revived at the seventy-second session of Congress despite opposition of broadcasters, Senator Hebert (Republican), of Rhode Island, predicts.

In his first radio discussion of the topic since publication of the much-discussed Wickersham report, George W. Wickersham will speak on "The Work of the Commission," today (WMAL, 1 p. m.).

Turning to a drawing room comedy, Margaret Anglin will play the lead in "Lady Windermere's Fan," a Radio Guild presentation, tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 4 p. m.).

ASPECTS of the film, "Trader Horn," now current at the National Theater, will be discussed by Harriet Hawley Lochar this afternoon (WOL, 5:15 p. m.).

The fifth annual luncheon of the Drama Study Club will be broadcast tomorrow afternoon (WMAL, 1:30 p. m.), with John Erskine, novelist, as master of ceremonies.

THE phrase "tawny tiger" was a verbal Waterloo for Frank Knight, announcer, the other day. The precise Knight tongue slipped and the words emerged as "tiny tawger!"

Phil Cook: 'What does your friend do?"

Sunny: "He's an exporter."

Phil Cook: "How do you know that?"

Sunny: 'He used to work for the Pullman Co., they fired him, and now he is an ex-porter.'

ST. PATRICK AND SEA WAVES

WHEN ST. PATRICK CLEARED IRELAND OF SNAKES, ONE RESISTED. ST. PATRICK MADE A BOX AND INVITED THE SERPENT TO USE IT AS A HOME. THE SERPENT OBJECTED, SAYING IT WAS TOO SMALL, BUT GOT IN TO PROVE IT. ST. PATRICK SLAMMED DOWN THE LID AND THREW IT INTO THE SEA. NOW THE WAVES ARE MADE BY THE WRITHINGS OF THE SERPENT.

DIETING BEGAN IN SPARTA

THE SPARTANS PAID AS MUCH ATTENTION TO REARING MEN AS MODERN CATTLE DEALERS DO TO BREEDING CATTLE. IF A MAN GREW TOO FAT OR TOO SOFT FOR MILITARY DUTY HE WAS SOUNDLY WHIPPED. THEREFORE, THE ANCIENT SPARTANS WERE RIGID DEVOTEES OF DIET AND EXERCISE.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Child With a "Past."

DEAR Frances McDonald: Do answer this letter for I am so unhappy. I am 17 and doing what is right now. But when I was about 15 I started going around to restaurants and such places with some girls a lot older, who introduced me to fellows I would not speak to now.

One of these girls was 26 and all the others over 20. I only went with them for a year. But every one still classes me as no good. I do not even smoke now. And never drink. Yet the girls I knew at school will not speak to me and the so-called decent boys only invite me out to see what will happen. When I tell them I am not like that any more they just give a long, long laugh.

I feel heart-broken. Life does not seem worth living. The ones I want to go with will not look at me—or snub me when they do. The others keep after me to snap out of it and have a good time and not be a sap all my life. I get desperate. Yet the "good times" would not seem like good times to me now. I really could not do now the things I did every night before. But I was just a kid I guess. I am like some one else now. I want different things than I wanted then. I want to be quiet and behave and to go with people who do the same. All I ever did was smoke and pet, but the ones I went with did more and so every one thinks that I did too. I admit they were terrible people I went with. But they never tried to make me do anything but drink and have what they call a "good time."

My mother is broken hearted. She warned me when I was so wild, and begged me to give up auch people and go with children my own age, but I thought I was putting something over on my friends by being out on real grown-up parties. She could do nothing. Now she never casts it up to me and believes in me. She knows I never did what people think. But if a new boy comes to town and likes me, some one tells him before he has seen me three times and he joins the rest who smirk when I appear any place to dance or act human.

What am I to do? Is it to be like this till I am an old woman? And what have I really done? Been out with a tough crowd. I admit it and hate to remember it, but was it something to be pointed at for all my life? If so I would rather be dead. Can you say one small thing to comfort me? Please try to put yourself in my place, although I hope you will never be there.

A PAST AT SEVENTEEN.

Well now suppose you try to put me in your place! Try and picture the crowd trying to worry me! Do you really think they could? Let's figure this out. Hasn't your only trouble always been that you depended too much upon other people for your enjoyment rather than upon yourself? Haven't you always been working from the outside in, instead of from the inside, out? You still want people—even stupid, narrow people, just as you wanted people—even common undesirable people before. Stop wanting people. They are nothing when they are the wrong kind. Begin to make yourself a person. Cultivate your mind. Take some course at night instead of going to dances to be sneered at by people with small minds. Step right up two planes above their heads. By studying instead of dancing you can do this in less than two years. By that time the people you long for now will seem as inferior and unimportant as those you want with two years ago. That is growth. It is what makes some people look over the heads of the crowd. Most of the people on earth who rise above their fellows, were forced by some unhappy circumstances in the beginning. "Be bigger than anything that can happen to you." Remember that in Edna Ferber's story? Well, begin now. Begin to act as you think I really would in your place! And tell me how it works!

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me if I can purchase other colors of lupine besides blue. BETTY O. L.

Yes, you can buy white, yellow, lavender or pink lupine and also several tints and tones of blue.

Is it true that if I start sweet wivelsfield seed in my conservatory in January I can expect flowers in May? Some one has suggested that I really ought to have started the seed around the middle of January. Of course, it is too late to do this this year, but if you advise it, I will try it next season. MARY G. T.

When you have the room I think it is well to start this seed indoors because you have flowers so much earlier.

Yes, I think it is beautifully suited for any place in which you may care to plant it, provided it is not in dense shade.

I have a small natural rock garden. This year I mean really to make an attempt to plant it, but having little money to expend on the venture, I must resort to seed. Can you suggest ten varieties that will grow in a rock garden where the soil requirements are of the best and the entire plot has sun about five hours a day? MRS. GEORGE F. T.

Alyssum (saxatile compactum), anchusa (myosotidiflora), aubrietia, dianthus (deltoides), gypsophila repens, helianthemum mutabile, lynchis, sedum acre, nepeta mussini, saponaria and primula (cowslip) will all do well from seed and will all grow in a rock garden such as you have described.

Please tell me whether, after dividing an aspidistra, you should keep the plant well watered. A neighbor tells me no. MRS. THOMAS T.

Yes.

I have a large aricaria, which this winter for the first time in fifteen years, has been doing poorly. Could I have a florist transplant it at this time? I could pay him to keep it in the greenhouse for a month of so after moving it. My daughter thinks I had better wait until spring. MRS. REDMAN T. K.

If your plant is pot bound and you have the facilities of a greenhouse I see no reason for waiting. If you wait, the roots will become more crowded.

My pansies, which have done remarkably well this winter, are now begining to become leggy. Could I cut them back at this time? MARIE McC.

Yes. Also remove them for about two weeks to a sunny but rather cooler place and keep them well watered.

Fiji Islanders Now Tune in Own Station

Jan Interprets the Mode

Paris, March 11.

PAJAMA crazy, that's what we all are! Not that we shouldn't be, if we feel so inclined—women being as they are and the more so the more delightful, you see.

But the pajama idea is getting a little the best of itself, I think. For I have seen millyuns, literally millyuns, of pajamas in Paris—but always in showrooms and Maisons de Couture, never on any one. Yet when I ask, as I always do, the answer is always the same, "Yes, madame, we do sell them." But to whom and what for no one seems to know!

I'll tell you what I think about it. I think that the evening pajama for dancing is a real idea, but one fraught with dangers. The dangers are not to the women who wear them, but to the dressmaker who makes them. Not even a big French couturier always gets away with it, my dears! Because if an evening pajama looks the least bit pinched in between the legs, or the least bit "boudoirish," it is lost—and a lot of them do just these two things, unfortunately.

The best idea is something like the one I saw at Maggy Rouff, and several excellent ones at Worth. Pajamas that have all of the elegance and workmanship and lines of an evening gown, and then the trouser effect so cut or so disguised or covered up with the volants and flounces of the skirt that you can scarcely tell that the skirt is a pajama. This type of an evening pajama any one could wear, and not feel the least bit too conspicuous. Some others I have seen at other shops were less discreet, and I am sure no woman would ever wear them out of her home!

The tea or negligee pajamas, yes, you would wear them in your home—no matter how elaborate they seem to be. Many of these are cut as evening gowns, and then sport a separate top or jacket or something or other that covers up the decolletage. This type of a pajama is perfectly good taste for a hostess to wear even for her own dinner party, let alone for tea in her home, or for receiving visitors at any of those odd hours that visitors, especially celebrated ones, are so often received nowadays!

• • • •

You see, if you have a tunic dress for that Easter outfit, and it's any kind of a dress at all, you can make it fit so very many occasions. There will be the moment, for instance, when you will want to dress up in it, or dress it up rather, with a lame skirt and one of the touches at the neck that go with that kind of a skirt. Another time you may want to wear it with a black satin skirt and three-quarter jackette and have the smartest outfit for bridge you ever saw. Or you might just once want to be swanky in tea pajamas, and you could use this tunic with black pajamas and be all of that.

All in all, you certainly better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a very smart tunic, for one tunic, at least, you must have this season.

• • • •

And there's a tweed coat for my trip aboard the Ile de France, providing, of course, I take it—the trip, not the coat. Because I certainly would take a tweed coat from Hermes, if it was as smart as this one, and if it had a cape that buttoned on under the collar of the coat so that I could wear it or not, just as I pleased.

• • • •

And then if I take that other trip to California via the Panama Canal, I'll have to have the slip-on sweater and two hat sets which I have illustrated in the corner. It's in several shades of pink and white, and both of the hats are a little different in shape.

Do remember to look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in Sunday's Washington Post.

Rice au Gratin Escaloped Cabbage
Biscuit Honey
Pear Salad
Sour Cream Cake and Coffee

Rice au Gratin, Serving 6.

3 cups boiled rice.
4 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
2 tablespoons finely chopped onions.
3 tablespoons chopped celery.
2 cups tomatoes.
½ cup cheese, cut fine.
½ cup rolled cracker crumbs.
2 tablespoons butter, melted.

Melt four tablespoons of butter and add flour, salt and paprika. Add onions, celery and tomatoes. Cook until mixture thickens a little. Add cheese and rice. Pour into shallow buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with crumbs which have been mixed with two tablespoons of butter. Bake 25 minutes.

Sour Cream Cake.

2 cups dark-brown sugar.
1 cup sour cream.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 teaspoon lemon extract.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1 teaspoon nutmeg.
1 cup seeded raisins.
2½ cups flour.
1 teaspoon soda.
½ teaspoon baking powder.

Cream fat and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat three minutes. Pour into two-layer cake pans fitted with waxed papers. Bake 25 minutes in moderately slow oven.

Frosting.

3 tablespoons hot coffee.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 2-3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar.

Mix ingredients and beat two minutes. Let stand several minutes, then beat well and frost cake.

Graham Cracker Cake.

1 cup sugar.
3 eggs.
⅓ cup milk.
1 tablespoon flour.
24 Graham crackers, rolled.
1-3 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and add sugar. Add egg yolks, milk, flour, crumbs, vanilla, salt and nuts. Beat well. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF March 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on March 12 are pictured as unfavorable, and disappointment and danger may be avoided by doing as little as possible. It will pay to loaf. Let it be a day of thought and not of action, as mental perceptions will be unusually keen. Sunset will bring a change and happy events may be anticipated within the home circle.

Children born on this March 12 will have sprightly natures, keen wits, a love for sports, and a passionate adoration for animals. They will be quick students, and have retentive memories. They will be original and quick in their work, but will be inclined to slight details.

You are an intellectual being, and a live one, but your life is not an easy one—you live on a stretch. You are almost too eager to crowd too many things into your life, and your mind is in a constant turmoil. In your anxiety not to miss anything, you miss a great deal, for one can not appreciate anything properly when constantly passing through life on topmost speed. In conversation you are not "on the spot," your mind wandering from the matter in hand to a new thought which you want to air.

You are unable to keep your judgment clear of your emotions and your passions. Anger, enthusiasm, excitement and resentment all have their place in life, but you should learn to withhold your verdict until they have cooled down. Your "do it now" spirit gains you much, but on the other hand, it has hurt you much. You blurt out words which you would like to recall, and do things which you wish you had left undone.

In your friendships you are too possessive. Others find your complete ownership attitude trying, and soon seek release. You are generous when it comes to sharing things, but you can not share those who are near and dear to you with others. You love passionately and it may be said that you are loyal. As you grow older you will live less intensely, and you will not let your heart so completely run away with you. You would make a fiercely protective parent, and a domineering one.

Work's Bridge

AN UNHAPPY DOUBLE.

South bid one No Trump. It is the type of hand with which a No Trump bid is justified, although only two suits are stopped; but with a count of 16 and a good chance that the Clubs will be stopped also, it would be inadvisable to pass, and the hand contains no suit-bid.

West, with strength in every suit and a count of 15, had all the requisites for a double; the only possible deterrent was the fact that he was vulnerable, but that was an incentive as well as a deterrent because he was anxious for a second game and rubber.

With such strong minors held over the doubling hand, North redoubled and East and South passed. Consequently if West had passed, South would play a No Trump contract at 140 points for the odd trick and a terrific premium if he made extra tricks as he was sure to do. West appreciated that passing was practically sure to produce a game and an immense score for South. He did not dare to bid any suit, so he thought that the best way out of the danger was by bidding two No Trumps.

North doubled (of course for business), and led the Diamond Jack against West's two No Trump contract. This, of course, made West's Ace and Queen of Diamonds both winners, but those were all the winners West could produce. North and South made two Spades, three Hearts, two Diamonds and four Clubs; and West's venture cost him 2,200 points.

All the West-East trouble was occasioned by West's first double; had he passed and opened Hearts, South, who probably would be playing a game contract, would have made twelve tricks and scored 105 for game plus 150 for extra tricks—but no premium for making a doubled contract. Notwithstanding the terrific loss which followed that unhappy double, the double was sound; and West's bid of two No Trumps was equally sound as his loss was less than he would have suffered with South playing a redoubled contract.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFARRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Mac Donald" (also written "Mac Donnell," "Donald," "Donell," "Donaldson," &c.) is of Scottish and Irish origin. It means "the son of Domhnall." "Domhnall" is a Gaelic and Irish personal name meaning "world-mighty." Of the three main families of this name the most numerous and most famous was the one which went to Ireland from Scotland in the fourteenth century. They settled in Leinster and became famous as military leaders. The majority of the Irish Mac Donnells are descendants of this Scottish family.

The family name "Kirby" (also spelled "Kerbey" and "Kerby") is merely a shortened form of "Kirkby." Although "Kirkby" is found in the earliest English records, it is ultimately of Scandinavian origin and means "the village with the church." There are numerous villages which bear this name throughout England, especially in the north and along the east coast. The families which are so called have received the name because of a former residence in one of these villages. The earliest spellings are "Kyrkeby" and "Kirkeby." A certain Adam de Kyrkeby and a Thomas de Kirkeby are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Hodson" has come down to us from two English sources. In most cases it means "the son of Roda." "Hoda" was an Anglo Saxon personal name meaning "hood" and "protection." Not infrequently "Hodson" has become confused with "Hodgeson." "Hodgeson" means "the son of Rodger." The personal name "Rodger" is ultimately of German origin, and means "famous spear." "Hodson" appears to be first recorded in 1379.

UTILITIES' EARNINGS FOR 1930 INCREASE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Balance for common stock of the North American Co., holding company for Washington Railway & Electric and Potomac Electric Power Cos., after all operating expenses, interest charges, depreciation, reserves and preferred dividends, amounted to $27,003,086 for 1930, compared with $26,986,790 for 1929, and $22,582,721 for 1928.

The forty-first annual report of the company made public yesterday revealed earnings for 1930 were slightly greater than those for 1929 and $4,420,365, or 19.57 per cent in excess of those for 1928. They were equivalent to $4.53 per share on the average number of shares of North American common stock outstanding during 1930, compared with $5.03 per share in 1929 and $4.68 per share in 1928 similarly computed for those years. Under the company's policy of paying dividends on its common stock in common stock, the entire balance became available for investment in the business.

The January statement of operations of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., filed with the Public Utilities Commission, shows under the net income item a deficit of $3,446.86, as compared with one of $3,019.73 for January, 1930, an increase of $427.13.

Building Association Elects.

All officers and directors of the Hyattsville Building Association were reelected at the annual meeting of stockholders Tuesday. They are: George H. Lanhardt, president; Harry J. Patterson, vice president; Thomas H. Welsh, secretary; Charles H. Welsh, treasurer; James H. Baden, J. Donald Clagett, Ernest F. Gasch, Alexander Gude, B. O. Wells, directors. A successful year was reported by the company which has a surplus of $383,216.76 and approximately $6,000,000 in assets all invested in first mortgages on Maryland real estate.

Charles S. Baker, prominent local attorney, has been added to the board of the Federal Storage Co. Mr. Baker served as assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia from 1920 to 1923, when he resigned to enter private practice. He is identified with the American Bar Association and the Bar Association of the District of Columbia; is a member of the Chevy Chase and University Clubs, the Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, American Legion, Temple-Noyes Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons and Columbia Historical Society.

Mr. Baker served in the United States Naval Aviation Service during the World War, having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, when he was discharged in February, 1919. Recently he received a special appointment as a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve.

He attended Western High School and was graduated from Cornell University in the class of 1911. While there he became a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. He received the degree of master of arts at Columbia University in 1912 and the degree of bachelor of laws from George Washington University in 1914.

Dividend Is Declared.

Directors of the Federal Storage Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock of the company, payable April 15 to stockholders of record March 31.

Directors of the Tidewater Line, Inc., have voted unanimously to apply to the Public Service Commission of Virginia for a franchise to operate bus service over the Virginia Highway from Colonial Beach to Williamsburg, Va.

The present line operates between Washington and Southern Maryland and its proposed interstate line is to be operated from Washington to Morgantown, Md., thence by ferry to Colonial Beach and over Historic highway to Williamsburg by way of Gloucester Ferry and Yorktown, Va.

The spring meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association has been postponed from April 22 to April 29.

American Tobacco Earnings Increase

Westinghouse Income Falls Sharply During 1930, Reports Show.

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—Widely divergent trends in the tobacco and the electrical appliance industries during the past year were shown today in the annual statements of the American Tobacco Co. and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

American Tobacco showed the sharp increase of 43 per cent over 1929 in its report of net earnings for 1930, which established one for the company. On the other hand, Westinghouse showed a shrinkage of more than 50 per cent from 1929, reflecting both the slump in general business and the transfer of its radio manufacturing activity to Radio Corporation of America.

Net income of the tobacco firm for 1930 amounted to $43,345,370, which was $13,116,165 more than the 1929 results.

Westinghouse's 1930 net income amounted to $11,881,705, equal to $6.45 a share, preferred and common, and comparing with record net profits in 1929 of $27,062,611, or $10.15 a share.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, March 11.—February net operating income of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad is estimated at $1,594,000, a decrease of approximately 45 per cent from the $2,879,518 reported for the like month of 1930.

New New York Stock Exchange has received notice from Burns Bros. of a proposed change in authorized Class A common stock from 100,000 shares of no par value to 100,000 shares of $50 par, and Class B common from 100,000 no-par shares to 100,000 shares of $10 par. Each present share is to be exchanged for one new share, and capital represented by the Class A and Class B common shares will be reduced from $16,580,000 to $9,580,000.

Discussing first-quarter earnings, an official of National Biscuit Co. said today that while it was too early to make a definite statement, earnings so far indicated that they would make a favorable comparison with the first three months of 1930.

International Superpower stockholders today voted to authorize an issue of 100,000 shares of preferred stock. The company said the authorization did not indicate any intention to issue additional stock in the near future.

The Pioneer Instrument Co., division of Bendix Aviation Corporation, today announced production of a new test instrument kit for use at the engineering bases of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce. The kit is carried by Government aeronautical inspectors in collecting data on test flights.

SOCIETY EVENTS

Perry Knapp and Mr. Richard Wood.

Mr. Joseph Hergeshimer has arrived from his home in West Chester, Pa., and is at the Carlton for a stay of several weeks.

Luncheon Is Given By Mrs. Leese.

Mrs. H. Watson Leese entertained a party at luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday, the company later adjourning to the hotel's new card rooms for an afternon of bridge. The guests included Mrs. Thomas McGrath, Mrs. George Leese, Mrs. Nellie Etting, Mrs. James Lay, Mrs. Laura Huyett, Mrs. Ernest Woodworth and Mrs. Margaret Barstow.

A tea of unusual interest was held at the Carlton Hotel yesterday afternoon to show the motion pictures of Europe taken by Miss Elizabeth Persons. A few of the people attending the tea were Col. and Mrs. C. R. Frailey, Miss M. Roberts and Miss L. Wright, of Arlington Hall School; Miss Mildred Fisher, the senior class of Fairmont School and Miss Katharine Berry.

Mrs. O. P. M. Brown entertained a company of 25 at luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday.

Guest privileges have been accorded members of the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women for the twilight musicale next Sunday afternoon, when Mrs. Dawson Olmstead will present Elsbett Tyng in song recital, assisted by Ruth Bronson Logan, violinist. The program, which will begin at 4 o'clock, will be followed by a tea, when Miss Julia Schelling will pour. Mrs. E. Richard Gasch and Miss Myrta Ethel Cawood will assist.

The Beta Chapter of the Chi Sigma Sorority entertained at the supper dancing last evening at Wardman Park Hotel. Miss Margaret Sullivan, president of the chapter, was in charge, and there were 20 guests present.

Farewell Luncheon Given Dr. Anspacher.

Dr. Anspacher was given a farewell luncheon in the crystal room of the Willard yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Whitney Inbric.

Honoring the sixth anniversary of the death of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, first president of the Chinese republic, a group of Chinese professors and students in Washington will present a unique Chinese program at the Washington Club tonight at 8 o'clock. Judge Paul Myron Linebarger, legal adviser to the Chinese government, will give an address.

A picturesque feature of the program will be the ceremony depicting the strange ritual observed throughout China every Monday morning by people of culture in tribute to the former president when they worship at small shrines at a certain hour. Chinese music will be a part of the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shafer will be at home at 1719 K street on Sunday from 4 until 6 o'clock. Mr. Shafer has just returned from a tour of several weeks.

Mrs. M. de Clare Berry will not observe her usual afternoon at home on Sunday as she will go to New York that evening to be a guest at the luncheon on Tuesday by the Dames of Magna Charta at the Vanderbilt Hotel.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

If you have watched this week's films and next week's announcements, you have observed the names of Donald Dillaway and Monroe Owsley—the former with Elissa Landi and Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," at the Fox; the latter coming to RKO-Keith's with Barbara Stanwyck tonight at nine, in "Ten Cents a Dance." Both boys have had a hard time getting started in Hollywood, but now that they have finally got going both are finding it difficult to keep ahead of the screen opportunities that pursue them.

It is Jere Birk Jarreau, former newspaper man and film writer with a diversified Hollywood experience, where he wrote for the pictures under the convenient contraction of Jere Birk, who brings me the lowdown on these lads.

Mr. Dillaway, it seems, journeyed to California with Otis Skinner, in whose company he had previously toured, for a part in the dialogue version of "Kismet." The Warner executives, however, felt it necessary to favor their contract players, so Mr. Dillaway was left without an assignment. Three times he packed up with the fixed determination to leave Hollywood and abandon all attempt to get into pictures. Then came "Min and Bill"—with another lean hiatus between the time of its completion and its release. Since it has been shown, however, the path has smoothed out before Mr. Dillaway and he has unpacked those grips.

Mr. Owsley had a similar adventure. Several times he was on the verge of taking himself away from there, before the films paid him any heed. Then he was cast as Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday" and the future seemed secure. But for some reason there was an unusually long wait between the end of the filming of "Holiday" and its public exhibition—a period during which Mr. Owsley began to worry about his Lincoln roadster, his smart apartment and the other appurtenances of a successful career in the celluloids, with which he had fortified himself on the strength of his first really important recognition by the casting directors. "Holiday" was released just in time to save the family jewels.

A miss is as good as a mile, but for every one of the Dillaways and the Owsleys there are thousands that catastrophe doesn't miss!

The same trick openings that prevailed last week will be in vogue again this. The Rialto inaugurates the engagement of Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes in "Stolen Heaven" this morning, and at the RKO-Keith Theater, the run of "Ten Cents a Dance," featuring Barbara Stanwyck, Ricardo Cortez, Mr. Owsley and an extensive cast, will get under way tonight at 9, when both "The Last Parade" and "Ten Cents a Dance" may be viewed for a single price of admission by those who care to present themselves at the box office as early as 7 o'clock.

Speaking of RKO-Keith's, Ace Berry, former divisional manager for Radio-Keith-Orpheum, with headquarters in Washington, has filed suit for $50,000 damages against the taxicab company in one of whose conveyances he was painfully and seriously injured in a smashup that occurred the Sunday night before last Christmas.

And that reminds me that the motion picture industry has suffered a severe loss of directorial intelligence in the death of F. W. Murnau, best known, perhaps, for his production of "Sunrise," who succumbed yesterday to injuries received in an automobile accident night before last.

Herr Murnau, who was known personally to many in the Capital, where he has been a visitor, was born in Biedfeld, Germany, and in addition to "Sunrise," made "Four Devils" for Fox. His earlier work abroad was for Ufa.

Bob West, guest organist at the Fox, is another casualty, having been kept out of the bill all this week by illness. Next week, incidentally, is the last of his present local engagement. He returns then to his regular post in Brooklyn.

Steve Eilbacher, manager of the Tivoli, informs me that J. W. Laycock, who assumed his new duties last Sunday, is the present assistant manager of the palatial Park road house, vice Harry L. Krafts, jr., transferred to the Ambassador in the same capacity.

If you should go to the Fox tomorrow expecting to see "Not Exactly Gentlemen" and find "Three Rogues" there instead, don't be discouraged. It is the same can of film with a different handle.

The complete menu for the new week, by the way, is as follows: Rialto, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes in "Stolen Heaven;" Fox, Victor McLaglen, Lew Cody, Eddie Gribbon and Fay Wray in "Three Rogues," and stage show; Palace, George Bancroft, Clive Brook and Kay Francis in "Scandal Sheet," and stage show; RKO-Keith's, Barbara Stanwyck in "Ten Cents a Dance;" Earle, Ona Munson and Ben Lyon in "The Hot Heiress," and vaudeville; Columbia, Douglas Fairbanks and Bebe Daniels in "Reaching for the Moon," second week; Metropolitan, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon in "My Past," full week.

And Senator George W. Norris probably thinks they named the aviator played by Humphrey Bogart in "Body and Soul" Jim Watson because he was up in the air most of the time!

Hearing Saturday Set in Rheem Case

Creditors Have Six Months From January 26 to Enter Claims.

With but a bare half-dozen creditors' claims now in the hands of Referee Fred J. Eden, in charge of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey bankruptcy proceedings, announcement was made yesterday from Mr. Eden's office that a hearing will be held in the District Court House at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. Eden said that creditors have a six months' period in which to file their claims. The time limit expires six months from January 26, this year. Creditors' claims may be filed with Mr. Eden at any time before the expiration of the half year, he said.

It is planned to elect a trustee or trustees for the creditors. Referee Eden said that only those creditors who have previously proved their claims will be permitted a voice in the election. A supply of approved forms for filing the claims is in Mr. Eden's hands and they may be obtained at his office.

Young Stamp Collectors Will Organize Club

Junior stamp collectors in Washington will hold an organization meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the Thomson School, when officers will be elected for the Capitol Philatelic Society, now in process of formation.

The club will be composed of a number of junior stamp clubs and collectors who do not belong to any club, according to plans announced by John K. Hedler. Collectors under 21 years of age are eligible.

NEW QUIZ DEMANDS HURLED IN NEW YORK

Cries for Sweeping Inquiries Come From Charges and Denials of Corruption.

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—Out of a boiling pot of corruption charges and denials shot two new demands today for a sweeping investigation of the administration headed by Mayor James J. Walker. None of the charges reflected on the mayor's personal integrity.

One hundred and fifty men and women attending a meeting of the New York Board of Trade applauded loudly as they approved a motion for a complete and immediate legislative inquiry into the city's affairs.

The Society for the Prevention of Crime announced it would send letters to all legislators demanding a city-wide inquiry to be headed by Samuel Seabury, present investigator of magistrates' courts and of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain.

City-wide Inquiry Asked.

"We are asking for a city-wide inquiry and, of course, the mayor's office is included," he said.

The society late today made public the appeal it sent to Gov. Roosevelt asking that Seabury head an investigation. It stated directors "felt it would be fruitless to appeal to the Mayor of the City of New York for aid in rectifying existing conditions."

"We would like some proof by aggressive action that the mayor really desires a clean city," the directors wrote. "We doubt whether the mayor dares to give it to us.

"We believe that 'wisecracking,' the mere appointment of committees and the mayor's laissez faire policy must end."

President W. J. L. Banham, of the Board of Trade, announced forthcoming appointment of a "business men's committee," described as an institution of supergovernment, to represent the people directly and awaken a new sense of public duty.

Burden of Taxation.

Dr. H. Parker Willis, editor of the Journal of Commerce, who proposed the committee, said it should try to "curtail the terrible burden of taxation in this city, the corruption in public life, the debauched condition of our courts, the unsatisfactory commercial situation and above all the uncertainties and hazards to human life involved in the present state of things."

Meanwhile Mr. Seabury received from Gov. Roosevelt a formal commission authorizing him to investigate charges of incompetency, inefficiency and futility made by the City Club against District Attorney Crain.

Chevy Chase Center Plans Entertainment

An evening of community entertainment under auspices of the Chevy Chase Center will be held in the Ben Murch Auditorium, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott place northwest, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

A lantern slide talk on Holland will be followed by colorful dances by children from Chevy Chase Center and from Thomson Center, under direction of Ivy Randall and Margaret Carmody. A colonial dance by the Thomson children, a Spanish dance by Jane Wilson, and a balloon dance by Rebecca Williams will be featured. Boys of the center will give a demonstration of model aircraft flying directed by Kenneth Petrie.

Job Registration Term For Clean-Up Extended

Decision to extend the registration period for the unemployed, in connection with the April clean-up drive, by two days was reached by the District committee on employment, when only a handful of idle persons enrolled in Room 507 of the District Building yesterday morning.

Enrollments can be made from 9 a. m. until noon any day this week, according to George J. Adams, secretary. The work will be available the last two weeks of next month.

Padilla Entertains G. U. Spanish Club

The Spanish Ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padilla, who has taken a keen personal interest in the affairs of the Spanish Club of the Georgetown University Foreign Service School, entertained its members at the embassy last night.

In addition to the 35 student members of the club, the guests included Prof. Emanuel Martinez, head of the Spanish department at Georgetown, and Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the schools. A program of Spanish music was provided, and the Ambassador and Senor Don Luis Calderon, commercial counselor of the embassy, greeted the students in informal addresses. Prof. Martinez and Dr. Healy replied in Spanish.

Ambassador Padilla's son, Ricardo, is a student at the Georgetown school and an active member of the Spanish Club, which has done much to stimulate interest among the student body in the Spanish-speaking countries.

Gadsby and Inns Topic of Writer

At a meeting of the Washington Society of Alexandria, Va., in the old City Tavern last night, David Rankin Barbee, feature writer of The Post, read a paper on "John Gadsby and His Taverns" before an audience of considerable proportions. This society is the oldest historical body in Virginia, having been organized in January, 1800.

In his essay Mr. Barbee traced the known history of the two historic inns which now go by the name of Gadsby, and showed from the records that Gadsby was one of the most remarkable men who ever lived in Alexandria or in Washington, for he was also proprietor of the old Franklin House in this city and was founder and builder of the old National Hotel at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

In the little tavern in Alexandria which goes by the name of Gadsby, and which in all probability, Mr. Barbee said, he had nothing to do with, many famous prerevolutionary and postrevolutionary deeds were done. There Washington and George Mason and other gentlemen of Fairfax County wrote the celebrated Fairfax Resolves. There Washington's birthday was first celebrated, on February 11, 1782, when he was 50 years of age. This was the origin of the birthnight balls. And there the citizens of Alexandria, "who are Federal to a man," Washington wrote, held the first celebration in America commemorating the adoption of the Constitution.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FAIR PLAY FOR DOUGHNUTS.

THE best illustration in the dietic field of the hound dog that people kick around is fried food. The kicking is not done by the plain people, of whom, according to President Lincoln, there are so many. They go along eating fried foods and escaping indigestion. The people who constitute the great American indigestion cult do not eat them. One of their many fads is: No fried foods. They get plenty of support from the diet books, practically all of which books as well as those of the fad variety, warn against fried foods. The best of them tell what the writers know and then they throw in a command to eat no fried foods to fill out the line.

I know of no scientific work that directly supports the anathema. Such support as there is for it is indirect. One statement is that fried foods are greasy and generally they are. It is true that fats digest slowly as compared with other foods. When the border line of indigestion is reached the break is apt to come with fats. But this argument against fried foods applies to eating butter on bread, or gravy on potatoes or to taking cream, eggs, good meat and many other wholesome foods.

It was claimed that food is heated to a higher temperature in frying than in any other means of cooking, and that this high temperature splits fats and fatty acids. It is true that frying raises the temperature to a higher level than does boiling, but there are few cooking procedures that do not subject food to the fying temperature at times or in part. Some of them exceed the frying temperature. If this is a valid argument it applies to most other foods.

It is claimed that in the process of frying the fat globules are broken up and the fat better coats the starch and other food materials and thus interferes with digestion. I doubt if there is truth in this. When we make a pie crust with lard and bake it, the lard gets through the flour better, I think, than is the case in frying a doughnut. I know of no proof of weight on this phase of the subject.

It is claimed that fried foods give an acid ash and that they are eaten with breads which also give an acid ash and the combination tends to produce one kind of acidosis. The answer is that the same argument would run against eating meat with bread, or putting butter or gravy on bread.

The indirect evidence against fried foods is not convincing. On the other hand we find that the people who go ahead and eat fried foods, in spite of all their dietic and culinary shortcomings, have no more indigestion than those who steer clear of them. I think they have less.

CEMENT FLOORS.

W. H. B. writes: I know from experience that standing or walking on cement floors daily makes the calves of the legs and knee joints ache. In most factories in this section that have cement floors and workers have to stand all day we build false slotted platforms of wood for an insulator.

I would advise the purchase of shoes with rubber soles and heels, or have them applied. I personally have found it necessary to wear rubbers all the time when our work is on cement floors. Rubber makes a very good insulator for cement floors. Since cement floors have come into such extensive use we have had innumerable complaints about aching legs, and insulation is the answer.

REPLY.

There is advantage in having slats or some other covering for cement floors.

There is but one objection to rubber heels and soles when the floors are cement. It is the danger of slipping.

BOYS CLUB AND ROCKVILLE FIVES WIN IN TOURNEY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, March 11.—Fifty-two young amateur boxers of various weights whiled away a pleasant evening at Mecca Temple last night, belting one another around a ring rigged on the stage of the hall in a series of 25 semifinal bouts of the 1931 Golden Gloves tournament. They were the survivors of an original field of about 3,800 kids who began thumping about a month ago in a scattered program of elimination bouts held in little clubs all over New York and in near-by regions of New Jersey.

They were divided into two divisions, the open and subnovice classes. The open class boys were fighters who had fought in other tournaments, while the subnovices had had no tournament experience prior to the present one. It was easy to tell the difference in most cases without reference to the program. The open class fighters showed more know-how and nonchalance than the others.

The hall was small by comparison with the Garden, where the final round will be held on March 16 and the intercity bouts with the Chicago Team on March 30. It was hard to absorb the idea that the boys were fighting just for fun and the honor of fighting for fun some more later on, but that was the central idea of the show, nevertheless.

Mention Made of Max

Max Schmeling, the pork-barrel heavyweight champion, and Jack Sharkey have fought a total of about 35 minutes in the last eighteen months, and very terrible fighting, too, for about $750,000 of the customers' money. This fact has nothing to do with the present case. Perhaps it shouldn't have been mentioned.

The social aroma of the affair at Mecca Temple was less delicate and also less pungent than that of the Garden on important nights when the pros are fighting or conniving. There was no dress suit business and very little lady trade. On the other hand, the professions of burglary, bootlegging, poke-lifting and dive-keeping, so prominently represented at the large professional shows, were not in evidence as the amateurs flailed away through the long night.

There were no heavyweight fights, the practice being to have the semifinal fights among the big ones for the night of the final show. Then there will be two semifinal heavyweight bouts and a final in each division, open and subnovice. It probably sounds complicated. It is. The young men worked against a back drop of royal palms, Florida bungalows and pyramids, in three colors, ordinarily used for the fraternal jinks and rituals of the brethern who own the temple.

G. Welker Tapped on Chin

The most knocked-out young man of all in the course of the slugging was George Welker of the Hackensack Y. M. C. A., a subnovice fighting at 147 pounds. Johnny Consiglio laid him a tap on the chin in the first round and he went down so hard he almost broke. Landing all spread out, he tried to get up but only succeeded in coming to a semi-upright position on his head. His face was the color of cigar ashes and the referee stopped it to save him.

A couple of minutes later, Sam Kramer, a light heavyweight, went through the ropes backward, loose and dizzy, and his friends had to go and get him by hand. Sal Cuttina did this to him in round one.

In the 126-pound, subnovice class, the four-round fight between Izzy Gibbs of the well-known Kovno family of Gibbses, and Vincent Dimare, was a wild reminder of the days of Leftie Lewie Tendler and K. O. George Chaney at their best. Gibbs is a left-hander by nature, but a turnover hitter, and whenever Dimare seemed to be timing his left hand shots and rolling under them consistently, he switched about and turned orthodox. For three rounds they slugged away,

2 Pro Teams Tied After 40 Holes

Resume Play Today in Finals of $5,000 4-Ball Match.

By CHARLES E. WARD.

MIAMI, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell fought Willie MacFarlane and Wiffy Cox to a 40-hole deadlock in the finals of the $5,000 international four ball matches today and officials postponed the match when gloom settled over the Miami Country Club course. An 18-hole play-off was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Twice in the scheduled 36 holes Sarazen and Farrell forged two holes into the lead and twice the methodical MacFarlane and the blustering Cox fought back to even terms. Cox squared the match for the last time on the thirty-fifth when he sank a birdie three from six feet as the rest took fours. They halved the remaining five holes.

A gallery of 2,000, increasing as the battle worn on, overran tournament officials and caused frequent delays in the play on the extra holes.

Gene and Johnny Even Match on 10th.

MacFarlane and Cox were one ahead at the end of the first nine holes, but Gene and Johnny collected par fours on the tenth as Willie and Wiffy required fives to stand even. Sarazen's birdie three on the thirteenth put him and Farrell one to the good and both of the favorites downed birdie threes on the fourteenth to make it two up. MacFarlane came right back with a birdie deuce on the short fifteenth after his tee shot was within twelve feet of the pin. Willie and Wiffy squared it on the eighteenth with birdie fours.

At the start of the afternoon round, Farrell and Sarazen went one up on the nineteenth as Johnny trickled in a birdie four. Cox squared it again on the twenty-first when his second was on the green and the rest were in the traps, Wiffy downing his in par four and the others taking fives.

Sarazen's Par 3 Wins 29th.

Sarazen's par three on the twenty-ninth was good to put him and Farrell again in the lead as the other two putted after going wide on their tee shots.

The thirtieth was halved and Farrell got a three on the par four thirty-first to go two up on MacFarlane and Cox, but Cox outdrove the rest of the thirty-second and downed his first putt for a birdie three.

Wiffy's birdie three on the thirty-fifth squared the count and it remained deadlocked to the end. The cards:

SPENGLERS REORGANIZE.

The Spengler Post nine, winners of the American Legion and Sport Mart Leagues last season, will again place a team on the field. Besides last year's regulars, Manager Hayre has added the names of such players as Gormerly, Stewart, Hawkins, Mogan, Darmstead, Winters and Nau.

Nat Regulars Play Orioles Today

Biloxi Calls Holiday for Season's First Exhibition.

Fischer, Griffith and Tauscher to Divide Mound Duties.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BILOXI, Miss., March 11.—Even the veteran Washington players are all excited tonight over the prospects of opening their exhibition season against the Baltimore Orioles tomorrow afternoon. When competition is arranged, it means that the training grind is over and from now on the Nationals will simply add polish to their play.

The pitchers can now throw anything they want, and, as their arms gain strength, gradually will show just how good or how bad they are; the batters are slowly but surely attuning their batting eyes, while each day the fielders cut loose just a bit more.

Biloxi is making plans which rival the opening day ceremonies in Washington. The Kiwanis Club is in charge of things and its program calls for business houses to close up at noon, a luncheon at the Elks Club for the players, a parade and the usual inaugural program at the game. Mayor John Kennedy will toss the first ball, with Joseph Milner, Mayor of Gulfport, doing the catching and Lieut. Gov. Harry O. Hoffman at bat.

Johnson to Start Regulars.

Manager Walter Johnson has announced that he will start his regulars and that they will be kept in the line-up as long as they want to stay. Carl Fischer, Walter Tauscher and Lynn Griffith will divide the mound duties.

If President Clark Griffith wants to save some training expenses, he could do so by having a moving picture man show up at camp about the third day after its opening. A movie-sound crew was on hand at this morning's drill and the manner in which the boys suddenly cut loose when the camera was pointing their way is "nobody's business."

Catcher Cliff Bolton stepped out at bat this morning so effectively that Manager Johnson, who yesterday put Outfielder Baxter Jordan in the running for the utility hitting job almost made an "about face." "It don't look as if we can afford to let Bolton go," he remarked after the youngster had hit ball after ball on a line to various fields. "He's improving fast under Patsy Gharrity and I'm figuring on using him in part of all of our exhibition games in order to bring him out quicker."

Has Been Catcher One Season.

When it is realized that Bolton has caught but one season in the three he has been playing pro ball, it is no wonder that he is not a finished product. He caught at High Point, was bought by the Nats and sent to New Haven, where he played the outfield because of his hitting ability. Then he was shunted to Chattanooga and was a fly chaser there all of last season. Now that he is getting a little practice behind the bat, he is improving rapidly although, of course, he is still mighty green.

Second Baseman Charley Montague, one of the two proteges of Shortstop Joe Cronin, is not a bad ball player. He is only 19 years old and played with a semipro team in San Francisco last winter. He is a flashy fielder and shows signs of being a fair hitter.

Outfielder Sammy West gave his salary arm a real test at today's drill and is satisfied that the ailment, which put him on the shelf in the waning days of last season, is cured.

It also might be mentioned that "Sam of Birmingham" also is doing some fancy stick work, hitting right-handers and southpaws alike.

Ossie Bluege, the Nats' silent third baseman, stepped out today and gave quite a fielding exhibition. His arm is still a little weak, but otherwise he appears to be in tip-top form. He kept his legs in shape golfing, hiking and playing tennis during the off season.

Irving Hadley took a second long shift on the hill this morning and gives evidence of being ready now to step out and travel at full speed for five or six frames.

Malone Quits Post As W. & L. Fight Coach

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., March 11.—W. E. Malone, known as "Bus," has resigned his position as boxing inartuctor at Washington and Lee University and has returned to his home here to fit himself for a bout in Roanoke March 31 with Rusty Murray. Malone is expecting to give his time in the future to professional pugilism.

Loan Fund Not Cause For Ousting of Iowa U.

Chicago, March 11 (A.P.).—The special Iowa Legislature committee, investigating the "inside" causes and effects of the University of Iowa's ouster from the Western Conference in May, 1929, completed its Chicago hearing today after taking testimony of Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the conference, and Frederic Woodward, vice president of the University of Chicago.

That when Iowa was ousted in May, 1929, the conference faculty committee, which took the action, did not know of the so-called "belting fund" to care for loans made to athletes and that, naturally, the belting fund was not the cause for the ouster.

That the real cause for the ouster was that "outside funds" handled by alumni were used to make loans to athletes.

A POTTERY clay called "bucaro" is relished and eaten by women of Portugal and Spain. In the southern part of Spain both men and women indulge in this strange repast, seasoning the clay with powerful chilli peper. In the seventeenth century dirt eating became such a promiscuous practice among ladies of the Spanish aristocracy that the church attempted to put a stop to it. The practice is much less common than it used to be.

Harvey Firestone's champion cow not only yielded 70 quarts of milk in one day, but almost averaged that amount daily for a whole month, producing 1,941 quarts.

Jack Britton lost the welterweight championship to Ted "Kid" Lewis in a 20-round bout, but in a return bout with Lewis a few months later, he knocked him out in the ninth round, and regained the championship.

REDS BEATEN BY ROBINS' RALLY, 6-5

Boone Hits Home Run Off Ogden During Uprising in 8th.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins won a 6-to-5 decision over the Cincinnati Reds in the second exhibition game of their spring series today.

For five innings Owen Carroll and Benny Frey held the Robins at bay with only one run, but in the eighth John Ogden went to the mound. He failed to survive the innig, being replaced by Johnson. Before the latter could retire the side the Robins had bunched three hits, including a home run, by Boone, and four bases on balls to score five runs.

Auxtin, Tex., Mar. 11 (A.P.).—Led by Mel Ott, the New York Giants pounded out a 14-to-4 triumph over the University of Texas nine today. The New York outfielder got two home runs, a double and three bases on balls in six trips to the plate. The score:

Shotten Beset by Pitching Problem.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—Exhibition games for the Phillies begin tomorrow with Brooklyn and Manager Shotten is trying to figure out his pitching program. Few of the hurlers are ready because of chilly weather and difficulty of getting into shape. Jim Elliott and Lil Stoner are the most advanced and probably will start against the Dodgers. The infielders and outfielders are in only fair condition.

Street to Retain 10 of 11 Hurlers.

Bradenton, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—With only 28 men on his roster and the rules calling for clubs to get within the player limit of 25 on June 1, it appears that the task of cutting his squad to the proper size is going to be easy for Manager Gabby Street of the Cardinals.

The champions' manager has already stated he wants to keep ten of the eleven pitchers on the squad, which means probably that two of the eight outfielders will be sent away.

Girl Student Sees Flag For Nats

"THE steadiest pitching staff in the league is going to give Washington first place in the American League," states Miss Elizabeth Whitney in a letter to the "Baseball EdItor" of The Post.

Miss Whitney is one of the seekers of the block of six box seats to the opening game April 14, which The Post will present to the reader who best sets forth in an article of not more than 250 words his or her opinion of the Nats' prospects for 1931 and the probable make-up of the team.

Miss Whitney, who lives at 1217 B street northeast and is a student at Eastern High School, shows that she is following the training camp news avidly by pointing out that Jack Hayes' signing further bolsters the greatest infield in the league, the combination of Bluege, Cronin, Myer and Judge.

Outfield Looms as Potent

A bigger and better year all around is predicted for the Nat flingers, while the outfield will indeed be a potent one, since Manager Johnson can pick from the following list of better than .300 batters: Manush, Sam Rice, Harry Rice, Harris and West.

Spencer will bear the brunt of the catching duties this year, Miss Whitney believes, with Hargrave as an understudy. And then, concludes Miss Whitney, there is Walter Johnson, himself, to supervise this array of diamond talent.

Miss Whitney's comprehensive letter closely follows the rules of The Post's contest. Not only are the fans asked to express their opinions on where the team will finish and who will be on it at the start of the season, but are also requested to give their reasons, and keep the essay to 260 words. And don't forget those six box seats!

YANKEES WIN WITH 9 RUNS IN NINTH

Take Lead in Series With Braves, Scoring 17-9 Victory.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees went on a late scoring spree to defeat the Boston Braves 17 to 9 today. The victory gave the Yanks the lead of two games to one in the spring series between the two clubs.

Ben Cantwell and Harold Gans were the victims of the Yankees' vicious assault in the final innings after Bill Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse had held them to five hits and two runs in the first five innings.

Cleveland Outslugs New Orleans, 16-5.

New Orleans, La., March 11 (A.P.). The Cleveland Americans continued to show their batting punch in winning their third straight training game from New Orleans Southern Association team today, 16-5.

Joe Vosmik, sandlot aspirant for left field, made his eighth hit in ten times at bat, a mighty triple. Orel Hildebrand, Indianapolis righthander, made the best showing of the pitching recruits, allowing five hits in three innings, passing two and striking out two.

Reynolds Agrees to Chisox Terms.

San Antonio, Tex., March 11 (A.P.). Today was a big day for Manager Donie Bush and the Chicago White Sox. The biggest item was the signing of Carl Reynolds, the Club's leading batsman and outfielder, who finally came to terms after holding out for three weeks.

As usual, club officials declined to say what Reynolds will receive, but it was believed to have been between $10,000 and $20,000.

The weather was warm enough for the best work-out of the season, and when it was over, Bush announced that Vic Frasier and Tommy Thomas would be the starting pitchers against the Giants in the opening of their series Saturday and Sunday.

Five-Inning Practice Held by Browns.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 11 (A.P.).—The Browns went through a five-inning practice game this afternoon in the most satisfactory training day they have had since coming to Florida. The sun was shining and it did the lame arms good.

Jim Levey, who was hit on the right arm Monday afternoon, played short for one of the teams and showed dash and pepper, although favoring his arm a bit.

Schmeling and Stribling Berated, But S. Carolina Legalizes Boxing

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 11 (A.P.). Max Schmeling's place in the fistic world and that of W. L. (Young) Stribling, his challenger, for the heavyweight title, was debated in the South Carolina Senate today.

The bill was passed, 30 to 15. It had already passed the house, but must go back there for action on Senate amendments.

9 p. m., main court—Calvary M. E. vs. Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, unlimited class (first round).

THE traditional invasion of the Quantico Marines is expected to feature tonight's four-game program in the District A. A. U. championship tournament, which is being sponsored by The Washington Post at the spacious Tech High Gymnasium, Second and T streets northwest.

Principal interest of nonpartisan fans probably is centered in the clash of the Marines unlimited combination with the crack Fort Washington five. However, every other contest on the night's program is equally as promising of stern competition. The other unlimited class game brings the Bolling Field Aviators into battle wit hthe First Baptist Church quintet, fresh from its struggle for the B. Y. P. U. League championship.

145-Pound Marines Face Colonials.

The 145-pound Quantico Marines will make their debut against Colonials, a team composed of former G. W. U. and Jewish Community Center stars, while the opening game will find two of last year's champions clashing in the 130-pound class.

The St. John's five, which is defending its title, will meet the Arcadians, 115-opund champions of last year, who have moved up a peg in the competition.

Those who remember the sterling battles of the Quantico Marines three years ago in the A. A. U. tournament at the Arcadia are expecting the Devil Dogs to go far this winter. However, the Fort Washington Soldiers, well-known to tournament play here, have another strong and experienced team capable of carrying the fight to the end.

Leathernecks Travel To Games by Plane.

The Marines have had a successful season and have the distinction of being the only basket ball team in the country to travel to games in airplanes.

Fort Washington has several players who have competed in at least four tournaments under the auspices of The Post. Among them is Jimmy Marsh, crack shot, who has performed brilliantly here.

The Colonials, who meet the Marine 145-pounders, include in their line-up a number of outstanding players in amateur ranks hereabouts. Deck Castell and Max Jeweler, who starred for G. W. The Leverton brothers, Bobby Burke and Frank Levine, are among those listed.

Like the other service teams on the program, Bolling Field has competed in the tournament before. This year's combination has campaigned successfully in independent games and has primed especially for the tournament.

V. M. I. Letter Men Name 3 Varsity Captains

Lexington, Va., March 11 (A.P.).—Virginia Military Institute letter men chose three star athletes to lead cadet indoor teams next year.

Aztecs, 38; "Y" Flashes, 25 (first round).

THE invasion of suburban teams in the District of Columbia A. A. U. basket ball championship tournament sponsored by The Washington Post failed to complete success last night when the Boys Club unlimited team eliminated Richard's Colonials, 29 to 23. Previously the Rockville A. A., of the Montgomery County League, had met and defeated Company E, of the District National Guards, with comparative ease, 48 to 25.

In two 130-pound class games which opened the program, the Boys Club Optimists ousted the Peck Memorial quintet from the tourney, 29-20, and the Aztecs conquered the Y. M. C. A. Flashes, 38-25.

The Boys Club, unlimited team, was subjected to a terrific score in the final half of their game with the Colonials after holding a 27 to 13 advantage. Led by the clever individual play of Bob Gaylor, former Maryland University star, the Colonials approached within four points of the Boys Club while holding the latter scoreless, but the return of the Boys Club regulars to the game dissipated the threat of the suburbanites.

In the first ten minutes, the Colonials rolled up an 8 to 2 lead, but at the half the Boys Club was in the van, 13 to 8.

Rockville's Pot Shots Beat Soldiers.

In the first unlimited battle of the night, Rockville showed real "stretch" speed in outdistancing Company E, 48-25. It was a brand of potshotting that was the best the tournament has seen that separated the two clubs in the final ten minutes of play.

The soldiers put up a good account of themselves in the first half, at which time the score stood 19-14 in favor of the eventual winners. Play was of the closest sort until half of the last half had ticked away, and then Rockville's three Musketeers, Benson, Lanier and Markland began to hit the center of the rim from all positions to give their team the advantage.

In face of this shooting, R. Copeland, stellar marksman for the soldier five, was unable to keep his club on a plane with the suburbanites.

Pace in Second Half Too Fast for Peck.

Numbering among their line-up such high and prep school stars as Nolan and Fitzgerald, of Gonzaga; Gallagher, of St. John's, and Kessler, of Western, the Boys' Club Optimists last night turned back a gallant Peck Memorial Team, 29 to 20, in their 130-pond section contest to enter the second round.

The losers, although outweighed, carried the fight all the way to the Optimists. The Pecks looked best in the first half, when they held the Optimists, who were pregame favorites, to a 13-to-10 advantage. The Boys' Club tossers increased their margin to 22 to 16 in the third quarter, and staved off a last-minute rally of their opponents to win.

Most prominent in the Optimists' victory was Nolan, who collected three field goals and two fouls; Bayliss and Gallagher. Girton, with a trio of double-deckers, together with Ed Folliard, the smallest player on the floor, were the Peck mainstays.

D. C. AMATEUR BOXING TITLES AT STAKE MARCH 27

Ring Tourney Scheduled at Rockville

8 Weight Divisions; 4 Champions to Defend Crowns.

THE 1931 District of Columbia amateur boxing championships will be held on March 27, 28 and 30 at the Rockville High School gymnasium, Rockville, Md., according to an announcement made last night by Edward Rosenblum, chairman of the local A. A. U. boxing commission.

Decision to hold the event on the dates and at the place mentioned above was made at a meeting of Mr. Rosenbum's committee held yesterday afternoon.

The championships are open to all amateur boxers residing in and around Washington. Competition will be held in eight divisions, the flyweight, 112 pounds; bantamweight, 118 pounds; featherweight, 126 pounds; lightweight, 135 pounds; welterweight, 147 pounds; middleweight, 160 pounds; light-heavyweight, 175 pounds, and heavyweight, over 175 pounds.

Title Winners Will Compete at Boston.

The winners in the various divisions will be sent to Boston to compete in the national A. A. U. junior championships, which will be staged on April 6 and 7. Survivors of the junior tourney will represent Washington in the A. A. U. national senior championships in Madison Square Garden, New York City, April 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Four champions have signified their intentions of defending their titles. Besides these boxers, the Jewish Community Center, City Club, Catholic University, Boys Club and Knights of Columbus will enter their entire teams, together with outfits from Rockville, Hyattsville and Alexandria. Many unattached boxers also are expected to enter the lists.

Five Represented D. C. Last Year.

Last year Washington sent five men to the junior championships in Boston. They were Mike Tardugno, 118 pounds, and Jocko Miller, 135 pounds, both of the Jewish Community Center; Nevin Barber, 126 pounds, and Eric Sonnichsen, 147 pounds, both of the Knights of Columbus, and Henry Irving, 160 pounds, of the City Club. Three of these boxers, Miller, Sonnichsen and Irving, reached the finals.

Application blanks for the 1931 District championships will be available in a few days from Mr. Rosenblum, at room 406, 1317 F street northwest. Besides Rosenblum, other members of the local committee are James Sullivan, Norman Landreau and Earl A. Weeks.

HOYA PREP JUNIORS WIN.

The Georgetown Prep Juniors returned victorious in their final game of the season yesterday when they played host to and defeated the St. Gabriel's outfit, 25 to 16.

The Saints led at 12 to 10 at the half, but wilted in the stretch.

The Garrett Parkers suffered but one defeat all season and that at the hands of the Silver Spring High Juniors. They won six games.

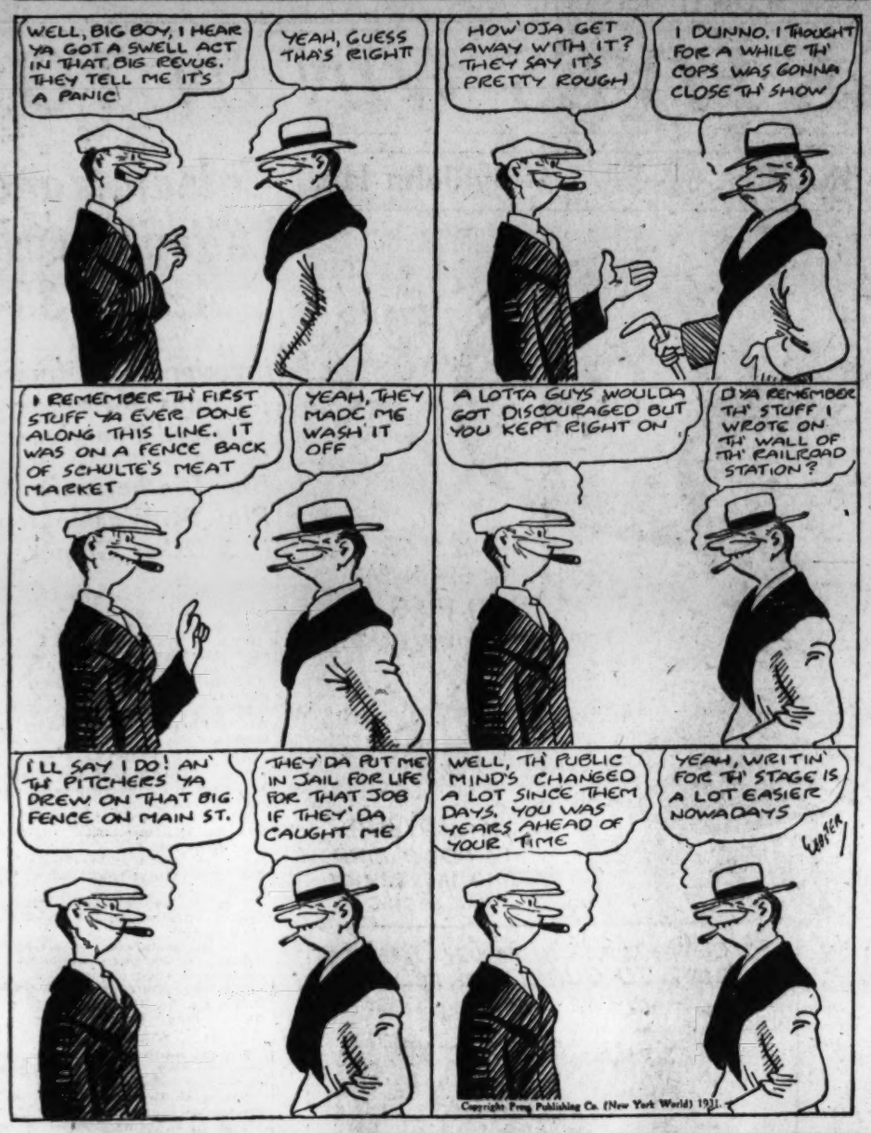
The Boy Who Made Good —By H. T. Webster



Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—St. John's Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Bayard Claiming Purse at a mile and a furlong, for older horses (over 4 years), features the St. John's card today. Large fields persist except in the featured races, six being named in this field. PLAYFELLOW'S DREAM seems to have been dropped in a race below her class, and should win in a canter. BOUNDING DEEP, winner by a safe margin from Guide Right last Saturday, will be the contender. SPECTACULAR is best of the others.

FIRST RACE—There is a class in the field for 2-year-olds, which opens the program. G. D. Widener's GALLAPAN should repeat. SUNTICA looks like the contender. BUTTER BEANS, a whirlwind at Havana, should figure in the race.

SECOND RACE—JACK CRAIN has apparently found an easy spot in the second race. LAFTAR is rated the contender. BAR SINISTER may get in the money. He is making his first start at this track.

THIRD RACE — SUN MEDDLER should repeat in the third race. SULLIVAN TRAIL should be second in this contest. DARK ANGEL is tabbed for third.

FIFTH RACE—The consistent but bad-legged CROYDEN should beat PERKINS in the fifth race at 6 furlongs. It looks like a two-horse race, with MINERALOGIST having a good chance for second money.

SEVENTH RACE—The seventh race is for maiden 3-year-olds. BRANDON DARE has been in the money more than any maiden 3-year-old. It was the same way last year. Always close up in smart fields, but never able to win. IMAGERY looks like the contender. TRADESMAN will have Achtoi Lass to beat for show money. Both were close up in their last races.

RAIL STOCKS SLUMP AFTER DIVIDEND CUT

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—Stocks, sobered but not frightened by the first major trunk line dividend cut in ten years, reacted slowly today in the dullest trading since early last month.

Railroad bonds were a little easy in spots, but foreigners moved ahead and the investment market in general did as well as could be expected in view of what has been asked of it this week. Grains firmed slightly.

Some of the rail stocks broke sharply. New York Central's dividend reduction brought nervous selling in issues on which maintenance of present rates was rendered more doubtful, in speculative minds, by the action of so important a road, but aside from Central's 4 point break on a sizable volume, turnover in the group was only fair. Union Pacific, which at the end of 1929 had about 250,000 shares of New York Central in its investment portfolio, tumbled 7¾ points, for the cut would mean a loss of about $800,000 in income on that amount of stock. Atchison lost more than 6 and there were net declines of 1 to 2 in Baltimore & Ohio, New Haven, Pennsylvania & Southern Railway, among others.

Steels Prove Saggy.

The market made a reasonably good showing before the day's outstanding news item appeared. New York Central itself opened 2 points higher and there was a forenoon upturn in the utility favorites. Steels, however, were soggy and the coppers did not like the shading of red metal prices. Nevertheless, aside from the rails and a few specialties, net losses were confined to a point or so. American Telephone dipped more than 2, Eastman Kodak and Byers dropped 4, and National Lead 8. Allied Chemical, after making a new low, closed unchanged, revived by reports that last year's earnings ran between $9 and $10 a share.

Prominent stocks down a point, more or less, included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Radio, Anaconda, Kennecott, Loew's, General Electric and Westinghouse. American Smelting and Sears Roebuck lost about 2. Utilities, with the exception of Telephone, closed steady. International Telephone showing a small advance. Warner Bros., rose a point. Sales for the day approximated 2,300,000 shares, a drop of 900,000 from yesterday.

Midweek steel trade reviews revealed cross currents of opinion, notwithstanding the 2 per cent gain in Ingot production reported by Iron Age. That survey said demand manifested "a more uniform upward trend, with production increasing at a less deliberate rate," but Steel, while reporting that the consensus among producers favored continued gains, added that sentiment had "suffered considerable loss." The drop in U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage led American Metal Market to suggest "there is room for suspicion that things are not moving in the right direction at the former pace."

Electric Power Down.

Electric power output for the week ended March 7 was lower than the average for the first three weeks in February, although it rose above the total for the week that included Washington's Birthday. The latest car loadings report covered the holiday interruption and therefore compared unfavorably with the week immediately preceding; but the freight movement was down to 1919 levels, which did not brighten the railroad picture.

Money lost its temporary firmness as funds began to pile up in the banks against income tax payments. After renewing at 2 per cent call loans went to 1½ and were available outside at a concession from that rate.

Forecasts of cold weather in the Central West, firmness at Winnipeg and decreased receipts were influences favoring narrow advances in wheat. The largest gain was nearly a cent. Corn likewise was fractionally higher, but cotton continued heavy and lost 9 to 15 points.

Several of the European currencies worked lower, especially the French franc, which sagged 3-16 for cables. Far Easterns took their tons from the firmer silver quotations.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Three per cent rentes, 56 francs 40 centimes. Five per cent loan, 103 francs 15 centimes.

Sterling on London, 124 francs 15¼ centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 53¼ centimes.

London, March 11 (A.P.).—Bar silver, 13 11-16 d per ounce; money, 2¾ per cent. Discount rates—Short bills and three months, 2¼ per cent.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

New York, March 11. (A.P.).—Call money, easy; high, 2; low, 1½; ruling rate, 2; close, 1½ per cent. Time loans, steady; 60 days, 1¾@1½; 3-4 months, 1¾@2; 5-6 months, 2¼@2½.

Prime commercial paper, 2¼@2¾.

Bar silver, 30½.

COTTONSEED OIL MARKET.

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—COTTONSEED OIL—Quiet; prime crude, 6.62½; prime summer yellow spot, 7.50; March closed 7.60, May 7.80, July 7.92, September 8.06.

SLIGHT RECESSION IS NOTED IN BONDS

Foreign Issues Continue to Show Strength, Despite Timid Domestics.

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—The bond market had a tendency to settle today. The average closing price of 30 leading domestic issues composed of equal numbers of railroad, public utility and industrial obligations was 87,2, a decline of 0.2 point for the day.

This minor recession was not surprising after the recent upward course of the market and the large volume of offerings. The trading pace slackened to total sales of $10,200,000 compared with $11,300,000 on Tuesday.

Foreign bonds showed marked strength. Gains predominated among them and the obligations of the United States Government. Active foreign issues to close higher included Chilean 6s of 1960, Australian 5s, Argentine 6s of September, 1960, French 7½s, Japanese 5½s, Minas Geraes 6½s of 1959 and several issues of the City and the State of Sao Paulo. German 5½s alternated between narrow gains and losses. Issues of the Brazilian federal government were weak.

There was a little different story to tell about most of the domestic corporate bonds, which showed considerable irregularity, although most of the net changes were narrow. New York Central 4½s of 2013, floated Tuesday, closed steady after a heavy turnover and the series D 4½s of the Pennsylvania Railroad, also a new issue, continued to sell higher than the offering price on the curb.

Warner Brothers Pictures 6s provided the most spectacular action. Steady demand pushed this issue upward for a temporary gain of 5 points and it closed at 55 with a net gain of 3¾ points. The stock of the company was strong also. These gains followed persistent selling earlier this week.

GRAND JURY WEIGHS CASE OF MAN HELD AS SLAYER OF RIVAL

WOMAN ADMITS GOING WITH FOE OF HUSBAND

One of Witnesses Tells of Finding Love Letters Sent by Wife.

Whether Hurtha I. Dulaney will be allowed to return to his job as street car conductor or remain incarcerated behind iron bars for the slaying of William Huff, rival for his wife's affections, rests in the hands of the grand jury following action of the coroner's jury yesterday in holding him for the superior jury's decision.

The inquest was held at the District Morgue, when details surrounding the fatal shooting Monday night when Dulaney surprised Huff in his home on H street near Thirteenth street northeast, were presented to the jury of six men, all married, who subsequently held Dulaney and following the adjournment of the inquest all witnesses were rushed to the District courthouse where the grand jury hearing started immediately.

A Casualty Hospital interne was the first witness called at the hearing, and his testimony dealt only with the injuries which Huff sustained from the three bullets which entered his body.

Following this Private Walter L. Dant, attached to the Ninth Precinct, told of receiving a call from Dulaney that a man was in his house, and of going with him and guarding the rear door to insure the man's capture when Dulaney went into the house.

Heard Shots in House.

Dant was in the rear of the home when he heard the sound of revolver shots. He rushed into the house to find Huff on the floor, blood pouring from his head, with Mrs. Dulaney and her husband standing in the room, smoke still coming from the gun in Dulaney's hand.

"Why did you shoot that man?" Dant said he asked Dulaney.

"Because he was destroying my home," the husband reputedly replied to the policeman.

While Dant was on the stand he produced a signed statement made by Mrs. Dulaney shortly after she was taken to the House of Detention to be held as a material witness, in which she admitted having been going with Huff for about two months, seeing him about two times weekly. Only once, the statement read, had she been out with him, and then they came downtown for a show and went back home to the children.

More details were related by Detective Sergt. Carlton Talley, who had been handling the case as a member of the homicide squad. Talley told of going to Huff's home in Hume Springs, Va., and finding a bundle of love letters written to Huff by Mrs. Dulaney which Huff had told a fellow employe at the paper company, where he was working, to secure and make public in case "anything should happen to me." This request was made Monday morning to Fred J. Swartzman, who went to police and told of the incident as soon as he heard of Huff's death.

Testimony Is Refused.

Attorney James O'Shea, Dulaney's counsel, refused to have his client testify, and Mrs. Dulaney was warned by District Attorney John J. Wilson, who handled the case, that she need not testify unless she wished. Asked whether she would like to or not, she expressed her inability to decide for herself, and a legal argument as to whether she should or not took place and was settled when a member of the jury stated that they did not wish to hear her testimony.

The hearing was brief, requiring about an hour and following the announcement of the jury the witnesses were gathered by the police and taken in a body to the courthouse, where the case immediately was presented to the grand jury. Dulaney's future, for some time at least, rests with that body, for they may either release him on the strength of the "unwritten law" or hold him for trial.

The grand jury heard five witnesses in the case yesterday afternoon. Those called before the jury were: Louis Huff, brother of the slain man; Fred Swartzman, Mabel Brown, colored maid employed part-time by Mrs. Dulaney; Private W. L. Dant, and Detective Sergt. Carlton Talley.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES ASK INCREASED JOBS

More Workers Needed to Provide Half Holiday, Federation Says.

The National Federation of Federal Employes yesterday took the first step to press for the hiring of additional employes by the District Government, when needed to permit operation of the Saturday half-holiday law.

Heads of departments of the District Government, have been directed by the District Commissioners to "administer the law with the utmost possible liberality," according to Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, as quoted in a letter to L. I. Dolph, president of Local Union No. 84, at Lorton, Va.

If it is necessary to hire additional employes to meet the law, Miss McNally added, the Commissioners directed department heads to report the fact immediately.

Would Avoid Deficit.

District officials, however, in face of their quoted opinion, have fallen in line with the views expressed by Treasury Department officials, in ruling on the furlough of employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, it is asserted, in declaring that as the new law provided no funds for employment of additional help none could be hired at this time, because to do so might create a deficit.

It was this decision which was aimed at in the letter to the president of the local union at Lorton, Va., where the District Reformatory is located.

Guards Held Insufficient.

As it has been announced that the number of guards at the reformatory and the District workhouse at Occoquan is insufficient to permit the Saturday half-holiday, the letter was taken as indicating that the question would be brought to issue in connection with these institutions.

Representatives of the Federal employes contend that no funds are needed under the half-holiday law to permit employment of whatever additional workers may be necessary to obey the new law. The command of Congress contained in the law, Miss McNully said, authorizes whatever deficit may be necessary to meet it.

REMOVAL OF HEART VALUED AT $50,000

Parents of Boy With Organ on Right Side File Damage Suit.

An echo of the death of Michael Callas, "the boy who never had a chance," was heard in the District Supreme Court yesterday when the parents, Cleopatra and George Callas, of Jackson Hall alley, filed suit against Deputy Coroner A. Magruder McDonald, deputy coroner, asking for $50,000 damages.

The parents claim that their son, who was born with a transposed viscera and whose heart was on the right side of his body, died a natural death and was not subject to an autopsy by the deputy coroner. They asserted that Dr. McDonald had removed the boy's heart during the autopsy and had not replaced it so that it might be interred with the body.

Callas, an anemic lad, and a student at the Jefferson Junior High School, was stricken with a fatal heart attack at his home and was removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

The parents asserted in their damage suit, filed through Attorney Lester Wood, that they have been unable to sleep properly and have suffered great mental anguish because of the action of the deputy coroner in "mutilating the body" and in keeping the heart.

BAR ASKED IN SUIT OF MRS. HENDERSON

Another chapter was added to the legal tangle in which Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, wealthy social leader of Washington, and Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean have become involved through Mrs. Wholean's suit to prevent Mrs. Henderson giving to the United States a palatial home for Vice Presidents.

Mrs. Wholean, an adopted daughter, whose adoption by Mrs. Henderson is now being attacked by the "mistress of Henderson Castle," on Sixteenth street, yesterday replied to Mrs. Henderson's attempt to void the annulment by stating that Mrs. Henderson had no right to question the legality of the adoption since she herself was the petitioner.

Mrs. Wholean asserted through Attorneys Arthur P. Drury and H. Prescott Gatley that any errors in the adoption papers was merely "misprison" by the clerks who physically handled the papers in court. The "misprisons" were technical errors in the filing of the papers.

The motion to dismiss Mrs. Henderson's petition for annulment of the adoption will be argued in court Friday.

The suit of Mrs. Wholean to restrain Mrs. Henderson from donating the home to the Government brought to light an intricate story of how Mrs. Wholean had been taken from a foundling home and brought up as a Henderson with such secrecy that but few knew the story. When Mrs. Henderson heard of the suit brought by her "granddaughter" she retaliated with the annulment petition.

For many years it had been thought that Mrs. Wholean was the daughter of John B. Henderson, jr., and was an heir to the Henderson millions.

Trial Board Dismisses Charge Against Private

The Police Trial Board yesterday dismissed charges of failing to make a proper search of a prisoner which had been made against Private M. P. Lewis of the Sixth Precinct. The charges were made after a prisoner had attempted suicide by slashing his wrists with razor blades.

Six of his fellow officers and superiors testified in his defense. The hearing of charges against Cecil Showalter, payroll clerk of the department, and Olin D. Rogers was postponed until next Wednesday that they might obtain additional witnesses. They are charged with being intoxicated, while off duty.

Concert to Be Given At Seminary Tonight

Singers and musicians prominent in church circles will present a concert at Immaculata Seminary, Wisconsin and Nebraska avenues, tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Mrs. Raymond B. Dickey, violinist; Miss Mabel C. Latimer, soprano; Harry Wheaton Howard, pianist, and Lawrence K. Downey, baritone, are in charge of the program and will contribute numbers. The Sisters of Providence, who conduct the seminary, have invited friends and patrons of the institution and all Washington music lovers.

G.W.U. Women to Meet Cornell Debating Team

The women debaters of George Washington University will meet the visiting Cornell University's women's team at George Washington tomorrow night, arguing the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, That the several States should adopt legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance."

The contest is part of a triangular contest between George Washington, Cornell and the University of Pittsburgh. A George Washington team will go to Pittsburgh, and a Pittsburgh team will go to Cornell while Cornell is debating here. Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, wife of the president of George Washington, will preside at the local event.

Cafe Is Cleared In Nuisance Case

Padlock Suit Fails Against E Street Sea Food Restaurant.

Finding that the Government had failed to sustain the charge that the O'Donnell Sea Food Restaurant, at 1207 E street northwest, had become a public nuisance, within the meaning of the national prohibition act, Justice Oscar R. Luhring, in District Supreme Court yesterday dismissed padlock proceedings and dissolved a temporary injunction granted last July against Thomas A. O'Donnell, the proprietor, Herman Johnson and E. R. Greer.

The court found that the Government, represented by Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Orcutt, had failed to sustain the allegations of the suit.

Justice Luhring declared that "premises 1207 E street northwest was not maintained as a place where intoxicating liquor is manufactured, sold, kept, stored or bartered in violation of the national prohibition act and therefore was not a common nuisance within the meaning of the act."

Hunger Plea Brings Police Help to Tots

Two little emissaries of a destitute family came to the Fifth Precinct yesterday with a plea for food from their mother. Their request was answered by three patrolmen who sent two bushels of foodstuffs to hte children's home.

The two tots, awed by the presence of officers, clasped hands as they presented a note to Lieut. R. H. Mansfield which read: "There is no food in my house. My husband is bedridden. My four children are hungry." It was signed by Mrs. Ella Lockard, 778 Sixth street southeast.

Patrolman J. M. Bell visited the home and reported that there was not a particle of food in the house, and that the father of the four children has been bed-ridden for a year.

Succor was not long in coming, for Patrolmen Bell, J. J. Russell and J. Ronayne dug into their not too bulky wallets and purchased food that will last for the next week.

Family Life Faces Crisis, P.-T.-A. Told

Home, Church and School Should Stay Intact, Educator Says.

Unless the intimate relations between the home, school and church are kept intact, the world will suffer, Miss Agnes G. Regan, assistant director of the National Catholic School of Social Service warned members of the Parent-Teacher Association of Business High School last night.

The present is a critical period for the home and the family, she declared, deploring the apparent trend away from the family group as the basis of society. Should this condition continue to its logical conclusion the world is facing a greater tragedy than the World War, she declared.

Abe Clar, Business High School student, entertained the association with a group of piano selections.

Coal Is Among Prizes Bridge Party Offers

Novel prizes, including two tons of coal, will be offered at the annual card party sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association of the Nativity Parochial School, for the welfare of children of the school, St. Patrick's night, March 17. The party will be at the Nativity Auditorium, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

The party is expected to be the largest ever held by the association. In addition to the coal, more than 100 prizes have already been received. One ton of coal will go to the person making the highest bridge score and the other will go to the person turning in the largest 500 score.

Bitter Storm Still Holds Europe in Thrall

London, March 11 (A.P.).—Snow, high winds and bitter cold weather impeded traffic on land and sea tonight as the worst late winter storm of recent years continued to rage in many sections of Europe.

Ships were delayed, automobiles were stalled in drifts and many trains were far behind schedule. Unemployed in various sections were recruited to open streets and tracks. The blanket of snow covered much of England, France, Germany, Austria and other countries.

Near Bolanzo, Italy, an avalanche today swept down from a mountain burying a power station. The fate of those in the building was undetermined.

Ambassador Edge to Visit Africa.

Paris, March 11 (A.P.).—Ambassador Walter E. Edge will leave tomorrow for a month's trip to North Africa, where he will make a first-hand study of the development and activities of France's colonies in Algeria, Tunis and Morocco. He will be accompanied by his wife and his secretary, Robert M. Scotten, and Mrs. Scotten, of Detroit.

MRS. ABIGAIL C. NEWMAN DIES

Daughter of One-Time Large Property Owner Expires at 67.

Mrs. Abigail C. Newman, 67 years old, of 3353 Eighteenth street northwest, died yesterday at her home following a long illness. She had lived in Washington all her life, and was the daughter of the late Pierce Shoemaker, who at one time was one of the most prominent men in the city, and owned most of the property in what is now the Rock Creek section of the city.

Survivors include her husband, Charles R. Newman; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Mooers, of this city, and a grandson, Edwin A. Mooers. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock at the residence, and at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Sacred Heart, with interment following in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

GUN OF POLICEMAN WRESTED IN FIGHT

Driver Is Finally Arrested, However, and Held for Invsetigation.

Although a sympathizer of the Negro he had placed under arrest wrested his service revolver from him, Policeman Anthony Richitt, of the Traffic Bureau, succeeded in taking Richard Savoy, colored, to the Second Precinct Station last night and had him held for investigation. Savoy said he is 33 years old and lives on Morton street, near Georgia avenue northwest.

Richitt reported he sighted a truck proceeding without lights, south of New Jersey avenue, near N street, and started in pursuit on his motorcycle. The truck turned west on N street, drew to a stop near Fourth and the driver jumped out and fled.

When the policeman caught up with and seized the man in a nearby alley, the latter allegedly drew a knife and submitted only when Richitt took his gun from its holster. As they wereleaving the alley, Richitt said, his prisoner again began fighting and was joined by a crowd of Negroes who had been attracted to the scene, one of whom took the policeman's gun away.

The siren of an approaching police car which had been summoned dispersed the mob. Richitt suffered slight bruises and a torn uniform, while Savoy was cut and bruised.

Utilities Body Rejects Bus Terminal Offer

The Public Utilities Commission is not interested in any proposal for a central bus terminal to be erected in accordance with terms set forth by a party of New York lawyers and agents, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, said yesterday.

The commission declined to guarantee that all interstate bus lines should be compeled to utilize the terminal for ten years, if it were built. The New York representatives, who said they were making similar proposals in other cities, indicated they would place the depot in the area of Tenth and G streets northwest.

Commissioners Asked To Get Jobs for Council

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, yesterday wrote a facetious letter to the District Commissioners urging them to aid the unemployment situation by putting the citizens advisory council to work.

Mr. Clayton is one of the delegates of the federation who has been seeking to have the council abolished on the ground that it is inactive.

Suit for $16,314 Entered by Count

Former Hungarian Declares He Is Man Without a Country.

With the claim that he is not now "a subject of any country or nation," and is therefore a man actually without a country, Count Michael Karolyi, formerly of Hungary, yesterday began suit against the Alien Property Custodian, Howard Sutherland, for $16,314.33, which he claims was seized illegally.

The count, who has several times tried to gain entrance to this country, said that in 1917 he had $37,000 on deposit with the Equitable Trust Co., of New York. Of this amount, he alleges that the amount he sued for had been taken by the Allen Property Custodian.

The count also seeks to recover $4,500 interest on the alleged illegally confiscated money. He is represented by Attorney Abbott P. Mills. He now resides in Paris, France.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A LETTER ON THE INCOME TAX.

UNCLE SAM, Washington, D. C.—Dear Uncle: What I am wondering is whether it should be necessary for me, as an average citizen subject to the income tax provisions, to go through the form of filling out that blank this year or whether it will be all right for me to send you a couple of apples and call it square? Sending me and a lot of other Americans that big tax blank this year is like sending an Edison questionnaire to a man on a raft.

* * * *

Even if I answered those questions you would like it better if you never saw the answers, as they could not possibly be of a nature to cheer up the Treasury Department. Just between you and me, it is a waste of time to send out income tax blanks to most people this season except in the idea they would thank you for the compliment.

* * * *

If the Government is sincere in all its talk about economy it would not waste money having millions of blanks printed and distributed when it could get just as much money by borrowing a few derby hats and passing them around in communities where there was any rumor that a man had been seen with some real money. The whole psychology of the Income Tax Bureau is wrong this year. Just by sending the blanks to people it offends the public and incurs hostility. It would get more money if it would simply issue a public statement saying that the Government was hard up and asking the people to send in anything they felt they could afford.

* * * *

It ought to be made plain to people this year that if they haven't any money the Government will accept old clothes, castoff shoes, vegetables, potatoes, lump coal, second-hand tires, table silver, or what have you. I should think that, like in my case, Uncle Sam would rather have me send him some tangerines, a couple of slightly used golf balls and a watch fob left by my grandfather, than to get a four-page tax blank which, when carefully untangled by six experts, would reveal that I was sending nothing whatsoever or eversowhat. Even if I had twice as good a year in 1930 as I really had I would still be in a bad way.

* * * *

It seems to me that the purpose will be served if I don't read beyond the place where it says "Name and address" on the tax blank and just fill in that space and mail it to you after attaching a photo of myself before and after 1930, together with a few self-explanatory stock tablets.

Of course, even this brief statement on my affairs will make you cry, and I am willing to call it all off if you are. I have no wish to break your heart at this time, and even if I send in a return in the manner indicated in the above paragraph, I do not want the Government to take it as a plea for charity. I can still get along, as my appetite isn't much anyhow, and I am sure I could weather the storm if you would only cut out such foolishness as sending me income tax blanks.

Hoping you will not try to get blood out of a stone crusher, I am,

Very truly yours,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—If you want to send me an apology, it will be okay.

Now that it's all cleared up, Shirley, you should have no further worries.

REQUESTS FOR HLEP HEAVIEST IN MARCH

Relief Agencies Report on Mounting Number of Distressed Jobless.

Unless there is a material improvement in employment conditions this month will be the heaviest relief month of the year, according to application for relief made to the Associated Charities.

Reports from the eight districts for February disclosed that 1,504 families were under care as against 1,218 a year ago, an increase of 286 families. Expenditures during January and February toaled $33,125, while $25,224 was expended during the corresponding months of last year.

The report was made to the board of managers by the District visitors. Their report brought out the increase in the total applications for aid and the difficulty in finding jobs for applicants.

The board adopted a resolution of appreciation of the helpful service given by the Junior League in finding jobs for the unemployed and also in paying for needed repairs at the Social Service House.

Acknowledgment also was made of the aid given by the District committee on employment in furnishing opportunities for unskilled labor to unload barges of wood brought to the District for families in need. Thanks were given to C. R. Crammer for his voluntary service in preparing improved records regarding memorial and endowment funds received by the society during its history.

Realty Man's Wife To Be Naturalized

Mrs. Morris Cafritz Takes Steps Here to Become U. S. Citizen.

Renouncing her allegiance to "the present government of Hungary," Mrs. Gwendolyn Cafritz, 21-year-old wife of Morris Cafritz, prominent real estate operator, yesterday went before Mrs. Helen T. McGraw, District Supreme Court naturalization clerk, and took the initial steps to become an American citizen.

Mrs. Cafritz declared she had entered this country in the summer of 1929, and when she left a few weeks after that date, she was Mrs. Morris Cafritz. Upon her reentry to the United States in August of the same year, she did so as Mr. Cafritz's wife. The couple had spent some time in Europe on a honeymoon.

Mrs. Cafritz was accompanied to court by Mrs. Helen Potzman, of 3004 Thirty-second street northwest, and Jacob Roberts, of 3001 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Hartung Is Freed Under $2,000 Bail

After being held in the custody of Deputy Marshal Harold T. Scott overnight in a hotel, William K. Hartung, real estate dealer and clubman, was given his freedom yesterday when a $2,000 bond was posted to insure his remaining within jurisdiction of the District Supreme Court, pending the hearing on his wife's suit for a limited divorce.

Mr. Hartung was required to post the bond because his wife, Mrs. Marion E. Hartung, told the court in her petition that she feared he might leave the city.

Mrs. Hartung, in her suit, mentioned drinking on the part of her husband, and she declared he was keeping company with another woman. She charged that the "other woman" and her husband intended to arrange for a divorce in some other State. Mr. and Mrs. Hartung have one child, a daughter, 10.

Whitehead Names Casino Manager

New York, March 11 (A.P.).—The operator of the Central Park Casino, Sidney Solomon, was named today by Joshua B. Whitehead, of Atlanta, as one of the many reasons why he broke his engagement with Annette S. Bracy, who has brought a breach of promise suit against him for $500,000.

Whitehead amended his answer to the charges by naming Solomon. In a previous answer he had mentioned "S. S." as his rival for Miss Bracy's love.

Whitehead charged that Miss Bracy and the casino manager were at Atlantic City for a week together and that while he, Whitehead, paid the bills, Solomon spent more time in the Bracy apartment than he did. Solomon often left the floor on which the Bracy apartment was situated by the freight elevator, the amended answer stated, while Whitehead was ascending on the passenger elevator.

Committee Favors Widening E Street

Plans to Broaden Upton and Narrow Tilden Are Recommended.

The coordinating committee of Federal and District agencies favors widening E street from Fifth to North Capitol street, so as to make it a main thoroughfare from the downtown section to Union Station Plaza, Capt. E. N. Chisolm, jr., engineer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said following a meeting yesterday.

No definite recommendation will be made, however, until the matter is further studied in cooperation with the parks committee of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks.

The widening of Upton street to 120 feet in the area adjoining Wisconsin avenue and the reduction of the width of Tilden street from 120 to 90 feet on the highway plan were recommended.

Finance Group Rejects Tax Increase in France

Paris, March 11 (A.P.).—The finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies tonight decided against an increase in taxes to meet the 1931 budget deficit of about $24,000,000.

In disclosing the amount of deficit today, Francoise Pietri, minister of the budget, said expenditures must be increased approximately $64,760,000, which would create a deficit of almost $80,000,000. He said additional taxes would be necessary if the economic crisis continued.

Wells College Dean Will Address Alumnae

Mrs. Charles K. Roys, dean of Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., will address Wells alumnae tonight at a dinner to be given in her honor in the clubrooms of the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Horace L. Dawson, 4517 Garfield street, is in charge of arrangements. The speaker will describe plans for the new administration building, to which Mrs. Lawrence Phipps and Edward S. Harkness have contributed $100,000 each.

Tomorrow morning Mrs. Roys will speak at National Cathedral School and in the afternoon at Miss Madeira's School.

Anna Langley, 4 years old, was badly burned on the arms and body when she pulled a pan of hot water from a stove yesterday. She was taken to Emergency Hospital. She lives at 1316 I street northwest.

Teacher's $50 Watch Stolen.

Thieves broke into the Randall Junior High School, Half and H street southwest, yesterday and stole a watch valued at $50 from Raymond E. Contee, a teacher there.

Taxi Association Sued For $50,000 Damages

Ace Berry, 3930 Connecticut avenue northwest, filed suit for $50,000 damages from the Independent Taxi Owners' Association, Owen C. Chatterton and Sidney Brown yesterday, claiming that he was seriously hurt in an accident at Nineteenth and Q streets northwest last December.

In his suit, Mr. Berry said that he was a passenger in Brown's cab when the machine collided with another taxicab at the intersection. A broken pelvic bone and numerous other injuries were cited by him in his suit, which was filed by Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer. Mr. Berry was formerly connected with a motion picture company here. He is now employed in New York.

International Phases Of Job Problem Topic

Leifur Magnuson, director of the International Labor Bureau, will discuss "International Aspects of Unemployment" at the second session of the Lenten School of Adult Education tonight at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

"Religion and Economic Problems" will be considered by the discussion group tonight. James P. Egan, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, will address one study group on "Problems of Economic Depression," and Page McK. Etchison, of the Washington Y. M. C. A., will be heard by another group on "Religion and Social Justice." Mr. Magnuson will address the combined groups.

Wife Claims Husband Married Her Illegally

Charging that her husband was unable to marry her legally when he went through a marriage ceremony at Manassas, Va., August 11, 1930, Josephine Latterner, 20, through her mother, Blanche Latterner Stevens, of Wisconsin avenue near R street northwest, yesterday asked an annullment of her marriage. She declared that her husband, Roy C. Hall, had not been divorced from a former wife.

The couple lived together for two months, she said, until the fact that Hall was not divorced from a previous wife became known to her and she left him. Hall is a drug store employe.

Indian Princess and Brave From Reservation Marry

Clerks in the offices of the District Supreme Court were given a thrill yesterday when a trio of Indians, one of them a princess, invaded the marriage license bureau in quest of a license.

The princess was the only one clothed in conventional garb. The other, both beaming braves, wore the full regalia of their tribe, and they had large feather bonnets and beaded suits of the type usually pictured by the movies.

The princess gave her name as Pocahontas Brodbey, and her age as 28. Her husband-to-be gave his name as Dewey Custalow, 26 years old, and he was accompanied by O. F. Custalow, assistant chief of the tribe of Mattaponi, which is on a reservation at Sweet Hill, Va. The bride is from the reservation at Boulevard, Va.

Pupils Living in Maryland Also to Pay 3-Cent Fare

The 3-cent street car and bus fare law applies to children living in nearby Maryland and attending District schools, and to pupils who live in the District and attend school in nearby Maryland, the Public Utilities Commission ruled yesterday in answer to inquiries.

The Washington, Mariboro & Annapolis Bus Line was informed that it would have to pick up children in Seat Pleasant and Capitol Heights and carry them into the District on this basis, and the Capital Traction Co. was instructed that District pupils of the Chevy Chase Country Day School, in Chevy Chase, Md., should be permitted to cross the line on 3-cent fares.

Several children in the Maryland towns were reported to have been walking to the District line since the inauguration of the reduced fare in order to ride for 3 cents. Approximately fifteen pupils of the Chevy Chase school are said to live in the District.

While these were the only cases confronting the commission, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, said that the same principle would apply to similar instances.
